Philip's Phoenix

Mary Sidney, Countess of Pembroke

MARGARET P. HANNAY, Siena College

Earlier studies have portrayed Mary Sidney as a demure, retiring woman. In this biography, Hannay shows that she was actually an outspoken and dynamic figure. A phoenix, rising from her brother's ashes, she transcended gender restrictions by publishing her brother's work, writing and translating, assuming his role as literary patron, and supporting the cause for which he died.

1989 304 pp.; illus. $29.95

Samuel Johnson's Attitude to the Arts

MORRIS R. BROWNELL, University of Nevada, Reno

This book challenges the traditional view that Johnson knew and cared little about the fine arts. Brownell demonstrates that Johnson's repeated expressions of disgust for the arts were part of a Socratic pretense designed to tease and challenge his contemporaries.

1989 240 pp.; 34 illus. $64.00

Sport and the British

RICHARD HOLT, University of Stirling

This lively history of British sport since 1800 goes beyond a few great names and moments to explain how sports have changed, what they have meant to ordinary people, and what is especially distinctive about British sport in particular. (Oxford Studies in Social History)

May 1989 408 pp.; illus. $39.95

William Plomer

A Biography

PETER F. ALEXANDER, University of New South Wales

Dealing frankly with all areas of Plomer's private and professional life, this book looks at his success at bringing such authors as Nabokov and Ian Fleming to prominence, his work as editor of Francis Kilvert's diaries, his librettos for Benjamin Britten's operas, and his other literary works, which include five novels and ten volumes of verse.

1989 408 pp.; illus. $29.95

Anglo-Saxon England

Third Edition

SIR FRANK STENTON, formerly of Reading University

"For a broad and balanced survey of every aspect of Anglo-Saxon society in the movement of five hundred years there is nothing to approach Professor Stenton's book."—Times Literary Supplement. (Oxford History of England Volume 2)

1989 816 pp.; paper $17.95

The Mediterranean Passion

Victorians and Edwardians in the South

JOHN PEMBLE, University of Bristol

"Delightful.... Pemble surveys a variety of attitudes and experiences of 'the leisured, the literary, and the artistic' as they took to the Mediterranean world in search of 'museums, sanatoria, and asylums'.... Convincing as well as enjoyable."—Choice

THE OTHER ECONOMY

Pastoral Husbandry on a Medieval Estate

KATHLEEN BIDDICK

While the cereal agriculture of medieval Europe has been studied exhaustively, the pastoral resources and livestock husbandry of medieval estates have been seriously neglected. Biddick's examination of one estate, during several decades before and after 1100 and the first decade after 1300, brings a new balance to the subject of the medieval economy. $30.00

VOYAGES OF DISCOVERY

Captain Cook and the Exploration of the Pacific

LYNNE WITHEY

New in paper—"The special strength of Withey's treatment of Cook's story, apart from her exceptional narrative skill, is to fix the voyages in the scientific, strategic and literary settings of their time."

Peasants and Kings

History Titles for Spring

Arthur: The King in the West

R.W. Dunning

Dunning traces the emerging legends of Arthur and connects them with another series of tales, those surrounding the ancient Abbey of Glastonbury.

1988/168 pp./ISBN 0-312-02722-2 $35.00

The Hound and the Hawk

The Art of Medieval Hunting

John Cummins

"This is a splendid book. It is a scholarly, admirably written account of the techniques and elaborate rituals of medieval hunting from that of the noble deer to the despised badger." — Observer

1989/316 pp./ISBN 0-312-02716-8 $29.95

The Birthpangs of Protestant England

Religious and Cultural Change in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries

Patrick Collinson

Historians have always known that the English Reformation was more than a simple change of religious belief and practice. Collinson investigates implications of the Reformation for the town, the culture and family structure in the 1500s-1600s.

1988/202 pp./ISBN 0-312-02366-9 $39.95

The Wars of the Roses

A.J. Pollard

British History in Perspective

In a stimulating reevaluation of this dramatic period, A.J. Pollard suggests that the Wars of the Roses should be restored to their rightful place as major civil wars in which the crown itself was the prize for the winning faction.

1988/148 pp./ISBN 0-312-02466-5 $35.00 cl.

ISBN 0-312-02467-3 $12.95 pb.

The Victorian Peasant

Richard Heath; edited by Keith Dockray

The author, a Victorian social journalist, collected stories and anecdotes from poor British laborers to document the plight of the poor in the nineteenth century. This new abridged volume contains 48 photographs and will prove to be an essential addition to the literature of Victorian society.
