

Apostolic History and the Gospel: Biblical and Historical Essays Presented to F. F. Bruce on His Sixtieth Birthday

Edited by Ward Gasque and Ralph R. Martin. These twenty-four essays, which cover a broad range of concerns, represent the best of New Testament scholarship and constitute a fitting tribute to the leading New Testament scholar today. The volume includes a select bibliography of the writings of F. F. Bruce. 384 pages, Cloth $7.95

Christian Apologetics

By J. K. S. Reid. "An admirably readable account of Christian defensive writings from New Testament times to our own. Students who, entering the maelstrom of contemporary theological debate, find difficulty in studying historical theology will benefit from this book. More experienced readers will profitably learn from this survey of the achievements and mistakes of Christian apologists."—Expository Times (Edinburgh) 224 pages, Paper $2.45

"Secular Christianity" and God who acts

By Robert J. Blaikie. "Blaikie argues powerfully for a modern understanding of the Biblical account of God as the God who really acts, and succeeds in bringing sanity and honesty into the interpretation of the Scriptures in a way that men of common sense and sound science can readily appreciate . . . a book of remarkable candor, sound judgment and downright integrity, clearly written and well argued."—T. F. Torrance 256 pages, Paper $2.95

The Spirit of the Reformed Tradition

By M. Eugene Osterhaven. What in the Reformed tradition is as valid today as it was in the sixteenth, or the first century? What can the Reformed Church contribute to the one holy, catholic, and apostolic Church in an ecumenical age? Osterhaven answers these questions for students, concerned church members, and all those inside or outside the Reformed tradition who are interested in what that tradition really stands for. 160 pages, Paper, $2.95

The Gospel of John

By Leon Morris. This latest volume in the New International Commentary on the New Testament is one of the largest, most comprehensive, and thorough commentaries on the Gospel of John that has come from the evangelical and conservative theological community in several decades. 800 pages, Cloth, $10.00

Introducing Jacques Ellul

Edited by James Holloway. Jacques Ellul has been called "a rare Christian layman . . . who is well-informed theologically, sensitive to the realities of the modern world, and gifted with the ability to speak and write provocatively" (Christian Advocate). Here, with essays by Gabriel Vahanian, Christopher Lasch, Julius Lester, Stephen Rose and John T. Wilkinson, is an essential introduction to the man and his thought. Paper, 176 pages, $2.45

Evangelism in the Early Church

By Michael Green. Tracing the evangelistic activity of the Church from the New Testament Period through the middle of the third century, Rev. Green examines fairly both the strengths and the weaknesses of the early Church. The book is carefully researched, and primary sources in the early Church are quoted frequently; yet the author's style will hold the interest of the general reader as well as the scholar. 344 pages, Cloth $6.95

Where Are We Headed?

A Christian Perspective on Evolution

By Jan Lever. This adaptation of nine radio lectures originally broadcast by the Netherlands Christian Network affirms the relevance of Christianity to the contemporary world. Specifically, the Christian faith has much to say about today's ethical and ideological problems, evolving from the great progress made by the natural sciences, burgeoning technology, and fantastic medical strides. 80 pages, Paper, $1.65

A Theology of the Holy Spirit:

The Pentecostal Experience and the New Testament Witness

By Frederick Dale Bruner. Case-study theology from a doctrinal standpoint . . . but with a concern which is more than academic. Addressed to the contemporary Church. 456 pages, Cloth, $8.95

Roman Catholic Modernism

Edited and with an Introduction by
BERNARD M. G. REARDON

Roman Catholic modernism, a current of thought that began in the 1890's and profoundly affected the Church for some twenty years, was born of the intellectual and emotional turbulence of the nineteenth century. From the writings of the leaders of this movement—men like Loisy, Tyrrell, Von Hügel, Blondel—the editor has chosen extracts that crystallize the motives of the writers, and by their intensity convey the urgent atmosphere of the struggle. The Introduction explains in detail the nature, aims, and development of the movement. A Library of Modern Religious Thought. $7.95

The Church Reform of Peter the Great

JAMES CRACRAFT

The church reform of Peter the Great quite possibly contributed more to the modernization of Russia than any of his other celebrated reforms. It destroyed forever the quasi-theocracy of medieval Muscovy, thus irreversibly setting in motion the secularization of Russian society. The history of this reform, as described and analyzed in this book, tells us much about the man and the critical times in which he reigned. In particular, it describes in detail the establishment and early activities of the Holy Synod, which together with the Imperial system was to survive until 1917.

The Evangelical Mind and the New School Presbyterian Experience

A Case Study of Thought and Theology in Nineteenth-Century America

by George M. Marsden

This fluent account of one of the most representative movements in the spiritual life of America encompasses a broad range of concerns within its predominantly Presbyterian focus. Hence it offers new insights into both the contributions of evangelism to American culture and the impact of the nineteenth-century American experience on Protestant Christianity. $10.00

The Character of the Good Ruler

Puritan Political Ideas in New England, 1630-1730

by T. H. Breen

Throughout their first hundred years in America, New England Puritans had constantly to wrestle with the question of what attributes of character and performance marked the good ruler. Mr. Breen traces the evolution of the Puritans' concepts of leadership, casting fresh light upon the development of their beliefs about themselves as a society. An understanding of their increasingly divided reactions to authority helps to clarify events that occurred after 1730 and to put much of the later Revolutionary rhetoric into proper perspective. $10.00

The Young Hegelians

by William J. Brazill

In examining Hegel's disciples (Strauss, Feuerbach, Bauer, Stirner, Vischer, and Ruge) Mr. Brazill's central aim is to discern and define the intellectual unity of a group that was varied in ideas, personalities, and achievements and to delineate the particular contributions of each individual. He assesses their roles as formulators and products of the intellectual milieu of nineteenth-century Europe, and finds that in accepting the validity of Hegel's philosophy and seeking to propagate it, they directed his ideas into areas far from the master's intent. $10.00

The Craft of Dying

The Literary Tradition of the Ars Moriendi in England

by Nancy Lee Beaty

Examining five key treatises in the English tradition of devotional literature, Nancy Beaty traces the progressive enrichment of one particular subgenre, the ars moriendi, which reached its culmination in Jeremy Taylor's Holy Dying. Her discussions of the late-medieval tract the Crafte of Dyinge, Lupset's Wave of Dyenge Well, Becon's Sicke Mannes Salve, and "Bunny's Resolution" reveal the cumulative influences of Renaissance, Reformation, and Counter-Reformation upon the tradition which came to full flower in Taylor's masterpiece on the Way of the Cross. $10.00
