

The Muse Learns to Write

Reflections on Orality and Literacy from Antiquity to the Present
Eric A. Havelock

"Fresh insights into the orality-literacy shift in human consciousness from one who has long been studying this shift in ancient Greece and has now brought his vast learning and reflections to bear on our own times. This book is for a wide audience and calls for thoroughly rethinking current views on language, thought, and society from classical scholarship through modern philosophy, anthropology, and poststructuralism." —Walter J. Ong, S.J. $16.00

The Elizabethan Club of Yale University and Its Library

Stephen Parks
Introduction by Alan Bell

Yale University's Elizabethan Club is the home of an outstanding collection of rare editions of early English literature, including the four Folios of Shakespeare, the finest of the four known copies of Venus and Adonis, and the unique copy of the first Troilus and Cressida. This volume by Stephen Parks makes available for the first time a detailed bibliographical catalogue of the collection, including full details of provenance, binding, and condition of each of the books. Men/Women of Letters edited by Charles A. Porter

In this volume a dozen critics and editors present results of recent inquiry into the nature and functioning of the letter. Uniting their observations are a number of common concerns: among them, the letter as "object" as well as "message"; the letter as a confrontation of spontaneous expression with fixed form; the surprising difficulties and even more surprising results of assembling independent letters into a correspondence. $12.95

Transcendentalism as a Social Movement, 1830-1850

Anne C. Rose

Anne C. Rose challenges the interpretation that Emerson, Fuller, Bronson Alcott, Elizabeth Peabody, and other men and women of this group were doctrinaire individualists significant primarily for their thought. Instead she argues that they were passionately committed to finding answers to social and ethical issues.

"A worthy and welcome undertaking. . . . Rose deserves to be read attentively." —Lawrence Buell, American Literature Winner of the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic Best Book of the Year Award, 1981 $11.95

OUTSTANDING NEW BOOKS

JOHN STEINBECK'S FICTION

The Aesthetics of the Road Taken

By John H. Timmerman

Steinbeck readers and scholars alike will find in this book insightful commentary on the Nobel Prize winner as literary draftsman, a subject less often explored than his role in the development of America's post-Depression social conscience. $22.50

MODERN TRAGICOMEDY AND THE BRITISH TRADITION

By Richard Dutton

This introduction to modern tragicomedy treats a selection of major dramatists—Beckett, Pinter, Stoppard, Albee, and Storey—in a new way, rejecting the terminology of the theater of the absurd.

"Dutton's thesis is well argued, and it deserves to be read."—Ruby Cohn, University of California, Davis. $25.00

THEMES IN ROMAN SATIRE

By Niall Rudd

This is a different kind of book on the Roman satirists—one that discusses particular themes common to them all instead of treating the writers one by one—illustrating the satirists' historical settings, offering a plethora of relevant quotations and examples, and providing readers with solid bases for comparisons. $27.50

The Flesh Made Word

Female Figures and Women's Bodies

HELENA MICHIE, Brandeis University

This provocative new work looks at how women's bodies are portrayed in a variety of Victorian literary and non-literary genres—from paintings, poems, and novels, to etiquette books, sex manuals and pornography. Making use of feminist, poststructuralist, and psychoanalytic accounts of the future of women and the relation of the body to the text, The Flesh Made Word offers fresh readings of works by writers as diverse as the Brontës, Dickens, Eliot, Hardy, Adrienne Rich, Olga Brouman, Audre Lorde, and Louise Gluck.

Acts of Naming

The Family Plot in Fiction

MICHAEL RAGUSSIS, Georgetown University

"An engrossing and powerful book of real importance. Ragussis deals with a wide range of material and, even more impressively, with a theoretical model that never seems imposed and that accommodates issues of identity, power, gender, and erotics. The readings of classic novels are always fresh and imaginative, never merely ingenious."—James R. Kincaid, University of Colorado, Boulder. Providing the first comprehensive study of names and naming in fiction, Ragussis rereads the novelistic tradition to show that acts of naming lie at the center of fictional plots from the 18th century to the present.

