

Graduate Student Summer Employment

Washington Workshops, a private non-profit, educational foundation offering secondary school students specialized study in the Nation's Capital, will retain several graduate students as instructors for the Washington Workshops 1970 Congressional Workshops. The Workshops will be offered during four consecutive two-week sessions from June 14 to August 6 in Washington, D.C. During 1969, some 500 high school students from every state participated in this unique study program. In 1970, over 1,000 students are expected to enroll.

Instructors' responsibilities will be to:

- 1 Conduct a two-hour seminar class (approximately 20 students) on the Congress and American political process each weekday, and
- 2 Accompany students to the Congress and other government departments for daily special discussions and receptions with Members of Congress and staff aides.

Instructors will have the opportunity to study the American Government in action and to learn first-hand from Congressmen and leading government officials. Instructors will be paid a salary of $100 per week; room and board accommodations will be available on the Mount Vernon Junior College campus, where the students will reside and attend classes.

Preference will be given applicants with some work experience in the Congress or similar involvement in politics or government. A personal interview will be necessary. Students who wish to apply should send a resume and recent photograph to: The Washington Workshops Foundation, 1111 Munsey Building, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004.

Social Studies Research Reports

The journal of the National Council for the Social Studies, Social Education, has announced the publication in the future of a special section of research reports related to social studies. Manuscripts submitted for publication will be judged on the quality of the research and the reporting, and on their relevance to the needs and interests of social studies educators. Manuscripts should not exceed 7,000 words and should be sent in triplicate to James P. Shaver, Director, Bureau of Educational Research, Utah State University, Logan, Utah, who will serve as departmental editor for the new section.

Inexpensive Microfilm Reader The use of microfiche by government, industry, and other sources has been increasing rapidly as organizations search for new means of coping with the "information explosion." The Office of Education alone supplies about six million microfiche of research documents a year. In order to expand the use of microfiche in libraries and among educators, however, there is a need for an inexpensive, portable microfiche reader. Thus, the Dasa Corporation, Andover, Massachusetts, has been awarded a contract from the Bureau of Research to develop several prototype models. These portable, low-cost readers will then be loaned to various agencies and groups for field testing. If they perform satisfactorily, mass production is anticipated. Cost is expected to be about $50. This is one of 39 projects financed during the past fiscal year by the OE under the Library and Information Sciences Program. The Bureau of Research allocated nearly $3 million for support of research into new ways of disseminating research results, improving library and information services, and training professionals to utilize new technology in the field.

ISR Report The Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan, has published "A Report on Recent Activities, 1968." The report describes the organization and operations of the three elements of the Institute, the Survey Research Center, the Research Center for Group Dynamics, and the Center for Research on Utilization of Scientific Knowledge. Address of the Institute is 426 Thompson Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.

New Asia Journal A new quarterly, Asian Forum, already in its third issue, will hereafter attempt to provide a multidisciplinary forum on the various aspects of development and interactions within and among Asian countries. Manuscripts of any type relevant to and concerned with Asia will be considered. Articles on methodology, review articles, book reviews, summaries of relevant dissertations, bibliographic essays, annotated bibliographies, reports on projects and conferences are invited and should be directed to the journal's new managing editor: Professor Yung-Hwan Jo, Department of Political Science, Arizona State University, Tempe, 85281. For advertising and subscription contact Pan-Asian Foundation, 1225 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Brookings Study Group The Brookings Institution has announced the formation of a Study Group on the U.S. Post-Vietnam security role in East Asia. "The end of the Vietnam War," said Kermit Gordon, President of Brookings, "will provide the occasion — and the necessity — for the U.S. to engage in a fundamental review of its security interests and commitments in East Asia. As a contribution to this review, the Brookings Study Group will seek to identify vital U.S. interests in that area and consider what role the United States should play in defense of those interests." The Study Group is composed of twenty-five persons — including members of the Congress, officials of the executive branch, and non-governmental specialists drawn from academic and research institutions. It will meet once every six weeks for about one year, beginning in August 1969, to review and discuss papers on key issues. These papers will be published as a book when the study is completed; some may be issued as occasional papers during the course of the study. They will be the sole responsibility of the study director; members of the group will not be asked to assume responsibility for these findings or to reach a consensus of views.

