THE LEADING MONTHLY ON ASIAN AFFAIRS

Eastern World

Keeps its readers abreast with the political, social, and economic developments in that area and aims at fostering a greater understanding between East and West. As a non-party, impartial forum for free discussion, its articles contain vital information on Asian affairs and mirror the leading opinions on all issues concerning that part of the world. Important controversial matters are ventilated in an independent manner and offer an invaluable source of information on that centre of world affairs. It is well illustrated and belongs to those few international publications which are essential to everyone who wishes to follow world events.

A New Version based upon Recent Discoveries

Professor
A. J. ARBERRY,
Litt.D.

"Professor Arberry has chosen for his rendering the metre of Tennyson's In Memoriam. This was a daring and successful choice. He handles those slow sequences with skill and gaiety; his metre rings out as a carillon rather than as a dirge. I fear that those who read Professor Arberry's fine translation will regret the lilt of FitzGerald's paraphrase. But it is helpful to dispel illusions."—Harold Nicolson in the Spectator.

A Handbook to India, Pakistan Burma and Ceylon

Edited by Colonel
SIR GORDON HEARN,
C.I.E., D.S.O.

"The latest version of a standard, indispensable guidebook. Profusely illustrated with maps and plans, the volume provides detailed descriptions of places, transportation routes, and travel facilities."—Pacific Affairs.

"To say that this Handbook is a 'monumental work' will be to make an understatement. It is, as they might say in certain places in the East, 'the father and mother of all travellers' handbooks'."—Ceylon Observer.

IT BEGAN WITH

THE CRUSADES

We take some pride in our long history but the business in which we are engaged is older than we are. Eastern banking began in the 12th century when the Knights Templar, protecting the lines of communication which sustained the Crusades, devised a mechanism for exchanging currencies and transferring goods between Western Europe and the Asian Continent. This primitive but highly efficient banking service made possible a rapid expansion of the trade between the Eastern and Western worlds—a traffic which has been fittingly described as the foundation of all commerce. Nowadays travellers along the Asian trade routes and merchants and manufacturers engaged in the Eastern trade entrust their banking transactions to The Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China which maintains an extensive system of branches, under British management directed from London, throughout Southern and South-Eastern Asia and the Far East.

THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND CHINA

(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1853)

Head Office : 38 Bishopsgate, London, E.C.2.

West End (London) Branch : 28 Charles II Street, London, S.W.1.

Manchester Branch : 52 Mosley Street, Manchester, 2.

Liverpool Branch : 27 Derby House, Liverpool, 2.

New York Agency : 65 Broadway, New York, 6.

Branches of the Bank are established at most centres of commercial importance throughout Southern and South-Eastern Asia and the Far East.

THE MAKING OF GREATER INDIA

A Study in South-east Asian Culture Change

By

H. G. QUARITCH WALES, Ph.D., Litt.D.

8vo., pp. viii, 209, with frontispiece ; cloth

1951

Price £1 5s. (postage extra)

WHY is the art of Angkor different from that of Java or Champa, and WHY does the art of all those countries differ so much from the art of India which inspired them? This book provides a comprehensive solution to this outstandingly delicate problem of South-east Asian cultural history.

"Space is lacking for me to follow the author step by step in his study of the arts of Java, Champa, and Cambodia, made in the light of his hypothesis. The proof of his claims, based on a thorough knowledge of the archæological material taken from the best sources, is generally convincing and always interesting."

Professor Georges Cœdès, in Art and Letters.

ANCIENT SOUTH-EAST ASIAN WARFARE

8vo., pp. viii, 206, with 7 figures ; cloth

1952

Contents :— Price £1 15s. (postage extra)

Primitive Warfare ; Chinese Influence ; Indianization ; Śrīvijaya and Java ; Khmers and Chams ; Siam and Burma : the Preparations ; Siam and Burma : the March and Combat.

"The emotions of war being so different from those of peace, it may be expected that a study of South-east Asian warfare will reveal aspects of national character and of civilization different from, and sometimes deeper than, those which find expression in the better known exercises and arts of peace. Such a study should help to broaden our understanding of the peoples of South-east Asia and their problems through a fuller knowledge of their cultural background."—From the Preface.