The Early Career of Samuel Johnson

THOMAS KAMINSKI, Loyola University of Chicago

"There have been other, more general surveys . . . but none sifts the material so persistently and to such a fine point. It will be the book for Johnson scholars to consult on such matters as what Johnson was writing or earning at any given date . . . It is sure to be welcomed by scholars."

—Lawrence Lipking, Chester Tripp Professor of Humanities, Northwestern University. Making considerable use of recent historical scholarship on publishing and the booktrade in general, this study provides a clearer picture of Johnson's early career as a writer-for-hire, including his aborted translation of Sarpi, his first attempt to edit Shakespeare, and his work for Edward Cave as an editor of the Gentleman's Magazine.

A Rational Millennium

Puritan Utopias of Seventeenth-Century England and America

JAMES HOLSTUN, University of Vermont

Taking a new approach to the history of utopia, this volume combines the political study of literary form with the literary study of political rhetoric. After arguing that early modern utopists, both literary and non-literary, attempt to reshape displaced populations, Holstun concentrates on two utopian projects of the mid-17th century: the political platforms and Algonquian "praying towns" of John Eliot in Massachusetts and the republican political theory of James Harrington in Protectorate England. Moving between these projects and modern analyses of rationalization, he shows that Puritan utopia shares the modern Western longing for universal social discipline and that it envisions this discipline as the rational means to the Millennium.

Poetic License

Authority and Authorship in Medieval and Renaissance Contexts

JACQUELINE T. MILLER, Rutgers University

Poetic License investigates the related demands for creative autonomy and authoritative sanction in medieval and Renaissance literature, focusing on the ways the issues are shaped by individual writers as well as on the form they take in different poetic frameworks. In particular, it examines the problem of authority in the medieval dream-vision, in allegory, and in the Renaissance sonnet cycle, taking as its major examples Chaucer's House of Fame, Spenser's Faerie Queene, and the sonnet sequences of Sidney and Spenser.

The Oxford Anthology of Poetry in English

General Editor: M.L.ROSENTHAL, New York University

Editors: BERYL ROWLAND, York University; A. KENT HEATT, University of Western Ontario; HOWARD WEINBROT, University of Wisconsin; V.A. DE LUCA, University of Toronto; M.L. ROSENTHAL, New York University; and ROSEMARY SULLIVAN, University of Toronto

Ranging chronologically from the Old English epic Beowulf to recent work by such poets as Margaret Atwood and Seamus Heaney, The Oxford Anthology of Poetry in English presents the key poems in the English poetic tradition, focusing on work by major figures, with selective treatment of significant minor writers. The editors have attempted to select, from the finest poetry written in English, those works which best reflect the period of their composition, demonstrate the development of a genre or mode, illustrate significant aspects of the individual poet's craft, or speak to the 20th-century sensibility. Every effort has been made to print each poem in its entirety, and the few exceptions are self-contained and are introduced by short notes explaining the overall context.

Features:

- Detailed headnotes, written by experts and completely in tune with modern scholarship, which describe historical periods, particular genres, and the lives and achievements of each poet
- An introductory chapter on poetics, plus an extensive essay on prosody by Sally Gall, a scholar specializing in poetic theory
- Emphasis on major poets, with selective representation of minor writers
- Special in-depth treatment of modern poets

Intended for survey and genre courses, The Oxford Anthology of Poetry in English provides the basic texts, the historical background, and an understanding of fundamentals needed to enhance the student's appreciation of poetry and poetics.

The Practical Tutor

EMILY MEYER and LOUISE Z. SMITH, both of the University of Massachusetts, Boston

This down-to-earth guide to tutoring is designed for those who lack formal pedagogical training in composition, including undergraduate tutors, graduate teaching assistants, novice teachers, and anyone planning a teaching career. It analyzes writers' compositions and provides sample dialogues between tutors and writers, indicating in the most concrete terms how to talk with writers, how to formulate questions that will spur them to make their own corrections, and how to help them write critically and independently. In addition, the handbook points out issues that frequently arise in the writing process, explores typical writing problems and their causes, and summarizes recent research and thinking in the field of composition.