This is the second Study Group which Brookings has organized to analyze the main policy areas which generate defense requirements. A Study Group on Strategic Armaments is already underway. Another such group, dealing with the U.S. defense connection with Western Europe, may be organized later this year.

Samuel P. Huntington, Professor of Government at Harvard University, is chairman of the East Asia Study Group and academic adviser in the preparation of the study. Paul Warnke, former Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, is serving as vice-chairman of the Study Group.

The Study Director will be Ralph N. Clough, who has joined the Brookings senior staff after twenty-eight years' service with the State Department, here and in Asia, dealing with Asian problems. The Study Group is associated with the Brookings Foreign Policy Studies Program, which is under the direction of Henry Owen.

Belgian Journal Res Publica, founded in 1959, is the journal of the Belgian Institute of Political Science. After a decade of publication, circulation has reached near 2,000, and over 400 articles have been published. Authors of articles have included Raymond Aaron, Maurice Duverger, Bertrand de Jouvenel and Andre Phillippart. The primary concern of the publication is Belgian affairs, foreign and domestic. First issued twice yearly, since 1968 five or six issues have appeared each year. Res Publica includes bibliographical materials and documents as well as articles. Information on subscriptions may be obtained from: Institut Belge de Science Politique, 43, Rue des Champs-Elysees, Bruxelles 5, Belgium.

Ph.D. Programs Analysis The Public Affairs Research Bureau of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois, has recently published a collection of articles on the state of Ph.D. training in political science by Norman Luttbeg and Melvin Kahn. The collection is entitled "The Making of a Political Scientist: An Empirical Analysis of Ph.D. Programs." The first article is an overview of "Ph.D. Training in Political Science" which originally appeared in the August, 1968 issue of the Midwest Journal of Political Science. The second examines "Ph.D. Training Among Political Science Departments with Varying Reputations for Quality," and was delivered at the 1967 meeting of the American Political Science Association. The final article deals with "Empirical Training in Political Science." Copies of the collection are available at a nominal charge from the Bureau.

Urban Affairs Bibliography Urban Affairs Bibliography: A Guide to Literature in the Field has been compiled by A. Lee Fritschler, B. Douglas Harman and Bernard H. Ross, at the School of Government and Public Administration, American University. The 74 page book is available for $1.50 from American University Bookstore, Washington, D.C. 20016.

Metropolitan Bibliography The Public Administration Service has published the fourth in a series of bibliographical material entitled Metropolitan Communities: A Bibliography. This supplement covers the years 1965-1967, and contains approximately 3,000 references. Cost of the volume is $8, from Public Administration Service, 1313 East 60th Street, Chicago, Illinois 60637.

The Public Administration Service was organized as a non-profit corporation in 1933 by national and international organizations of public officials and agencies to provide consultation and other assistance toward the improvement of governmental operations.

California Politics Bibliography The Institute of Governmental Studies, University of California, Berkeley, has issued California Politics and Problems, 1964-1968. A Selective Bibliography. The 33 page book is available for $1 from the Institute. It is a supplement to the previously published bibliography covering 1900-1963. Compiler of the bibliography was D. R. Leister.

Professional Papers Series in Comparative Politics Sage Publications has announced publication of a series of professional papers — too lengthy for journal publication, yet too short for a book — in comparative politics. The series will begin in 1970 under the editorial direction of Harry Eckstein, Princeton University, and Ted Robert Gurr, Northwestern University. Twelve separately bound papers, from 32 to 96 pages in length, will be issued each year. The emphasis will be on original studies of theoretical or empirical significance, but out-of-print classics and translations will be republished occasionally. Subscriptions are $12 annually, with a one-third discount to individuals and a one-half discount to students. For information, write Sage Publications, 275 South Beverly Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90212.

