

Aims & Scope

The Review of Middle East Studies (RoMES) is the Middle East Studies Association's journal of review. Published twice a year, each issue includes research articles, essays, brief reports on emerging topics and issues, and reviews of books, films, music, software, and exhibitions relevant to Middle East studies.

The focus of RoMES is the state of the craft in all fields of Middle East studies, including Islamic and cultural studies, with an emphasis on new and evolving topics and issues in scholarship, including research methods, ethical issues, and pedagogy. RoMES addresses primarily the modern period, but the journal also publishes scholarship on premodern topics of interest to a wider audience of Middle East scholars.

Mission Statement

The Middle East Studies Association (MESA) is a non-political association that fosters the study of the Middle East, promotes high standards of scholarship and teaching, and encourages public understanding of the region and its peoples through programs, publications and services that enhance education, further intellectual exchange, recognize professional distinction, and defend academic freedom.
