

A Revolutionary Approach in Synoptic Scholarship
THE SYNOPTIC PROBLEM

A Critical Review of the Problem of the Literary Relationships between Matthew, Mark, and Luke
by William R. Farmer

The thesis that Mark is the earliest of the Gospels written is reopened to serious questioning in this significant new book. Dr. Farmer provides a complete review of the problem, citing the variety of interpretations and the intellectual climate of the 19th century as factors contributing to the general acceptance of the Holtzmann synthesis and the positions taken by scholars such as Streeter and Sanday.

In his last two chapters the author demonstrates what he considers the only tenable view of the matter—an interpretation based on the long-neglected hypothesis of Johann Griesbach. $10.00

A New Testament History

FLOYD V. FILSON

This major work sums up the present state of knowledge of the historical Jesus, the work of Paul, the formation of Christianity and the background in Judaism. The material is presented and explained for students and laymen who seek an authoritative introduction to this field of study, but in the footnotes there is a wealth of suggestions for further reading, and on many points Dr Filson's judgment will interest his fellow-scholars.

Dr Filson is Dean of McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago and Professor of New Testament Literature and History. January 42s net

The Central Message of the New Testament

JOACHIM JEREMIAS

One of the most distinguished of New Testament scholars, Professor Jeremias of Göttingen concisely expounds four great themes. These are: the prayer of Jesus to God as Abba; the sacrificial interpretation of the cross, traced to the words of Jesus himself; the way in which Paul translated the teaching of Jesus into theology and thus developed the controversial formula justification by faith; and an early Christian hymn about Jesus, adapted as the Prologue to St John's Gospel and now studied in depth.