Higher Education Magazine Change magazine, a bimonthly publication of Science and University Affairs, is a journal concerned with problems in higher education, and innovation in dealing with these problems. The magazine is supported by a grant from the Esso Educational Foundation. Subscriptions are $8.50 annually from 59 East 54th Street, New York, 10022.

Information on ICPR The annual meeting of the Inter-university Consortium for Political Research (ICPR) was held at the Institute in late May; representatives from nearly 120 of the member institutions attended. ICPR was created in 1962 as a partnership between the Survey Research Center and other universities, colleges, and nonprofit research organizations. Present membership includes over 130 institutions. Participants in the annual conference, who compose the Committee of Representatives, are chosen by the member institutions. Agenda for the conference included a general business meeting in which the priorities for data collection and archival cooperation were discussed.

Two concurrent seminars were held; one discussing research funding in political science and the other concerned with the use of Consortium data and materials in undergraduate teaching. In a workshop after the seminars, the Consortium staff introduced new representatives to the available facilities.

The Consortium's membership and activities are varied but can best be described as falling into three general areas:

Training. Each summer since its inception the Consortium has sponsored two series of training and research seminars, one designed mainly to give instruction in research method; the other to provide a substantive review of work in specialized research areas.

Providing data for research and for teaching. ICPR maintains a massive archive of electoral, legislative, and behavioral data as well as election statistics and census material which is available for scholarly and teaching purposes.

Consultation. Personnel are made available by SRC and the Consortium for consultation on a wide range of problems, from research design and data collection to procedures for analysis and complex processing of data.

The Consortium tries to make this rich store of data equally available to small as well as large research and teaching facilities, and provide a pool of complex data for those individuals who would not otherwise have access.

Civil Rights Publications

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights issues a variety of publications which may be of special interest to faculty and students in the field of political science for teaching purposes, research, and collateral reading.

The publications, including a quarterly magazine, The Civil Rights Digest, offer significant information on developments in all areas of civil rights interest; results of surveys on particular aspects of civil rights concerns, (the most recent, "For All The People . . . by All The People," examines equal employment opportunity in state and local governments); transcripts of Commission hearings which present in-depth verbatim experiences of racial and ethnic discrimination in various parts of the country; and reports of the Commission's 51 State Advisory Committees which explore civil rights matters in specific communities.

A catalog of these publications may be obtained without charge from the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Office of Information and Publications, 1405 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20425.

Catalogs of Research Libraries

The G. K. Hall Company has announced the publication of the catalogs of the Council on Foreign Relations Library and the Bibliothek fur Zeitgeschichte-Weltkriegsbucherei. The Foreign Relations Library collection contains 55,000 volumes, and the catalog is in dictionary form with 148,000 cards reproduced in nine volumes. The German Contemporary History and World War Library includes 150,000 volumes. The classified catalog has 237,000 cards in 20 volumes; the alphabetical catalog has 171,000 cards in 11 volumes. Information on these catalogs is available from the G. K. Hall Company, 70 Lincoln Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02111.

FPA International Education Study

The Foreign Policy Association has completed its Office of Education funded project, "An Examination of Objectives, Needs and Priorities in International Education in U.S. Secondary and Elementary Schools." The study included a series of conferences and research aimed at defining international education, outlining its potential contribution to education, and investigating the resources needed to implement its place in the curriculum. The "Summary and Recommendations" of the study are available from the FPA at 345 East 46th Street, New York, New York 10017.

Study of Political Parties

A broad range of political leaders, officeholders, political activists, newsmen and scholars will be invited to participate in a comprehensive study of American political parties being undertaken for the Twentieth Century Fund, by John S. Saloma III, Associate Professor of Political Science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Frederick H. Sontag, a research and public relations consultant in Montclair, N.J. The study will address itself to a wide range of questions relating to the structure, organization, finances and campaign techniques of American political parties.

