

People in Political Science

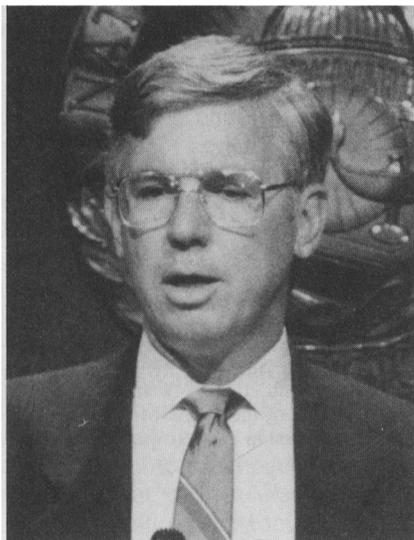

Activities

Felipe Aguero, department of political science, Ohio State University, is a fellow at the North/South Center, University of Miami, during 1994–95.

Gregory Caldeira, department of political science, was named a University Distinguished Scholar at Ohio State University.

Harold D. Clarke, Regents Professor of Political Science, University of North Texas, has been appointed co-editor of Electoral Studies with Iain McLean, Nuffield College, Oxford, and Bo Sarlvik, University of Goteborg.

Milton C. Cummings, Jr., professor of political science, Johns Hopkins University, received an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from the State University of New York. The degree was conferred at the winter 1994 commencement at SUNY Plattsburgh, where Cummings has served as a Visiting Distinguished Professor.

Parris N. Glendening

Parris N. Glendening, associate professor of political science, University of Maryland, has been elected Governor of the State of Maryland; formerly County Executive of Prince George's County, Maryland.

Richard Gunther, department of political science, Ohio State University, is fellow at the Juan March Institute in Madrid, Spain, during 1994–95.

Jaroslav Piekalkiewicz, professor of political science and Russian and East European Studies Program, University of Kansas, was named the first University Distinguished Lecturer of Western Civilization. Piekalkiewicz has recently published (with Alfred Wayne Penn), a book, Politics of Ideocracy, State University of New York Press, 1995.

Garrett Ward Sheldon, professor and chair, department of political science, Clinch Valley College of the University of Virginia will have his book, The Political Philosophy of Thomas Jefferson, become the first English language book on Jefferson to be translated into Russian and published in Moscow. After its publication by Republica Press, Sheldon will deliver a series of lectures on Jeffersonian political theory at Moscow University.

Steven A. Shull, research professor of political science, University of New Orleans, will edit a book series "Politics and Policy in American Institutions" for Garland Publishing Inc.

Kimberly M. Zisk, department of political science, Ohio State University, is in her second year of a two-year SSRC/MacArthur Foundation Fellowship on Peace and Security in a Changing World. Zisk is spending the 1994–95 year at the Mershon Center at Ohio State University.

Garrett Ward Sheldon

Administrative Appointments

Henry S. Bienen, president, Northwestern University; formerly Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton University.

Gayle Binion, director, Washington Center for University of California, Santa Barbara.

Ann L. Craig, provost, Eleanor Roosevelt College of the University of California, San Diego; formerly director of undergraduate studies, department of political science, University of California, San Diego.

James W. Hottois, president, Lewis-Clark State College; formerly provost and dean of academic affairs, Eastern Oregon State College.

John R. Johannes, vice president for academic affairs, Villanova University, effective August 7, 1995; formerly professor of political science and dean, College of Arts and Sciences, Marquette University.

Susan Ann Kay, chair, department of political science, Miami (OH) University.

Ruth Mandel

Ruth Mandel, director, Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers University.

Wally Miles, chair, department of political science, San Diego State University.

Anthony Mughan, director, undergraduate international studies program, Ohio State University.

New Appointments

James Adams, assistant professor, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Ivelaw Griffith, assistant professor, department of political science, Florida International University; formerly John Jay College.

Heidi H. Hobbs, assistant professor, department of political science, Florida International University; formerly Central Illinois University.

Dean Lacy, assistant professor, department of political science, Ohio State University; formerly Duke University.

Paul Lewis, assistant professor, department of political science, Florida International University; formerly Princeton University.

William Reno, assistant professor, department of political science,

Florida International University; formerly Hamilton College.

Randall Schweller, assistant professor, department of political science, Ohio State University; formerly Columbia University.

Helene Silverberg, assistant professor, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Margaret Jane Wyszomirski, professor of political science with tenure, and director, Arts Management Program, Weatherhead School of Management, Case Western Reserve University; formerly director, Graduate Public Policy Program, Georgetown University and director, Policy Planning, Research and Budget, National Endowment for the Arts.

Promotions

Ryan J. Barilleaux, professor of political science, Miami University.

Peter Digeser, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Wolfgang Drechsler, professor of public administration and political science, University of Tartu, Estonia.

Fernando Lopez-Alves, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Joel S. Migdal, Robert F. Philip Professor of International Studies, Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies, University of Washington.

Paul A. Rahe, Jay P. Walker Professor of American History, University of Tulsa.

Harvey L. Schantz, professor of political science, State University of New York, Plattsburgh.

Shannon Ishiyama Smithey, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Pittsburgh.

John White, professor, department of political science, Catholic University of America.