Elements of Literature

Essay • Fiction • Poetry • Drama • Film

Third Edition

Edited by ROBERT SCHOLLES, Brown University, CARL H. KLAUS, University of Iowa, NANCY R. COMLEY, Queens College, City University of New York, and MICHAEL SILVERMAN, Brown University

Elements of Literature provides the most thorough and up-to-date coverage of the major forms of literature available in one volume. Spanning the essay, fiction, poetry, drama, and film, the anthology features a survey of the historical development of each form, brief biographies of the authors, lively introductions, and a clear, concise editorial apparatus. In addition, the editors have added eighteen new writers—among them Raymond Carver and Russell Baker—and twenty new works by authors already represented in previous editions.

A complimentary instructor's manual is available.

Writing Prose

Techniques and Purposes

Sixth Edition

THOMAS S. KANE and LEONARD J. PETERS, both formerly of the University of Connecticut at Waterbury

The sixth edition of this extremely popular collection of prose examples by celebrated essayists, journalists, and fiction writers has been updated throughout—more than a third of the selections are new—and its ten sections have been reorganized to make the book even easier to use. Section titles now speak directly to students' concerns, and two sections, "Writing About Yourself" and "Writing About Ideas and Beliefs," have been substantially reworked. The text features helpful introductions to each piece, questions on precise matters of prose style and diction, and a helpful glossary that offers clear, concise explanations of terms every writer needs to know.

Medieval Women's Visionary Literature

Edited by ELIZABETH ALVILDA PETROFF, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

These pages capture a thousand years of medieval women's visionary writing, from late antiquity to the 15th century. Written by hermits, recluses, wives, mothers, wandering teachers, founders of religious communities, and reformers, the selections reveal how medieval women felt about their lives, the kind of education they received, how they perceived the religion of the time, and why the ascetic life attracted them.

Joyce's Book of the Dark

FINNEGANS WAKE

John Bishop

Finnegans Wake is perhaps the most difficult and willfully obscure piece in all of modern literature, a book written in polyglottal puns that continues to baffle not only lay readers but, in large part, Joyceans as well. Here, in twelve chapters, John Bishop unravels Joyce's obscurities, revealing the Wake more clearly than anyone has done before, making accessible to all readers a great work of Western literature, a key to our very understanding of postmodernism.

HUME AND THE FORMATION OF A LITERARY CAREER

Jerome Christensen

In reconstructing the career of David Hume, Jerome Christensen develops a prototype for a post-structuralist biography. He is able to reconstruct Hume's career by deconstructing his canonical "life." Students and scholars of eighteenth-century English literature, political theory and history, philosophy, and intellectual history will welcome this refreshing and challenging view of Hume and his times.

The Making of English Reading Audiences, 1790-1832

Jon P. Klancher

The author draws a new picture of the Romantic era in England by showing the reading patterns, interpretive frameworks, and social-political relations of new reading audiences being formed between 1790 and 1832. Klancher restores many formerly popular but now little-known texts to critical view, and he demonstrates how the Romantic literary "movement" in England defined itself among early nineteenth-century institutions and cultural conflicts.

Radical Literary Education

A CLASSROOM EXPERIMENT WITH WORDSWORTH'S "ODE"

Jeffrey C. Robinson

Radical Literary Education, a "case study" of an introductory college poetry class, proposes a major revision in pedagogy through the teaching of poetry in context. Robinson relates a canonical poem, and the full weight of literary and historical scholarship surrounding it, to the experience of the beginning student and the teacher in the classroom. All teachers of literature will welcome Robinson's fresh and effective approach to the teaching of poetry.