The aim is to produce an objective and critical study that will be published in book form before the 1972 elections. As part of their research program they will conduct interviews with a wide variety of interested and informed citizens. The purpose of the study will be to help make political parties more relevant to new requirements of leadership and effective government in the 70's and to increase the public's understanding of them.

In line with its objective of being comprehensive and including a broad spectrum of opinion, The Study of American Political Parties will examine party organizations from the national to the local level. The Fund's Study of American Political Parties will be headquartered at 857 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139.

USIA Teaching Prospects

Foreign Service Officers of the U.S. Information Agency are available under the Foreign Service early retirement system for teaching appointments in political science, international relations, area studies, communications, and other fields. Many of these officers have higher degrees and previous college teaching experience; all have had extensive personal experience in the overseas information, cultural, and foreign affairs programs of the United States. Optional early retirement and pension after twenty years service can make the transition to college teaching especially attractive to them. For further details, and names of candidates if interested, write to Mr. Howard Garnish, Placement Office, IPT, United States Information Agency, 1776 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20547.

Indiana University Newsletter

Graduates of Indiana University wishing to receive the Department of Political Science newsletter are urged to send their current addresses to Alfred Diamant in the department.

Bass Report The report of the Political Science Panel of the Behavioral and Social Sciences Survey Committee, edited by Heinz Eulau, Stanford University, and James G. March, University of California, Irvine, will be available in January, 1970. The Survey Committee is sponsored by the National Academy of Sciences, which commissioned the survey of academic disciplines as part of the comprehensive survey of the potential and needs for research in the future. Political Science will be published by Prentice-Hall simultaneously in hardback ($5.95) and paper ($1.95).

After surveying the development and current state of political science as a discipline, the report makes a series of recommendations aimed at enhancing research, such as departmental facilities and national study centers, with a discussion of the resources needed to implement these recommendations. The report also discusses government science, and recommends, for example, that the National Science Foundation allocate an annual budget of $3,900,000 to political science research in 1971.

Rhode Island Internships A Rhode Island State Government Internship Program has been established, in which college students have the opportunity to work in state offices as part of their educational experience. The State Internship Bill was introduced by Representative Robert J. McKenna of the political science department at Salve Regina College. Members of the Commission organized to administer the internships include McKenna, Chairman, and Elmer E. Cornwall, University of Rhode Island, Vice-Chairman. Other political science professors involved in the program include Victor L. Profughi, Rhode Island College, and Stephen Wood, University of Rhode Island.

Mapping System Developed William Carolan of the Geography Department, Clark University, has developed a system for presenting population and other areal information on a scaled unit map to portray proportional relationships, such as over-representation or distribution of characteristics by population. Summaries of the technique are available from its developer for utilization by political scientists, or they may arrange to have base maps constructed at Clark University or use maps already constructed there. Those interested in further details should contact William Carolan, Department of Geography, Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts 01610.

National Functional Goals Analysis The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced the publication of "The Allocation of Federal Budget Resources as an Indicator of National Goals and Priorities," by Leonard L. Lederman and Margaret L. Windus. The study is part of a NASA project to place aerospace goals in the context of general national goals, and in fulfilling this purpose develops techniques for defining and measuring national functional goals. The parts of the study are available by writing the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, for the Summary ($1) and Details ($3.75).

Development Aid Film The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has produced a film on the development aid problem entitled "Not Enough." Using India and Thailand for illustration, the film presents the problem of underdeveloped countries attempting to cope with industrial development and population problems. The film is available for rental for $10 per three-day period from Modern Learning Aids, 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10036.

New Ceylon Journal The University of Ceylon will begin publication in January, 1970, of Modern Ceylon Studies, a journal of the social sciences devoted mainly but not exclusively to Ceylon. It will be issued twice a year. Research articles are welcomed. Subscriptions cost $4.80 annually. Managing Editor is P. T. M. Fernando, Department of Sociology, University of Ceylon, Peradeniya, Ceylon.

