

Ores to Metals The Rocky Mountain Smelting Industry

By James E. Fell, Jr.

Drawing heavily on archival materials, Fell vividly presents the troubles and triumphs of the entrepreneurs who built up one of the great industries of the West. He shows how these men adjusted to competition, how they exploited new opportunities, and how they coped with changing ore markets. xvi, 341 pages, illustrated. $21.50

Agricultural Exports, Farm Income, and the Eisenhower Administration

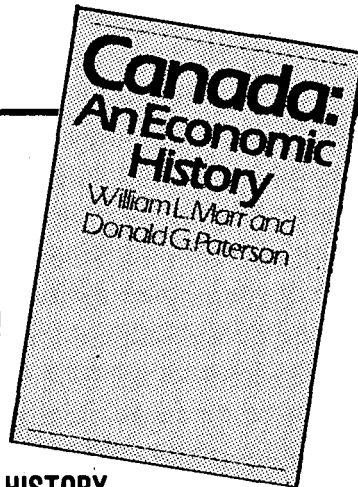

By Trudy Huskamp Peterson

In 1953 the new Eisenhower administration was faced with rapidly declining agricultural exports while production soared. This study examines the administration's attempts to put a floor under farm income by expanding the foreign market for agricultural products. xiv, 222 pages. $15.95

THE FIRST MAJOR
INTERPRETATION OF CANADIAN ECONOMIC HISTORY IN 25 YEARS!

CANADA: AN ECONOMIC HISTORY
by William T. Marr and Donald G. Paterson

In its themes in the economic development of Canada from the Colonial to modern period are examined in order to trace the evolution of the modern economy.

Particular emphasis is placed on the process of industrialization and the role played by rapidly changing mechanisms in factor and product markets in the 19th and 20th centuries.

Attention is also directed to both national and regional dimensions of economic growth and structural change. In turn, the emphasis is set in the context of patterns of natural resource use, government policies to promote economic development, and the wider impact of the world economy on Canada.

An exhaustive bibliography is included.

THE MODERN WORLD-SYSTEM II

Mercantilism and The Consolidation of The European World-Economy, 1600-1750

By IMMANUEL WALLERSTEIN

Critical Praise for The Modern World-System I—"I can say without hesitation that it is the finest book of analytical history that I have read in the last ten years. That Europe had formed a world-economy around herself historians knew, but only in general. What they had never thought about with the keenness and intelligence which characterizes Wallerstein's thought is that this entity provides a new framework for the subject of European history, that it is compelling, a new explanation, a new classification, indeed a revolutionary one, of received knowledge and current thought. . . ." —FERNAND BRAUDEL

This second volume of The Modern World-System continues the story of the historical development of the capitalist world-economy. Whereas Volume I treated the genesis of the system in the "long" and inflationary sixteenth century, this volume treats the consequences of the economic stagnation of the seventeenth century.

The Atlantic Economy and Colonial Maryland's Eastern Shore

From Tobacco to Grain

By PAUL G. CLEMENS. This book charts the early social and economic history of the Eastern Shore, focusing on the shift from tobacco production to diversified agriculture and on the ways in which Atlantic commerce shaped the lives of English settlers. Offering a new perspective on early American history, Professor Clemens is concerned with the relationship between changes in society brought about by local circumstances and those created by international market conditions.

The Politics of Economic Interest

By MICHAEL STEPHEN SMITH. In this comprehensive account of the economic politics of the late nineteenth century in France, Michael Smith challenges the generally accepted notion of protectionist domination. He demonstrates that the result of tariff reform in the early Third Republic was a system of compromises, not a return to the rigid protectionist policy of the years before 1860. He also analyzes the conflict between free traders and protectionists and explores the consequences and implications of the final accommodation of interests.

Why the Poor Get Richer and the Rich Slow Down
ESSAYS IN THE MARSHALLIAN LONG PERIOD

By W. W. Rostow

Bearing on fundamental issues of economic theory, history, and public policy, this volume elaborates and goes beyond themes enunciated in W. W. Rostow's previous works. The eight essays presented here are unified by the author's insistence that neo-Keynesian and neoclassical theory are an inadequate basis for economic analysis and policy prescription. 456 pages, $19.95

Institutional Economics
THE CHANGING SYSTEM

By Wendell Gordon

This volume clearly and evocatively sets out the philosophy of economic institutionalism, which, in Wendell Gordon's view offers the most hope for understanding and solving the economic problems of the twentieth century. Gordon's argument that the dynamics of technical change, the institutionalism of behavior norms, human biology, and the resource endowment all interact in an ongoing social process is a central tenet of the institutional approach.

POPULATION MALTHUS

His Life and Times
PATRICIA JAMES
Illustrated $43.50

'Few individuals make outstanding contributions to two vital aspects of human endeavour, but Robert Thomas Malthus was in this category. In this brilliant and sensitively written biography... Patricia James has traced the life and work of the genius who first called mankind's attention to the global threat of overpopulation, and, not content with that gargantuan achievement, proceeded to become one of the founders of the science of political economy.'—John A. Loraine, British Medical Journal

'A major scholarly achievement which will surely remain the standard account for many years to come.'

W.A. Armstrong, British Book News

'Ms. James covers a great deal of material to show all sides of Malthus's character and development, including his radically progressive attitudes on very many of the important issues of the day, ranging from Catholic emancipation to the ending of patronage in higher education through competitive examination, and touching on free collective bargaining and the abolition of slavery. Fascinating.'
