BLOODY GOOD

Chivalry, Sacrifice, and the Great War
Allen J. Frantzen

Bloody Good makes an original and lasting contribution to the vast literature about World War I. Ranging from medieval England to the modern era, Frantzen explores the sacrificial culture embodied in chivalric codes of battle and shows how they profoundly shaped ideas of heroism during the conflict. This is a moving and impeccably written book that will enlarge our understanding of the Great War.” —Thomas Bestul, University of Illinois at Chicago

THE FRIEND

Alan Bray

“In this ambitious and wide ranging book, Alan Bray examines ceremonies of same-sex union, letters between friends, literary works, and funerary monuments to consider representations of friendship in England from 1000 to 1800 AD. Masterfully weaving his sources together, Bray joins the likes of Bosby and Duffy in the important enterprise of revealing how much the English post-Renaissance and post-Reformation imagination draws on its Catholic past. The Friend is an important work of scholarship that is sure to attract a large readership.” —Ruth Vanita, University of Montana

THE CLERK'S TALE

Young Men and Moral Life in Nineteenth-Century America
Thomas Augst

“Sophisticated but accessible, incisive but fair-minded, The Clerk's Tale gives a human face to middle-class literary culture of the nineteenth century, revealing more fully and subtly than any previous study the actual reading practices and responses to oratorical performance of earnest young American men. This book should be of much interest to all students of nineteenth-century U. S. cultural history.” —Lawrence Buell, Harvard University

JUREK BECKER

A Life in Five Worlds
Sander L. Gilman

“Jurek Becker occupied a unique niche in the complex literary landscape of the German Democratic Republic. His life and work were a constantly evolving tightrope act: between Pole and Jew, between Jew and German, between East and West Germany, between communism and dissidence, between high literary ambitions and the demands of writing for film and television. Sander Gilman, who can look back on a thirty-year friendship with Becker, approaches his subject in this book with admirable delicacy and firmness. Written with instinctual insight and the verve of an eyewitness, Jurek Becker: A Life in Five Worlds is a compelling and indispensable biography.” —Leo Lensing, Wesleyan University

READING THE EAST INDIA COMPANY, 1720–1840

Colonial Currencies of Gender
Betty Joseph

“The colonial archive, the repository for East India Company documents, yields up its secrets to Betty Joseph’s sleuthing eye to reveal original readings of colonial encounters. Replete with fascinating details of calicoes and bungalows, sati and the Black Hole, this engrossing tale inventories colonialism’s manipulation of female subjects as well as their unexpected agency in response. Reading the East India Company is a must-read for anyone interested in colonialism’s checkered history.” —Felicity Nussbaum, editor of The Global Eighteenth Century

AGED BY CULTURE

Margaret Morganroth Gullette

“Aged by Culture, among the first theoretically informed contributions to this field, eloquently argues for taking age seriously and makes an equally compelling case for establishing a new interdisciplinary field of age studies. Into a canon drawn widely from the humanities and social sciences, Gullette injects a very engaging personal account of the reasons for her own involvement.” —Stanley Aronowitz, City University of New York

This new anthology contains the tools students need to read, comprehend, and enjoy the best the world has to offer — including thematic groupings of literature from all over the world, social and historical contexts, comparative timelines, abundant maps, hundreds of images, and much more. It's the first anthology to acknowledge the wide geographical and chronological range of material students are being asked to cover in the world literature course — and then do something about it.

- Six paperback books — available in two packages or as individual texts — correspond to the six periods most commonly taught. Each book features a striking two-color design that showcases the literature, highlights pedagogical features, and sets off the many maps and illustrations.
- Superb collection of complete longer works, plays, prose, and poems represents the best literature of all time available in English or English translations from around the globe. Unique “In the World” clusters emphasize social and historical contexts.
- Practical and accessible editorial apparatus helps students understand what they read and allows them to place literature in a larger context. Resources inside the anthology include

Time and Place boxes, Bibliographies, Connections questions, and a Glossary of Literary and Historical Terms. An extensive Instructor's Manual and a rich Web site, World Literature Online, provide additional support.
