Ideology and Linguistic Theory

Noam Chomsky and the Deep Structure Debates

Geoffrey Huck, University of Toronto and

John Goldsmith, University of Chicago

This highly controversial and revisionist book argues that Chomsky's triumph in interpretative semantics was because the opposing side, with their programme for generative semantics, were unable to establish an institutional base. Through detailed examination of the principle theoretical arguments and drawing on extensive interviews with Chomsky's former students, this is a major re-appraisal of the Chomskyan paradigm.

Stylistics

A Practical Coursebook

Laura Wright, University of Hertfordshire and

Jonathan Hope, Leeds University

Using a wide range of twentieth century literary prose, Laura Wright and Jonathan Hope provide a genuinely 'interactive' introduction to the techniques of stylistic analysis. Stylistics also introduces students to an enormous range of texts from James Joyce to Roddy Doyle, making this a 'student-friendly' and invaluable tool for all beginning undergraduates and A-Level students of language and literature.

Feminist Stylistics

Sara Mills, Loughborough University

This lively, accessible and provocative book is the first sustained account of feminist stylistics. Mills explores such issues as sexism, political correctness, reader positioning and meaning, opening up the study of style to feminist enquiry.

Verbal Hygiene

Deborah Cameron, University of Strathclyde

In this exciting book, Cameron explores popular attitudes towards language and examines the practices by which people attempt to regulate its use. Dealing with issues such as movements for and against 'politically-correct' language and the teaching of English in grammar schools, the author argues that 'verbal hygiene' represents a symbolic attempt to impose order on the social world.

Discourse, Consciousness, and Time

The Flow and Displacement of Conscious Experience in Speaking and Writing

WALLACE CHAFE

“Magisterial in its attempt to analyze the relation between language and consciousness, Chafe’s book presents a lifetime of work on the interface between ‘pragmatics’ and ‘structure,’ observed data and theoretical generalization.”—Elizabeth Traugott, Stanford University

English Today

The International Review of the English Language

Editor: Tom McArthur, Cambridge

Celebrating a decade of publication in 1994, English Today provides a unique forum for both foreign and native users of English. It successfully combines academic rigour with popular appeal, eclecticism with depth.

Wide ranging

English Today covers all aspects of the language, including its uses and abuses, its international variations, its history, literature and linguistics, and its usages and neologisms. Special articles and regular features keep readers up to date with current opinion and recent developments. Vigorous debates continue on the nature and teaching of the international standard language, academic models of the language and the influence of new communication technologies on English.

Articles in English Today are...

- Up-to-date – coverage of the latest news, views and events
- Accessible – written for both specialists and non-specialists
- Authoritative – contributions by leading scholars

Regular Features

- ◆ Angles of Vision – opinions and interviews on aspects of and attitudes to the language
- ◆ Kaleidoscope – examples of and comments on the language at large
- ◆ Crossword – ET's cosmopolitan crossword – with leading new publications as prizes

- ◆ Lexicon – words and wordbooks from all over the world
- ◆ Reviews & Displays – covering significant new publications on English in particular and language in general
- ◆ Post & Mail – a broad cross-section of readers' correspondence is published in each issue
- ◆ Comment – from the Editor
- ◆ News – short reports on current happenings

A key title for...

- students of English as a first or second language • writers • linguists • broadcasters and journalists • publishers • everyone interested in the uses and usages of the English language

JOHN I. TAIT

University of Sunderland

Natural Language Engineering is a new international journal designed to meet the needs of professionals and researchers working in all areas of computerised language processing, whether from the perspective of theoretical or descriptive linguistics, lexicology, computer science or engineering. Its principal aim is to bridge the gap between traditional computational linguistics research and the implementation of practical applications with potential real world use. As well as publishing research articles on a broad range of topics – from text analysis, machine translation and speech generation and synthesis to integrated systems and multi-modal interfaces – the journal will carry an extensive selection of reviews. It will help to forge the essential link between industry and the academic community.

Language Teaching

The International Abstracting Journal for Language Teachers and Applied Linguists

Published in association with the Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research (CILT) and the British Council

Editor: Valerie Kinsella, Bristol

This essential journal brings you a broad selection of the most significant current thought, covering both theoretical and practical aspects of using, learning and teaching languages. Language Teaching publishes abstracts in English, of articles selected by experts from some 400 journals published throughout the world, which enables teachers, writers and applied linguists to keep abreast of current research including the most important work on any aspect of language and teaching

Language Teaching features...

