

Editor's Note

The issue of NJL that you are now looking at is the last one to be edited by Eva Ejerhed. Thorstein Fretheim, who is writing these lines, is the new editor of the journal, and Jan Terje Faarlund is the new review editor. Thank you, Eva, for what you have done for the journal during your two periods of editorship (1984–1989), and thank you, Görel Sandström, for having been a competent review editor since 1987.

There are going to be no major changes in editorial policy. Eva Ejerhed initiated the practice of engaging guest editors to produce special issues devoted to selected topics. That practice will be continued. My plan is that every other issue—No. 2 in each year's volume—will cover one special field of study only. There will, however, still be room for reviews of books dealing with quite different topics. No. 2 in Vol. 13 (1990) has already been planned as a special issue on first language acquisition, edited by Sven Strömqvist. No. 2 in Vol. 14 (1991) will be devoted to semantics and will be edited by Jens Allwood. Readers are hereby invited to send him their contributions by 31 January, 1991.
