SOME AUTUMN BOOKS

The Decisive Wars of History

B. H. Liddell Hart

After an extensive survey of military history the author has discovered an underlying cause which governs the decisiveness of war. The greater part of the book is devoted to an historical survey illustrative of the theory, with a large section dealing with its influence in the World War. 12s. 6d. net.

India under Wellesley

P. E. Roberts, M.A.

This work will, we think, be found an adequate rendering of perhaps the most significant of the early chapters in the epic of our Indian Empire, and not the least fascinating side of the book is the portrait which Mr Roberts gives us of the central character. About 15s. net.

This volume treats of the rapid advance of Rome to a position of predominance over the older Great Powers of the Mediterranean world. Beginning with the struggle of Rome against Hannibal, it carries the history of the Republic down to the year 133, when with the tribunate of Tiberius Gracchus the revolutionary epoch may be said to begin. "Eminently readable... commendably fair." THE TIMES

THE WHIG INTERPRETATION OF HISTORY

by H. BUTTERFIELD, M.A.

Fellow of Peterhouse, Cambridge

This important little book puts forward the view that the whig interpretation of history is the result of a certain historical method which produces a particular kind of historians' optical illusion. The author shows and examines the tendency of all history to veer over into whig history the moment it has left the hands of the student in research. Immediately. About 10s. 6d. net.

THE HISTORY OF PEACE

by A. C. F. BEALES

A book that examines in the spirit of the interpreter the theory of War and Peace, traces the evolution of schemes for World Peace, and then for the past 100 years gives a full but restrained history of the Peace Movement.

by C. K. WEBSTER, M.A., Litt.D.

Professor of International Politics, University of Wales

As will be remembered the first volume of this study, covering the period 1815-1822, was published some years ago.

"No higher tribute can be paid to the present work than to say that it is worthy of its predecessor." Sir Charles Petrie in the DAILY TELEGRAPH

"The subject has never before been studied so fully and so dispassionately." SPECTATOR

"On the lay mind Professor Webster's narrative must leave a deep impression. Though it keeps strictly to business, it is weighty, clear, candid, and charged with that perfectly unmistakable feel of authority which comes from mastery of the sources. He never whitewashes, but justifies and explains." Keith Feiling in the OBSERVER 25s. net.
