FROM BUCHNER TO BECKETT:
Dramatic Theory and the Modes
of Tragic Drama

Alfred Schwarz

Professor Schwarz's constant attention to the theoretical writings of the dramatists whose work he scrutinizes enables him to range freely and intelligently over English, American, and Continental drama of the last 150 years. Schwarz puts the modes of tragic drama plainly and comprehensibly before the reader in a book which is interesting and helpful to playgoer, student, and teacher alike.

"In his preface and first chapter, Schwarz succinctly surveys not only recent studies of tragic drama but also frequently neglected 19th-century theories of drama. Moreover, he writes lucidly, and his judgments of individual plays are both precise and perceptive. . ."—Choice

A New Approach To Graduate Drama

Theatre changes. So do standards and methods of research, publication, teaching and employment. The Graduate Department of Drama, which offers masters and doctoral research exclusively, regularly revises its curriculum to emphasize responsible study of the performing arts. It now offers new courses and concentration in these areas:

DANCE PERFORMANCE

Dance study, in the context of the performing arts, is designed for independent-minded dance scholars concerned to explore new methods of research which deal responsibly with present dance conditions and put the past in a useful perspective. Seminar courses are led by leading dance scholars and critics who organize study and discussion to cover particular figures, movements and periods. The area is expanding to provide increased doctoral concentration. Applicants should write the Chairman for full details and new course offerings.

POPULAR PERFORMANCE

Folk and popular entertainment (including modern media) have constituted a culturally and artistically vital alternative theatre. The need to study such forms is now emphasized by their influence on contemporary performance. This concentration studies the history of traditional forms, the relating of such practice to theatre history, and the place of folk and popular entertainment in contemporary performance.

PERFORMANCE THEORY

Theatre and social science scholars are increasingly concerned with the continuum from human action and ritual to formal performance in all societies. Extensive interdisciplinary study includes field work and theory that relate to concepts of social and theatrical performance, in the dimensions of ritual, public ceremony, and "life events." Courses are planned in the roots of art, liminality, and collective performance methods, as well as workshops in converging techniques of performance and therapy.

PERFORMANCE WRITING AND RESEARCH

Acquired knowledge in performing arts may be published in a variety of media. Research courses cover bibliography, archival documentation, textual study and interview methods, as well as description of performance practice. Applied courses emphasize editorial methods and standards for reviewing, criticism, features, scholarly articles, books and media.

CONTEMPORARY PERFORMANCE

Contemporary theatre has been shaped more significantly through performance theory and practice than through dramatic literature. Courses cover the practice, theory and methods, and institutional structure of contemporary performance in the fullest possible range, including commercial theatre, experimental and alternative theatre, and related study in dance and popular entertainment.

PERFORMING ARTS ARCHIVES

Research in performing arts extends beyond published materials. Archives and collections exist in theatre, dance, film, broadcasting, recording. Folk and popular entertainment require particular research and curatorial techniques, rarely available through graduate study. Professional instruction will be offered in the acquisition, cataloguing, and curatorial maintenance of performing arts collections.

IS OFFERING AN ALTERNATIVE PROGRAM IN:

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

The Department of Drama, Undergraduate, which offers a B.F.A. degree in acting, is pleased to announce an alternative program of study with the Experimental Theatre Wing. A limited number of students will have the opportunity to work intimately with leading experimental theatre groups in a two-year program designed for students who have completed two years of foundation work with one of the three professional studios associated with our Department: Stella Adler Conservatory of Acting, Circle in the Square Theatre School, and The Lee Strasberg Theatre Institute. The ETW is also open to students who have studied acting elsewhere and who wish to transfer into our Department. Students in the ETW will work in unique acting, voice and movement workshops taught from the point of view of members from each of the following experimental theatre groups: The Performance Group (best known for explorations of audience participation and environmental theatre), The Ridiculous Theatrical Company (specializing in Commedia dell'arte), Mabou Mines (known for conceptual adaptations of Beckett and experiments with new music and movement), Chi-Kanji and original members of the Open Theater—each known for uniquely experimental approaches to ensemble acting. In addition to studying with the groups, students will be expected to take dramatic literature, theatre history (including studies in the avant-garde), and performance theory courses offered through the Department. The program also includes summer workshops with the Iowa Theater Lab and the Bread and Puppet Theater.

Since the nature of the groups involves frequent international tours, the order and availability of the groups varies each semester. For each year's schedule and further information contact:

The School of the Arts Announces a New Program in Dramatic Writing.

Beginning in the fall of 1980, dramatic writing will take its place along with film, television, and drama as a major course of study in the School of the Arts at New York University.

The dramatic text is enjoying a resurgence of interest. An increasing demand for new writers has encouraged the School to design this specialized curriculum focused on the writer's skills, problems, and opportunities.

A unique advantage for the writer is the closeness of this new program to the School's established programs in performance and production. Participation in production is a vital part of the writing curriculum. Ample opportunity exists to develop works in progress in staged readings and on videotape as well as on the page.

In the School of the Arts tradition, all faculty members are active, working professionals—writers, producers, and editors. Students will also have the benefit of advice, counsel, and criticism from distinguished members of New York's artistic community.

A limited number of students will be accepted in both the Bachelor of Fine Arts and Master of Fine Arts programs. For more information, return the coupon below or call (212) 598-3722.

The theater!

The Abbey, Ireland's National Theater

HUGH HUNT. Based in part on minute books and other classified documents in the theater's archives, this first authorized history of the Abbey Theater in over 25 years provides a unique chronicle of the renowned institution's tempestuous growth, along with first-hand portraits of the Abbey's founders and contributors, including W. B. Yeats, Lady Gregory, J. M. Synge, and "A. E." (George Russell).

Illus., 306 pages, $18.95

Twentieth-Century Russian Drama

From Gorky to the Present

HAROLD B. SEGEL. This first survey in English of Russian drama after Chekhov covers every major aspect of Russian drama in this century, including the work of Andreev, Bely, Blok, Sologub, Mayakovsky, Tsvetaeva, Olesha, Solzhenitsyn, and many others.

Illus., 502 pages, $27.50 cloth, $12.00 paper

Modern Japanese Drama

An Anthology

TED T. TAKAYA. "Little modern Japanese drama has been translated, so this book is a breakthrough. Five very contemporary plays are presented . . . ranging from Mishima's modern Nō form, through Yashiro's realistic and earthy biography, to Betsuyaku's near-absurd portrayal of human existence."—Library Journal

Illus., 424 pages, $17.50

Metafictional Characters in Modern Drama

JUNE SCHLUETER. "Schlueter chronologically examines the theme of double exposure and double consciousness in Pirandello, Genet, Beckett, Weiss, Albee, Stoppard, and Handke. Her book is so well prepared that it is a pleasure to swallow. The author, to use theater talk, 'does nice work.'"—Library Journal 143 pages, $15.00

The Habima – Israel's National Theater, 1917-1977

A Study of Cultural Nationalism

EMANUEL LEVY. This unique illustrated history follows the political, ideological, and artistic accomplishments of the Habima over its brilliant sixty-year career. More than the story of Israel's state theater, it is a stirring chronicle of Israel itself, reflected in the artistry and dedication of a community born of the Russian Revolution and nurtured in Stanislavsky's Moscow Art Theater.

Illus., 356 pages, $22.50