The City Staged

JACOBEAN COMEDY, 1603-1613

Theodore B. Leinwand

The author views Jacobean city comedy as a measure of the way Londoners of the time perceived one another. In forming a sophisticated view of the relations between Jacobean comedy and life, Leinwand makes a solid contribution not only to Jacobean theater studies, but, more broadly, to our understanding of the cultural, social, and political contexts within which all literature is produced.

TRANSFORMATIONS IN SEXUAL UNDERSTANDING IN SEVENTEENTH-CENTURY ENGLAND

Harold Weber

The concept of sexuality in English drama underwent a remarkable transformation between the early and the late seventeenth century. Harold Weber argues that the character of the "rake" illuminates this profound transition, from the view of sexuality as demonic to a hope for a constructive use of sexual energies in society.

THE OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

Over one hundred years in the making, this truly monumental reference—hailed by The New York Times as “the greatest work in dictionary making ever undertaken”—is a resource of inestimable value.

Now complete with a fourth and final supplement, The Oxford English Dictionary is, more than ever, one of the finest investments of a lifetime. The OED is sure to become one of the most treasured works in your library—a much looked-to possession to hand down from generation to generation.

As much a browser's delight as an incomparable reference.

The complete sixteen-volume OED defines an incredible half-million words on a staggering total of 21,133 pages. It provides the fullest possible treatment of definitions, pronunciation, parts of speech, alternate spellings, and etymologies.

But as Richard Eder points out in The Los Angeles Times, “The OED's main feature is not the hundreds of thousands of words it incorporates. It is the history of their employment, the trail leading from Shakespeare's usage to Samuel Johnson's to Johnny Carson's... [It is] more than anything else, a history of human invention.” Quotations after each entry—ranging from such sources as twelfth-century texts to the works of modern authors as varied as Raymond Chandler, John Updike, and Virginia Woolf—illustrate the various uses of the word throughout the centuries.

“Its wonders never cease,” critic Hugh Kenner notes. “It's the only place you'll find an entry on 'set' that's fully two-thirds the length of Paradise Lost.”

Available for the first time on a time payment plan.

ELEVENTH SUMMER SESSION

June 21–July 31, 1987

Director: Geoffrey H. Hartman, Yale University
Faculty: Houston Baker, University of Pennsylvania
Sacvan Bercovitch, Harvard University
Jacques Derrida, University of California, Irvine
Barbara Johnson, Harvard University
Murray Krieger, University of California, Irvine
Michael Riffaterre, Columbia University

The School of Criticism and Theory will hold its eleventh summer session from June 21 to July 31, 1987, on the Dartmouth College campus. Those admitted to the School will work together as a community for six weeks to explore the most recent developments in literary and humanistic studies. Approximately sixty-five postdoctoral and graduate students of literature, the arts, the humanities, and the related social sciences will be accepted by the School. Tuition for the session is $1450. Dartmouth College provides fellowships for postdoctoral scholars who are still in the first ten years of their professional careers. All applicants are eligible to compete for a small number of tuition scholarships. Since the number of students whom Dartmouth can support through fellowships and scholarships is necessarily limited, candidates are urged to seek support from their home institutions.

Applications will be judged beginning February 1, 1987. Decisions on admissions, fellowships, and scholarships will be announced on a rolling basis beginning in mid-March. The final roster of the School is expected to be complete by the end of April.

Joyce's Anatomy of Culture

CHERYL HERR

In this pioneering and provocative study, Herr traces the crucial relations between Irish popular culture and the writings of James Joyce. Mapping a semiotic theory of culture and drawing on extensive original research into Irish journalism, music hall, pantomime, and homiletics, Herr's exploration of material contexts and alternative subtexts will engage modernists, historians, and cultural analysts. "A new and exciting return to the realist side of Joyce scholarship that should make every Joycean reevaluate the cultural and historical context of Joyce's work in ways that have not been addressed in twenty years." — Zack Bowen, co-editor of A Companion to Joyce Studies. $21.95

