Society for the Advancement of Socio-Economics

Purpose

To advance an encompassing understanding of economic behavior, and more generally, choice behavior. To advance the scientific study, scholarship, intellectual exploration and public policy implications of the study of economic (or choice) behavior within the more encompassing psychological, societal, institutional, historical, philosophical, and ethical contexts. To balance deductions with inductions, to preserve the reality-testing, empirical, quality of study.

2nd ANNUAL CONFERENCE
George Washington University
Washington, DC, March 16–18, 1990

CALL FOR PAPERS

The special focus of the Conference will be on the policy implications of socio-economics as well as empirical implications. At the same time the Conference will continue to dedicate itself to explore the theoretical, intellectual, moral and methodological dimensions of socio-economics.

People wishing to present papers, organize session or panels, should write to the local program committee, Socio-Economic Project, Room 714 I, Gelman Library, George Washington University, 2130 H Street, NW, Washington, DC 20052. Advance registration $25 (students: $10) payable to the Society for the Advancement of Socio-Economics (or S.A.S.E.).

A prize will be awarded to the most original socio-economic paper that has policy implications, and to one supported by inductive empirical evidence.

Program Committee: Professor Peter Caws, George Washington University; Dr. Joseph Cordes, Congressional Budget Office; Professor Amitai Etzioni, George Washington University; Professor Jerald Hage, University of Maryland; Professor Lynn Sharp Paine, Georgetown University; Professor Lee Preston, University of Maryland.

Journal of Social Policy

The Journal of the Social Policy Association

Editor: Alan Deacon, Senior Lecturer in Social Policy, University of Leeds

This important journal publishes articles on all aspects of social policy and administration. It examines the design and implementation of social policy at both national and local levels. Particular emphasis is placed upon articles which . . .

- contribute to the debate as the future direction of social policy
- advance theory or conceptual rigour
- identify and analyse issues in the implementation of social policies.

Social Policy Digest

The journal also includes the Social Policy Digest. This provides a commentary on changes in social welfare legislation in the UK and a review of the major reports and surveys published by government departments, local authorities and voluntary groups.

ECONOMIC POLICY

A European Forum

Senior Editors: GEORGES de MÉNIL, Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales, Paris and RICHARD PORTES, Centre for Economic Policy Research, London
Managing Editors: DAVID BEGG, Birkbeck College, London and CHARLES WYPLOSZ, INSEAD, Fontainebleau

A biannual journal and an indispensable source of analysis of economic affairs, ECONOMIC POLICY offers first class articles specially commissioned from leading international economists and policy advisers to provide up-to-date, non-technical analyses of current research on specific policy questions. These papers are discussed by a panel of leading economists whose comments in summary are published following each paper. 1988 topics included the unions, nuclear power, corporatism, insider trading, conservatism, and taxing families (EP6), and unemployment, Mexico, international policy co-ordination, Perestroika, and regulatory reforms in Britain (EP7). Issues 9 and 10 (October 1989 and April 1990) focus on 'Europe 1992': the completion of the internal European market.

'If Arthur Okun were alive he would certainly be reading Economic Policy. The rest of us need it even more.'

Professor Robert Solow, MIT

Volume 5 1990: 2 parts per year will cost £23 for UK subscribers, £25 for subscribers elsewhere, £13 for individuals and £12 for a single part. Airmail is £8.50 per year extra.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

GUIDELINES

The distinctive readership of the Journal, cutting across academic disciplines and national boundaries, makes the following points of particular importance to contributors.

*Whatever the specific subject matter, the relevance of conclusions to a broad understanding of policymaking should be made explicit.

*Whatever the national setting, the extent to which conclusions are generalizable to many nations should be explicitly discussed.

*Each article should show an awareness of the constraints that public institutions place upon policymaking.

*Jargon should be avoided; technical terms not widely understood should be clearly defined; and the conclusions of statistical analyses should be set out in prose, as well as being supported by quantitative information in tables, footnotes and text as appropriate.

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPT

The entire manuscript, including footnotes and references, should be typed double-spaced on one side only of A4 size paper, with a left-hand margin of at least 1½ inches (4½ cm). Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

The title of the article and the author's name and address should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

The second page should contain an abstract of not more than 150 words and the title of the article, but not the author's name.

Tables and Figures should be numbered consecutively in separate series. Each table or figure should be typed or drawn on a separate sheet. Every table or figure should have a title or caption and at least one reference in the text to indicate its approximate location.

STYLE

Spelling, capitalization and punctuation should be consistent within each article. Detailed advice on all matters of style is contained in Judith Butcher's book, Copyediting, Cambridge University Press (1975).

Headings of not more than two grades should be used and they should be typed on separate lines.

Numbered footnotes should be avoided; citation of references in the text is the norm. If there are a few points that require discussion in the article but not in the body of the text, numbered footnotes may be used. They may also be useful for technical details, e.g. statistical points that would interrupt the flow of the text. Numbered footnotes should be typed consecutively, double-spaced, at the end of the paper, starting on a new page.

References to publications should be placed in the text. Examples of correct styling for bibliographic citation where the author's name is mentioned in the text are Alford (1975), Biller (1976, 136-7), May and Wildavsky (1978), Ostrom, Parks and Whitaker (1978) and subsequently Ostrom et al. (1978).

At the end of the paper, all references should be consolidated in a single alphabetical list starting on a new page. Authors are particularly requested to verify that each text reference appears in the list, and vice versa. In addition to author(s) surname and first name(s) or initial(s), and the title of the book or article, references to books should always include the city of publication and publisher, and for journal articles the volume and part number. For example:

- Alford, R. (1975) Health Care Politics. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
Biller, R. (1976) On tolerating policy and organizational termination: some design considerations, Policy Sciences, 7, 2, 133-49.
Campbell, D. (1971) Reforms as experiments. In F. Caro (ed.), Readings in Evaluation Research. New York: Russell Sage.
May, J. and A. Wildavsky (eds.) (1978) The Policy Cycle. Beverly Hills: Sage.

SUBMISSION

Please submit the original manuscript plus three copies to: Professor Richard Rose, Journal of Public Policy, Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde, Livingstone Tower, Glasgow G1 1XH, Scotland.

COPYEDITING AND PROOF-READING

The editor and publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proof all items accepted for publication. Authors will review their copyedited manuscripts only if substantial changes have been made. Manuscripts which do not conform to the requirements about style and format may be returned for retyping.

Page proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only. Authors must notify the editorial office of any corrections within one week of receipt or approval will be assumed.

Submission of an article or other item implies that it has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors of material accepted for publication will be asked to assign their copyrights to Cambridge University Press.

Each author will receive 50 offprints of his article without charge. Additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.