AAUP Nomination The 1969 Nominating Committee of the American Association of University Professors, chaired by Kramer J. Rohlfleisch and including political scientist George Goodwin, Jr., University of Massachusetts, Boston, has nominated for Second Vice-President of the AAUP Phillip Monypenny of the political science department, University of Illinois.

Israel Election Study Herbert Smith is the author of "Preview to Israel Elections, 1969," available from the Foreign Affairs Department of the American Jewish Committee, 165 East 65th Street, New York, New York 10022. The study is an analysis of political party history and outlook in Israel.

State Legislation Summary The Council of State Governments has published the 1970 edition of Suggested State Legislation, which includes draft legislation directed to current and emerging social and governmental problems of state government. The volume is published every fall to give state lawmakers ample opportunity to make use of draft proposals in approaching legislative sessions. The 212 page publication is available for $5 from the Council at Iron Works Pike, Lexington, Kentucky 40505.

National Goals Research Staff President Nixon has established a National Goals Research Staff as part of the Executive Office of the President, composed of a small staff of social scientists charged with data analysis and projection of societal trends. It will operate under the direction of Leonard Garment, Special Consultant to the President, and will maintain a continuous liaison with Daniel P. Moynihan as Executive Secretary of the Council for Urban Affairs. The staff is intended to bring together research currently being done, rather than conducting research itself or substituting for current research programs. It will report annually on July 4.

New Student Journal The first issue of The New Scholar appeared in April, 1969, as a journal of graduate studies in the social sciences. The journal is a non-profit publication of social science graduate students of the California State Colleges System, with editorial and business offices at San Diego State College, San Diego, California, 92115. It is published twice a year in April and October. Subscription rates are $4 for faculty and individuals, and $3 for students annually. The articles are written by graduate students in the social sciences.

Science, Technology and Society Program Cornell University has formed an interdisciplinary Program on Science, Technology and Society which draws its students, faculty and research workers from all areas of the university including physical sciences, biological sciences, social sciences, engineering, humanities, business and public administration. The purpose of the program is to stimulate teaching and research on the interaction of science and technology with contemporary society. Those interested may receive information or be placed on a mailing list by writing: Program on Science, Technology and Society, 632 Clark Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York 14850.

South Carolina Association Journal The South Carolina Political Science Association has established the South Carolina Journal of Political Science, to be published annually. Editor of the journal is John B. McConaughy, University of South Carolina. The first issue, 1969, includes articles by E. Kenneth Aycock, John B. McConaughy and J. David Palmer, Robert Stoudemire, Donald Weatherbee, Charles B. Pyles, and Raymond A. Moore. Subscriptions are $2 annually, and should be sent to the Editor at the Department of Political Science, University of South Carolina, Columbia, South Carolina 29208. The South Carolina association was founded in 1966, and now numbers 30. Officers for 1969-70 are: President, Fred Dixon, Converse College; Vice-President, Wiley E. Hodges, The Citadel; Secretary-Treasurer, W. T. Nichols, Converse College.

Spong Poll In an effort to increase the rigor and utility of opinion polling by a Senator, two political scientists at the University of Virginia, Michael Mezey and Carolyn Pratt, designed a sample and assisted in the administration of a poll of Virginia college students conducted for Senator William B. Spong, Jr. Thirty colleges and universities in Virginia were covered by the poll, and 650 students were selected from student lists. They were then interviewed by political science students who had been recruited by faculty members. Reports on the poll and the results tabulated from the interviews on questions concerning international, national and university problems are available from Senator Spong's office.

New Journal on Black Politics The Black Politician, a new quarterly journal, has been established by the Center for Urban and Minority Affairs, a bi-partisan non-profit organization in Los Angeles, California. Mervyn M. Dymally is Editor. Regular features of The Black Politician will include articles on the developing political awareness of ethnic groups, profiles of black politicians, a current bibliography of ethnic politics, historical treatments of black politics, and announcements of educational programs for black politicians. The first issue, July, 1969, includes these articles: Kenneth B. Clark, "The Negro Elected Official in the Changing American Scene;" Guy Halverson, "Black Power Defined: Richard Hatcher;" Mervyn Dymally, "The Black Man's Role in American Politics;" George P. Smith, "Black Men and Reconstruction Politics." Subscriptions are $4 annually, from 955 South Western Avenue, Los Angeles, California 90006.

