‘Here indeed is matter of the highest interest and importance, edited and presented with superlative skill . . . Volumes which no library in the fields of religion, philosophy, history or literature can afford to exclude’—THE MONTH

The Letters & Diaries of John Henry NEWMAN

Edited by C. S. DESSAIN

‘The nearest thing we are likely to get to a “definitive” biography.’ Spectator ‘Edited with a genius of interpretation.’ Sunday Times

Volume XIII

This third volume to appear shows Newman as a religious superior, founding and guiding his two Houses in Birmingham and London; dealing with a brilliant but difficult team; with urgent social work; but always, too, with the intellectual side of religious life. 536 pages 70s
