

P03-503

A THERAPEUTIC "INNOVATION"...

A. Matos-Pires¹, F. Salazar-Garcia¹, E. Monteiro², D. Estevens¹

¹Department of Psychiatry, ²Department of Neurology, CHBA, Portimão, Portugal

Domestic violence, particularly violence against women, is a scourge that has killed this year in Portugal more than twenty women.

Our aim is to present a case study on the issue of gender violence on a 49 years old woman with a prior diagnosis of bipolar disorder and its (terrible) consequences.

The multiple injuries sustained over several years "treated" the bipolar disorder. Apart from a frontal lesion on CT there is now a set of neurological and psychiatric symptoms compatible with a diagnosis of chronic traumatic encephalopathy (CTE) "boxer's dementia" like.