A SELECTION OF
CAMBRIDGE BOOKS

DOCUMENTS OF CATHERINE THE GREAT

Edited by W. F. REDDAWAY

Demy 8vo 350 pp. 15s. net

This collection, which contains an Introduction and notes by the editor, has been made for students reading a special period in the History Tripos, Part II. It includes the correspondence of Voltaire with the Empress of Russia and the English text of her Instruction of 1767.

THE CARDINAL OF LORRAINE AND THE COUNCIL OF TRENT

By H. O. EVENETT

Demy 8vo 25s. net

A study in the Counter-Reformation. The author maintains that the first two and a half years of the pontificate of Pius IV constituted the critical period which finally determined the ultimate orientation of the Counter-Reformation. This thesis is worked out in detail, and, in addition, an attempt is made for the first time, in the light of modern research, to appreciate the Cardinal's personality and to understand his ecclesiastical standpoint.

THE QUESTION OF GREEK INDEPENDENCE

By C. W. CRAWLEY

With a Map Demy 8vo 15s. net

"The book is of absorbing interest and, as a work of scholarship, should take its place in the first rank. An authoritative study of the Eastern question extending over the whole of the period covered by this book and drawn from the original sources has long been wanting."

TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

THE DUTCH BARRIER, 1705-1719

By the late RODERICK GEIKIE and ISABEL A. MONTGOMERY

With a Map Demy 8vo 21s. net

Professor G. M. Trevelyan, who contributes a short memoir of Geikie to this volume, describes the Dutch Barrier Treaty as "the hinge of European Diplomacy for that generation."

THE MAGYARS IN THE NINTH CENTURY

By C. A. MACARTNEY

Demy 8vo 15s. net

An attempt to throw light on one of the darkest historical riddles. The problem of the origin and early wanderings of the Magyars has long perplexed scholars, and although Central European Scholars have written about it, Mr Macartney's book is the first important English contribution to this subject.
