
Feminist Interpretation of the Bible

Edited by LETTY M. RUSSELL

This lucid and timely book is the result of a collaborative effort on the part of a group of well-known theologians, historians and biblical scholars – all of them women – to clarify the distinctive character of feminist biblical interpretation. The book brings together perspectives from Jewish/Christian, Black/White, Catholic/Protestant women, and in particular develops an awareness of the Third World presence in the Church.

Darwinism and Divinity

Essays on Evolution and Religious Belief

Edited by JOHN DURANT

The theory of evolution has always posed serious problems for religious belief – how can the notions of Creation and Providence be reconciled with the idea that life evolved over millions of years through a 'struggle for existence'? Distinguished historians, social scientists, philosophers, anthropologists and theologians here provide the first multi-disciplinary review of the relationship between evolution and religious belief.

MODERN THEOLOGY

Edited by Kenneth Surin

Launched in 1984, Modern Theology aims to promote international dialogue between theologians, to respond to issues, trends and movements in modern theology in a way that is both critical and constructive, and to publish articles which are technically rigorous in a journal whose overall scope remains fairly general.

The Principle of Hope

ERNST BLOCH

Translated by Neville and Stephen Plaice and Paul Knight

'Ernst Bloch's Das Prinzip Hoffnung is one of the key books of our century. Part philosophic speculation, part political treatise, part lyric version, it is exercising a deepening influence on thought and on literature in both east and west. No political or theological appropriations of Bloch's leviathan can exhaust its visionary breadth. Its translation into English should be an event.' George Steiner

Written against the sombre background of facism, The Principle of Hope envisions utopia as a real and achievable state and one in which men and women would live like 'proper human beings'. Also a practical guide to living with hope in late capitalist society, the book embraces all levels of culture, from scientific endeavours, to the simple daydreams of everyday life. The book is a landmark in Utopian thought, as much a work of literature as of philosophy, for Bloch's rich, poetic style reflects the vitality and originality of his thought.

Apocalypse Delayed

The Story of Jehovah's Witnesses

M. James Penton

In this comprehensive history of a growing worldwide phenomenon, Penton places the development of the sect in three contexts: historical, doctrinal, and sociological. The author was a fourth-generation Witness until he was disfellowshipped in 1981.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor S. R. Sutherland, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributions of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviews will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
