Why Women
Don't Run for Office

JENNIFER L. LAWLESS

THE LATEST EDITION OF A SEMINAL WORK

"This latest work by Lawless and Fox is an all-to-rare thing in social sciences - authors returning again and again to important questions and examining those questions over time, in different contexts, and during different political periods."

KATHY DOLAN, distinguished professor at University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, and author of When Does Gender Matter?

"Despite significant social and political change, women are still much less likely to run for office than men - just as was true two decades ago. Fox and Lawless' original research created an agenda for understanding women's underrepresentation in American politics, and this new book underscores how their insights remain as vital today as ever."

DANNY HAYES, George Washington University, and co-author of Women on the Run: Gender, Media, and Political Campaigns in a Polarized Era

Why RIS?

Review of International Studies (RIS) publishes high-quality research that makes significant contributions to conversations about global politics, broadly defined. We encourage submissions that are attentive to historical and contemporary dynamics of global politics and their effects. We welcome theoretically informed, empirically rich, and methodologically rigorous articles that significantly advance scholarship, including interdisciplinary research. RIS strives to be the place where a range of perspectives can flourish, where outstanding work is showcased and debated, and where the voices in those debates are drawn from a global community.

Why publish with Review of International Studies?

- RIS is a journal with an established global reputation for high quality scholarship.
- We welcome original research on global politics regardless of theoretical perspective or methodology.
- We consider all research on the basis of its contribution regardless of theoretical orientation or empirical focus.
- RIS aims to include underrepresented communities and research.
- We will promote your article widely across different platforms