Retirements

Haruhiro Fukui, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Wolfram Hanrieder, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

John E. Moore, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

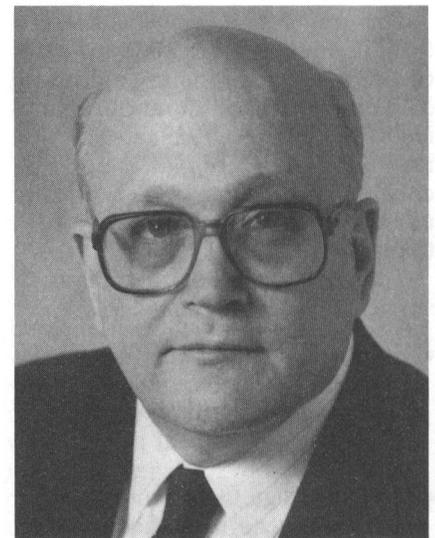

A.E. Keir Nash, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Robert C. Noel, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Thomas Schrock, department of political science, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Paul R. Abramson, professor of political science, Michigan State University, was a Lady Davis Visiting Professor in the department of political science at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem from October 1994 through January 1995. The appointment was supported by a grant from the Lady Davis Fellowship Trust, Jerusalem.

Paul R. Abramson

Stanley Renshon, professor of political science, The City University of New York, is on sabbatical for 1995 and has been appointed Visiting Scholar at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. Renshon will be working with the school's leadership development project on curriculum to improve the quality of decision judgment for public policy developers and decision makers.

Awards

MacArthur Grants Awarded

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation has awarded nineteen research and writing grants to twenty-three scholars and writers from the U.S. and around the world. The grants, totaling almost $900,000, are intended to support these individual scholars studying issues of peace and international cooperation.

The research and writing grants, which are part of the Foundation's Program on Peace and International Cooperation, are designed to encourage analysts to explore international issues and to seek out innovative approaches to new policy dilemmas emerging in the rapidly changing world arena. The grants are open to individuals of any nationality who have a proven ability to do creative work; recipients have included scholars, journalists, and practitioners, among others.

The grants range up to $65,000 for individuals or $100,000 for a two-person team, and extend up to eighteen months in duration. Recipients may carry out research at the institution or location of their choice. There are no age, academic affiliation, or geographic restrictions on recipients.

The purpose of the grants is to serve the following goals:

- To broaden and strengthen the community of scholars and writers engaged in policy-oriented work on international peace and security.
- To encourage the reconceptualization of security issues in light of changing international events, and to encourage attention to new developments that have not been adequately understood as peace and security issues.

- To foster integrated consideration of emerging relationships among economic, social, political, technological, and environmental aspects of global change.

The twenty-three grant winners are:

Nancy Barnes, Maputo, Mozambique

Anne F. Bayefsky, University of Ottawa

Ms. Pascale M. Combelles, Blagnac, France

Beth Osborne Daponte and Timothy Coté, University of Pittsburgh and National Institutes of Health

Haleh Esfandiari, Potomac, Maryland

Jonathan Fox, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Warren Goldstein, Amherst, Massachusetts

Gennady Gorelik, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Katrin Jellema, Grand Haven, Michigan

Michael T. Klare, Hampshire College

Nathalie Lebon, University of Florida

Thabane Vincent Maphai, University of Western Cape

Judith Matloff, Johannesburg, South Africa

R.T. Naylor, McGill University

Kevin J. O'Brien and Lianjiang Li, Ohio State University and Nankai University

Yezid Sayigh, Oxford, UK

Beth Stephens, Center for Constitutional Rights, New York, New York

Susan Willett and Peter Batchelor, Kings College, London, UK

Snjezana Krezo and Dusko Ilic, Sibenik, Croatia and Tokyo, Japan

1995 Pi Sigma Alpha Award

Stephen Horn, United States Representative from California's 38th District and a political scientist with over thirty-five years of experience as a participant in national policy making and service as a scholar, teacher, and university administrator, has received the National Capital Area Political Science Association 1995 Pi Sigma Alpha Award. The award, recognizing the outstanding contributions of a political scientist to public service, was presented March 25, 1995, at Mount Vernon College.

Prior to his election to Congress in 1992, Representative Horn served as Trustee Professor of Political Science at California University, Long Beach, with a specialty in the legislative process. Congressman Horn's career began as a political appointee in the Eisenhower administration, where he was Administrative Assistant to Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell. He then served for five years as Legislative Assistant to Senator Thomas H. Kuchel of California, who at the time was Deputy Republican Leader (Whip) of the U.S. Senate. During that time, he worked on major legislation, including the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, Medicare, and water policy for the western states.

Congressman Horn has also been a Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution and Dean of Graduate Studies and Research at The American University. From 1970–1988, he served as President of California State University, Long Beach. In addition, he served part-time for sixteen years as a founding member and past chair of The National Institute of Corrections of the U.S. Department of Justice, and for thirteen years as a member and Vice Chair of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Carrie Chapman Catt Prize for Research

Cheryl Logan Sparks, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was awarded the Carrie Chapman Prize for Research for "How Grandmother Won the War: Strategic and Organizational Lessons from the Struggle for Suffrage." Lisa Young, University of Toronto and Visiting Fulbright Scholar at American University received honorable mention for "The Relationship between Women's Movements and Political