

A STUDY OF
THE ENGLISH APOTHECARY
FROM 1660 TO 1760

by

JUANITA G. L. BURNBY

(Medical History, Supplement No. 3)

LONDON

WELLCOME INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

1983

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
Chapters
I The place of the apothecary in the evolution of medical practice	4
II Job description	14
III The apothecary as progenitor	24
IV The apothecary as man of science	62
V The education and cultural interests of the apothecary	79
VI Status and social position	92
Conclusion	113
Index	117

A STUDY OF
THE ENGLISH APOTHECARY
FROM 1660 TO 1760

(Medical History, Supplement No. 3, 1983)

DEDICATION

To the memory of my mother, Amy Kathleen Thomas.

Published 1983 by the Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine, 183 Euston Road, London NW1 2BP.

© Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine, 1983.

ISBN 0 85484 043 5
ISSN 0025 7273 3

Supplements to Medical History may be obtained at the Wellcome Institute, or by post from Science History Publications Ltd, Halfpenny Furze, Chalfont St Giles, Bucks HP8 4NR, England.

Printed by the Wellcome Foundation Limited, Print and Packaging Division (Crewe).

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is impossible to name more than a few of those who have helped me over the course of many years, but I would like particularly to acknowledge my debt to Miss Margaret Mackenzie who set me on the path of serious historical research, and to Miss Barbara Fenwick who has sat in record offices for many long hours transcribing material for me. Dr Jessie Ridge and Mr F. H. Rawlings have been so generous as to allow me access to their unpublished material, which was extremely useful; whilst the help, encouragement, and stimulating exchange of ideas with Dr Edwin Clarke and Dr Douglas Whittet have proved invaluable. I am very conscious of the debt I owe to the editorial staff of Medical History, in particular to Mrs J. Runciman whose patience and ingenuity in dealing with problems seem to be inexhaustible.

To my husband I can but say "Thank you" and that without you none of this work would have been possible.

NOTE

It should be noted that dates of days from the 1st January to the 24th March prior to 1752 are given according to the moden calendrical style, as if the year began on the 1st January.