

African Art at the Harn Museum: Spirit Eyes, Human Hands

Robin Poynor

"More than just another exhibition catalogue. . . . The conceptual framework and orientation of the essay are original. [Poynor suggests] the complexity of African religious beliefs and the diversity of roles art plays in their manifestation."—Barbara Frank, SUNY-Stony Brook
237 pp. 7 X 10. 17 color, 119 b&w photographs, 3 maps.
Cloth, $49.95

War and Drought in Sudan: Essays on Population Displacement

Eltigani E. Eltigani, ed.

"A well-balanced, integrated, and comprehensive understanding of the phenomenon of human displacement. Not only does it relate directly to the displacement crisis in the Sudan, but it is easily applied to similar contemporary problems in Somalia, Angola, Liberia, former Yugoslavia, and Cambodia."—Richard Lobban, Rhode Island College 128 pp. 6 maps, 14 tables.
Cloth, $29.95

Francophone African Women Writers: Destroying the Emptiness of Silence

Irène Assiba d'Almeida

"A very important contribution to the field by an African scholar with a thorough, empathetic command of the field of African feminine writing in French."

—Christiane Makward,

Penn State University
233 pp. Cloth, $34.95

Islamic Society in Practice

Carolyn Fluehr-Lobban

"A comprehensive piece of work on contemporary Arab society. . . . Clear, sympathetic, but not apologetic." —Ismail Abdalla, College of William and Mary

Exploring Africa's rich heritage

The Journal of Modern African Studies

The Journal of Modern African Studies offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa. The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; and upon the present, rather than the past. The best current work is presented from specialists in different academic disciplines. Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, but aims at a fair examination of controversial issues in order to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. The journal also includes an invaluable book review section.

The Journal of African History

The Journal of African History publishes articles and book reviews ranging widely over the African past, from the late Stone Age to the 1960s. In recent years increasing prominence has been given to economic and social history and several articles have explored themes which are also of growing interest to historians of other regions such as: gender roles, demography, health and hygiene, propaganda, legal ideology, labour histories, nationalism and resistance, custodial institutions, the construction of ethnicity, ideas of time, and photographs as historical sources. Contributions dealing with precolonial history are especially welcome. Articles on slavery, the slave trade and the interpretation of oral tradition are also included.

Subscriptions

Volume 36 in 1995: March, July and November
£64 for institutions; £35 for individuals; £27 for students; delivery by airmail £14.50 extra.

DEMOCRATIZATION IN SOUTH AFRICA

The Elusive Social Contract

TIMOTHY D. SISK

Timothy Sisk presents a new way of conceiving the transition to democracy in South Africa. Unlike authors who have sought to prescribe an ideal set of post-apartheid political institutions, Sisk asks what kinds of institutions show signs of actually emerging, given recent history and present realities. Drawing on extensive interviews with political figures, as well as other primary and secondary sources, Sisk finds reason for hope that a democratic social contract can evolve, balancing majority rule with minority representation and guaranteeing equal economic opportunity and social justice.

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is presented from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the business man, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