Caucus officers At the recent New York Annual Meeting the Caucus for a New Political Science elected a new executive committee including seven incumbents from the 1968-69 committee who did not fall under the rule limiting terms of office to two years. The members of the 1969-70 committee are:

William W. Adams, William Jewel College; Theodore L. Becker, New York University and University of Hawaii; Morris Blachman, New York University; Philip J. Brenner, Johns Hopkins University; Martin Brownstein, Yale University; William Connolly, University of Massachusetts; James Elden, UCLA; M. Lal Goel, Western Florida; Philip Green, Smith College; Ralph P. Hummel, Fordham University; Dorothy James, Lehman College, CUNY; Judson James, CCNY; Henry Kariel, University of Hawaii; David Kettler, acting chairman, Ohio State University; Katherine Klotzburger, Rutgers University; Louis Lipsitz, University of North Carolina (Chapel Hill); James Petras, Pennsylvania State University; Joan Rothschild, Harvard University; David Underhill, Columbia University; Marshall L. Windmiller, San Francisco State College; and Alan Wolfe, SUNY at Old Westbury.

At an informal meeting of the new Executive Committee after the election, several members agreed to take over a regional and functional division of labor.

Subcommittee on Headquarters Functions: Those in the New York metropolitan area agreed to hold records and treasury at New York University, Department of Politics, 25 Waverley Place, New York, N.Y. Mail should be identified as addressed to The Caucus for a New Political Science, c/o Ted Becker.

Caucus Panels and Papers for the 1970 Convention: David Kettler, 620 City Park Ave., Columbus, Ohio, 43206.

New England Organizing and Recruiting: Joan Rothschild, 1648 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

West Coast Organizing, Recruiting and Preparation for the 1970 Convention: Henry Kariel, Marshall L. Windmiller, James Elden.

APSA-D.C. Liaison: Martin Brownstein, 1514 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Florida Organizing and Recruiting: M. Lal Goel.

Press Relations: Ralph P. Hummel, 937 Victory Blvd., Staten Island, N.Y. (212) 447-5494, evenings; (212) 933-2233, Ext. 568, mornings.

Coordinator of the Caucus Slate for APSA Election: Lewis Lipsitz.

Requests for membership should be addressed to the New York headquarters address. The Caucus will continue to publish a newsletter on its activities and on issues and problems in the profession; contributions should be addressed to Alan Wolfe, 295 Bennett Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Technology and Foreign Affairs

Study An "in depth" study of science, technology and American foreign policy has been instituted by the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on National Security Policy and Scientific Developments. The study, which is expected to take some 18 months to complete, will be conducted by staff personnel of the Library of Congress' Legislative Reference Service. Project director and lead researcher will be Franklin P. Huddle of the Science Policy Research Division. Warren R. Johnston of the Foreign Affairs Division will be associate project director.

The study will be concerned with the operations of the government, particularly the State Department, in dealing with international issues and problems of a scientific nature, with the effects of science and technology on diplomacy, and with diplomatic concerns of international scientific organizations to which the United States belongs.

NCEP shift On August 1, the headquarters of the National Center for Education in Politics moved to The American University campus in Washington, D.C. The Center, which is now a part of the University's School of Government and Public Administration, will focus on improving political education by offering programs designed to improve the teaching of teachers of politics. Through its programs the Center hopes to multiply the opportunities for practical education of young people by incorporating in its seminars and institutes for teachers methods for developing social sciences curricula which emphasize community political involvement. The first programs will be in the field of urban affairs. Later the Center will offer programs in science and government and in the classroom uses of simulation techniques. The director of the Center is Professor A. Lee Fritschler. The new address is: School of Government and Public Administration, The American University; Washington, D.C. 20016.