- ◆ an emphasis on teaching methods and materials
- ◆ special state-of-the-art survey article in every issue covering a major area of language teaching
- ◆ a rich cross-fertilization of ideas among foreign language teachers, applied linguists, methodologists and theorists
- ◆ information on effective methods of language teaching and learning
- ◆ access in English to work published in many languages
- ◆ progress reports on on-going research projects in many countries
- ◆ an annual review of research in applied linguistics relevant to language teaching

Recent state-of-the-art articles

Grounded Phonology

DIANA ARCHANGELI AND DOUGLAS PULLEYBLANK

With a modular approach covering a variety of topics, Grounded Phonology argues for a significant link between phonetics and phonology. Its authors propose that phonological rules and representations are tightly constrained by the interaction of formal conditions drawn from a limited universal pool and substantive conditions of a phonetically motivated nature. Current Studies in Linguistics No.25

Unaccusativity

At the Syntax-Lexical Semantics Interface

BETH LEVIN AND MALKA RAPPAPORT HOVAV

This extended investigation uses the study of unaccusativity to contribute significantly to the development of a theory of lexical semantic representation and to the elucidation of the mapping from lexical semantics to syntax.

The Antisymmetry of Syntax

RICHARD S. KAYNE

It is standardly assumed that Universal Grammar allows a given hierarchical representation to be associated with more than one linear order. Richard Kayne proposes a restrictive theory of word order and phrase structure that denies this assumption and states that phrase structure always completely determines linear order.

Zero Syntax

Experiencers and Cascades

DAVID PESETSKY

An important contribution to the understanding of Universal Grammar. The overriding theme is the notion that the availability and syntactic positioning of arguments is not a matter of chance but arises from laws governing both the structure of lexical entries and the syntactic structures themselves. Current Studies in Linguistics No.27

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Editorial address Professor Ian Roberts and Dr Robert D. Borsley, The Editors, Linguistics Department, School of English and Linguistics, University of Wales, Bangor, Gwynedd LL57 2DG, UK. (IR: elso11@bangor.ac.uk RDB: elsoo3@bangor.ac.uk).

Address for books for review and book reviews Dr Maggie Tallerman, Review Editor, Department of Linguistics and English Language, University of Durham, Elvet Riverside, Durham DH1 3JT, UK. (maggie.tallerman@durham.ac.uk).

Policy The Journal of Linguistics is concerned with all branches of linguistics (including phonetics). Preference is given to articles which make a substantial contribution to theoretical linguistics. Contributions are welcomed from linguists in all countries, and not merely from members of the Linguistics Association of Great Britain. The normal language of publication is English.

Preparation of manuscripts Contributors should submit three copies of their manuscript. Submitted papers will normally be read by two referees. The name(s) of the author(s) should not appear on the paper itself and, as far as possible, the author(s) should not be identifiable from the references in the text or the acknowledgements. Details of name(s), affiliation(s) and full postal and e-mail address(es) should be submitted on a separate sheet. Fax and telephone numbers should also be included.

The manuscript of an article should be accompanied by an abstract of about 100 words summarising the content. The abstract will appear in the published version of a paper.

Manuscripts should be submitted on A4 paper (US 11"×8½") with margins of at least 4cm (1½") on all four sides of each sheet. They may be single-spaced and/or double-sided, if desired: However, the manuscripts of the final version of papers accepted for publication must be double-spaced and single-sided, with the type no smaller than 12 points (12pt) throughout the manuscript. One copy of the final version should be submitted.

The full set of notes for contributors is published in every second issue of each volume. A copy is also available from the Editorial Assistant, Ewa Jaworska, e-mail: elso2o@bangor.ac.uk (postal address as for the Editors, see above).

Proofs First proofs only of articles, notes and discussion, review articles and book reviews, but not shorter notices, will be sent with the edited manuscript to the (first-named) author, who will be expected to correct them and return them to the Editors, within three days of receipt.

Offprints 50 offprints will be supplied free of charge to authors of articles, notes and discussion and review articles. 25 offprints will be supplied free of charge to authors of book reviews and shorter notices. Further offprints may be purchased if they are ordered at proof stage.

THE LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN

The Linguistics Association of Great Britain was founded in 1959 to promote the study of linguistics and to provide for its members both a forum for discussion and facilities for cooperation in furtherance of their interest in linguistics. The Association holds annual spring and autumn meetings, at which original papers are presented in plenary sessions and in workshops devoted to special interests.

Persons interested in linguistics are eligible for election as members, subject to the approval of the Committee. Subscribing members may receive the Journal of Linguistics at a substantial discount. Application forms for membership may be obtained from the Membership Secretary, address as below.