James Joyce

The Centennial Symposium

Edited by MORRIS BEJA, PHILLIP F. HERRING, MAURICE HARMON, and DAVID NORRIS

A gathering of the most exciting and valuable presentations from the Eighth International James Joyce Symposium in Dublin. Contributors: Derek Attridge, Bernard Benstock, Sheldon Brivic, William M. Chace, Seamus Deane, Maud Ellmann, Daniel Ferrer, Elliott B. Gose, Jr., David Hayman, Suzette A. Henke, Ellen Carol Jones, Hugh Kenner, Karen Lawrence, A. Walton Litz, J. B. Lyons, Ann McCullough, Giorgio Melchiori, Margot Norris, Richard Pearce, Jean-Michel Rabaté, Beryl Schlossman, David Seed, Carol Shloss, André Topia, Robert Young, and the editors. $27.50

Wayward Skeptic

The Theories of R. P. Blackmur

JAMES T. JONES

The first study to crystallize the theories of the essayist, poet, and quintessential New Critic Richard Palmer Blackmur (1904-65), and to provide a major reevaluation of the entire New Criticism movement. Jones examines the theories at work in some of Blackmur's most famous essays from the thirties and in his poetry and reveals how Blackmur's eccentric style is a direct result of this underlying theoretical scheme. $24.95

The Map of Time

Seventeenth-Century English Literature and Ideas of Pattern in History

ACHSAH GUIBBORY

Offers an enlightening approach to 17th-century English literature by exploring how ideas of history influenced six prominent writers — Sir Francis Bacon, John Donne, Ben Jonson, Robert Herrick, John Milton, and John Dryden. Guibbory shows that three concepts in particular — history as progress, as decay, and as recurrent cycle — not only are reflected in the language and imagery of their writings, but also profoundly shape the nature, scope, and purpose of these works. $24.95

To Tell a Free Story

The First Century of Afro-American Autobiography, 1760-1865

WILLIAM L. ANDREWS

"One of the most perceptive, detailed and readable literary studies of early Afro-American literature yet published." — Frances Smith Foster, New York Times Book Review. "Andrews contrives a happy marriage between the literary and the historical, the theoretical and the anecdotal. Out of the latter emerge some haunting, daunting glimpses of a world heretofore mostly hidden." — Civil War Times Illustrated. Illus. $25.95

Suspended Fictions

Reading Novels by Manuel Puig

LUCILLE KERR

Kerr's close readings of four Manuel Puig novels — Betrayed by Rita Heyworth, Heartbreak Tango, The Buenos Aires Affair, and Kiss of the Spider Woman — reveal how Puig has redefined the value of popular modes of language and art, and the way in which contemporary writers (the Latin Americans especially) have given new life to a variety of old fictions and forms. "An exciting and compelling work." — Djelal Kadir, author of Questing Fictions. $21.95

Random House announces an important new learning and teaching tool: KEYNOTES

... a bold new series of literary study guides. Shorter and more concise than other study guides, yet information-intensive, KeyNotes not only offers plot summary, descriptions of key characters, and background of each book covered, but also contains razor-sharp summaries of main themes and ideas, symbols, style and structure, and critical overview.

- 50 classics, from Julius Caesar to Death of a Salesman, from The Scarlet Letter to The Color Purple (with many more to come)
- Written by contemporary scholars—praised by teachers nationwide
- Enthusiastically received in national test market of more than 4,000 students
- Enhances—does not replace—the reading experience. Perfect for intense review
- Unique, easy-to-use format (4" x 10" folded size)
- $1.95 each

Teacher comments:

"Fine new series, up-to-date... and helpful to teachers as well as students... a model for what study guides should be." —Alexander B. Chambers, Ph.D., University of Wisconsin—Madison

"A high quality set of study guides... Comprehensive, yet concise, they offer detailed explanations of plot, characterization, style and structure... students and teachers alike can rely on their accuracy and benefit from their original insights."

