TIME AND NARRATIVE

Volume 1

Paul Ricoeur

Translated by Kathleen McLaughlin
and David Pellauer

This volume, an extension of The Rule of Metaphor, is concerned with the creation of meaning at the textual level in both historical writing and fiction. Volume 1 includes Ricoeur's theories of time and plot and of mimesis, as well as a comprehensive critique of modern discussions of historical knowledge, understanding, and writing.

PROPHETIC STRAIN

The Greater Lyric in the Eighteenth Century

Anne Williams

In this masterly study of the rise of the lyric, we see, for the first time, a genuine poetic tradition emerge from the tangled web of eighteenth-century "neoclassicism" and "preromanticism." The works discussed here are "greater lyrics" not just in length but in the thematic scope achieved through their oddly mixed forms.

WHEN WORDS LOSE THEIR MEANING

Constitutions and Reconstitutions of Language, Character, and Community

James Boyd White

Through a series of fresh readings of texts ranging from the Iliad to the U.S. Constitution, White examines the relationship between an individual mind and its language and culture, as well as the "textual community" established between writer and audience. "A book that changes our way of reading seven of our greatest classics from the Iliad to Jane Austen's Emma is a marvelous work and a wonder." — Wayne C. Booth

THE POETICS OF YVES BONNEFOY

John T. Naughton

This first major study of Bonnefoy written in English provides an overview of his entire literary career. Naughton situates Bonnefoy in the context of the existential philosophical tradition that nurtured him and in the poetic and artistic tradition that includes Dante and Shakespeare, Piero and Poussin, Baudelaire and Rimbaud.

VICTORIAN AND MODERN POETICS

Carol T. Christ

This book reasserts the place of Victorian poetry in the progression from Romantic to Modern and demonstrates that the break between the Victorians and the Modernists has been exaggerated. Focusing on Yeats, Eliot, and Pound among the Moderns and Tennyson, Arnold, and Browning among the Victorians, Christ handles skillfully the poetry and criticism of more than a century of English literary history.

EXPLODING POETRY

Baudelaire/Rimbaud

Georges Poulet

Translated and with an Introduction by Françoise Meltzer

"This artfully translated volume inspires as much thought as it reveals. Several chapters read like prose poems, demonstrating Poulet's sensitive and masterly approach to French literature." — Library Journal

THE LETTERS OF MARGARET FULLER

Volume III: 1842–1844

Edited by ROBERT N. HUDSPETH. The third volume of this major new series brings together the letters Fuller wrote during an important transitional period in her career as a writer—her move to New York where she gradually abandoned her career as an editor and literary reviewer and turned to social criticism. Reviewing the first two volumes of the series, The N.Y. Times Book Review said: "A triumph. . . . It brings back to the forefront a figure who had belonged there all along." 11 b&w illustrations. $25.00

NOVELS, READERS, AND REVIEWERS

Responses to Fiction in Antebellum America

By NINA BAYM. This book describes and characterizes responses of American readers to fiction in the generation before the Civil War. It is based on close examination of the reviews of both American and European novels that appeared in major American periodicals during the years 1840–1860 and offers compelling evidence for the existence of a veritable novel industry and a vast audience for fiction in this period. $24.95

OPERA

The Extravagant Art

By HERBERT LINDENBERGER. Applying to musical drama the methods and insights of literary criticism, this wide-ranging book defines opera as a genre and as a phenomenon in the history of culture. "Thoroughly well informed, both musically and from the literary point of view. Lindenberger's aesthetic speculations lead to novel and valid insights."—Steven Paul Scher, Dartmouth College. $25.00

THEORIES OF THE THEATRE

A Historical and Critical Survey, from the Greeks to the Present

By MARVIN CARLSON. "This book is an impressive piece of work. Carlson has given not just the highlights and major figures, not just a condensation of the broad currents and main outlines, but a thorough account of all significant theories of the theatre."—Daniel Gerould, City University of New York. $45.00

CHAUCER AND THE POETS

An Essay on Troilus and Criseyde

By WINTHROP WETHERBEE. This sensitive reading of Chaucer's masterpiece redefines the nature of his poetic vision. Using as a starting point Chaucer's profound admiration of Dante and the classical poets, Wetherbee sees the Troilus as much more than a courtly treatment of an event in ancient history—it is, he asserts, a major statement about the poetic tradition out of which it comes. $22.50

HENRY JAMES AND THE ART OF POWER

By MARK SELTZER. Broadly interdisciplinary in his approach and boldly original in his findings, Seltzer here attempts to revise the traditional view of the politics of the novel through a reading of texts by Henry James. This book will appeal to anyone interested in James, in the thought of Michel Foucault, and in the politics of literary theory. $19.95
