GENERAL APPROACH

Authors are asked to bear in mind the nature of the readership when writing their contribution. In particular, care should be taken to draw out the implications of the analysis for readers interested in other policy fields, other countries and other disciplines. Jargon specific to a particular discipline should be avoided, and definitions should be provided for words which might be unfamiliar to many readers.

It should be borne in mind that some readers may not be familiar with complex statistical methodology. Accordingly, verbal statements of major findings should always be included. Statistical points can be discussed in notes. Complex statistical or methodological points might merit an appendix. Where you feel that an understanding of the approach used is important in interpreting the substantive findings it might be advisable to explain this in terms comprehensible to the non-specialist in a 'box' which can be placed at the appropriate point in the text.

Similarly, while the editor recognizes the importance of work that proceeds deductively from high-level theoretical abstractions, articles for this Journal will be expected to show clearly what their substantive significance is in terms of issues arising in a governmental context.

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPT

The entire manuscript, including footnotes and references, should be typed double-spaced on one side only of A4 sized paper, with a left-hand margin of at least 1½ inches (4½ cm). Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

The title only should appear on the next page, which should contain an abstract of the article of not more than 150 words.

STYLE

Spelling, capitalization and punctuation should be consistent within each article. Detailed advice on all matters of style is contained in Judith Butcher's book, Copyediting, Cambridge University Press (1975).

Headings of not more than two grades should be used and they should be typed on separate lines.

Tables and Figures should be numbered consecutively in separate series. Each table or figure should be typed or drawn on a separate sheet. Every table or figure should have a title or caption and at least one reference in the text to indicate its approximate location.

Notes should be avoided wherever possible. Notes should not be used for bibliographic references (see below). When they must occur, notes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article. They will be printed grouped together at the end of the article as endnotes. Notes should be typed in a single list at the end of the paper, starting on a new page.

Bibliographic citations in the text must include the author's surname and year of publication and may include page references. Complete bibliographic information for each citation should be included in the list of references at the end of the paper. Examples of correct styling for bibliographic citation where the author's name is mentioned in the text are Alford (1975), Biller (1976, 136-7), May and Wildavsky (1978), Ostrom, Parks and Whitaker (1978) and subsequently Ostrom et al. (1978). Otherwise, use, e.g. (Biller, 1976, 136-7).

References should be typed in alphabetical order in a single list at the end of the paper, starting on a new page, using the style of the following examples:

- Alford, R. (1975) Health Care Politics. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
Biller, R. (1976) On tolerating policy and organizational termination: some design considerations, Policy Sciences, 7, 133-49.
Campbell, D. (1971) Reforms as experiments. In F. Caro (ed.), Readings in Evaluation Research. New York: Russell Sage.
May, J. and A. Wildavsky (eds.) (1978) The Policy Cycle. Beverly Hills: Sage.

COPYEDITING AND PROOFREADING OF THE MANUSCRIPT

The editor and publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proof all items accepted for publication. Authors will review their copyedited manuscripts only if substantial changes have been made. The editor may find it necessary to return for rewording or retyping manuscripts which do not conform to the requirements about style and typing.

Galley proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only. Authors must notify the editorial office of any corrections within one week of receipt or approval will be assumed.

Submission of an article or other item implies that it has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material (such as quotations or illustrations) for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors of material accepted for publication will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press.

Each author will receive 50 offprints of his article without charge. Additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.
