

The Text of the Septuagint Its Corruptions and their Emendations

the late PETER WALTERS
(formerly Katz)

Edited by D. W. GOODING

A detailed and comprehensive study of the textual problems posed by the Septuagint (the Greek version of the Hebrew Bible). The Septuagint is the one comprehensive body of Greek writings that has yet to be thoroughly edited and emended. It has been reproduced for centuries in much the same corrupt form. However, a series of major editions together with the development of the understanding of Hellenistic Greek from inscriptional and papyrological evidence, have now prepared the ground for a full critical edition.

The present work is a detailed study of the grammatical corruptions and semitisms in the LXX and is intended to stand as the prolegomenon to such a full edition. £10.60 net

The Passion Narrative of St Luke A Critical and Historical Investigation

VINCENT TAYLOR

Edited by OWEN E. EVANS

A detailed study of the Passion Narrative in Luke and its possible source in 'Proto-Luke', hypothesized as an authority which was as old as Mark but independent of it and which preserved the account of the death and resurrection of Jesus given by the first Christians.

This is the last of the late Vincent Taylor's many notable contributions to New Testament scholarship and to the controversy about the arguments in favour of a non-Markan basis for Luke. He concludes that Luke used (in this part of the Gospel at least) a special source. £3.80 net