—Karen L. Laughlin, Ph.D., Florida State University

"A new approach and a welcome one. In place of the lengthy chapter-by-chapter paraphrases of the original literary work, this series substitutes a resource of interpretive information which enriches and deepens the reading experience without controlling or directing it."

—Barry Maine, Ph.D., Wake Forest University

A Bold New Approach to Study Guides

LITERARY THEORY/RENAISSANCE TEXTS

edited by Patricia Parker and David Quint

"An exemplary collective accomplishment in comparative literature, LITERARY THEORY/RENAISSANCE TEXTS successfully links the detailed scholarship required for Renaissance studies to the intellectual power of contemporary theory.... The results are important for all those who seek to understand a group of English and European masterworks that still define our cultural heritage."—Jonathan Arac, University of Illinois at Chicago

In proposing alternatives to the humanist practice of reading, Patricia Parker and David Quint contend, contemporary theorists have found confirmation of their ideas in the Renaissance humanists' own texts. This book brings together fifteen pieces, ten of them published here for the first time. A broad range of theoretical approaches—including deconstructionist, Marxist, feminist, psychoanalytic, and "new historicist"—are applied to genuinely new readings of Renaissance literature. With contributions by Terence Cave, Eugenio Donato, John Freccero, Stephen Greenblatt, Thomas Greene, and others.

BEAUTIFUL FABLES

Self-consciousness in Italian Narrative from Manzoni to Calvino

by Gregory L. Lucente

Does self-consciousness create a disturbance in the narrative text or does it provide a solution? In the first full-length study of literary self-consciousness in Italian narrative, Gregory Lucente discusses the relationship between textual meaning and authorial intention, between literary representation and veracity, and between literary communication as a private and social phenomenon.

Progressing from Manzoni's I Promessi Sposi through the recent fictions of Italo Calvino and Umberto Eco, Lucente writes a history of narrative self-consciousness over the course of two centuries and offers detailed readings of texts of Verga, D'Annunzio, Pirandello, Silone, Lampedusa, Morante, and others.

NARRATIVE CROSSINGS

Theory and Pragmatics of Prose Fiction

by Alexander Gelley

Alexander Gelley develops a flexible model for the understanding of narrative pragmatics—a model designed to account for the heterogeneous materials, the variety of styles and attitudes, that make up the fabric of narrative prose fiction. Drawing from the writings of Heidegger, Benjamin, Bakhtin, Lacan, de Man, Serres, Derrida, Genette, and Lyotard, Gelley challenges the label of "fictionality" that has long served to authorize a tradition of intrinsic interpretation. He applies and extends his model in readings of Rousseau's Nouvelle Héloïse, Goethe's Wilhelm Meisters Wanderjahre, Flaubert's "Coeur simple," Hawthorne's "Wakefield," and Melville's Confidence-Man.

Form, Genre, and the Study of Political Discourse

edited by Herbert W. Simons and Aram A. Aghazarian

Form, Genre, and the Study of Political Discourse is a must for anyone interested in critically analyzing political discourse, and the issues it addresses should be of interest to critics and theorists generally. This book explores the possibilities and also the problems of a generic approach to the study of rhetoric, with a particular focus on political rhetoric. Its essayists offer critical and theoretical perspectives on form and genre, reflecting the influences of genre theory in literary studies, contemporary and classical rhetorical theory, sociolinguistics, and continental philosophy.

New —
The most complete and up-to-date book on MARIO VARGAS LLOSA!
by Raymond Leslie Williams

This lucid study, by a noted authority, on the life and career of one of the most acclaimed writers of the Latin American literary "boom" is a welcome introduction to Mario Vargas Llosa's entire work—including his latest novel, The Real Life of Alejandro Mayta.

Hailed as one of the most prominent writers in Latin America by the age of thirty, when he was awarded the Romulo Gallegos Prize, Vargas Llosa's reputation has steadily grown with the publication of such novels as Conversation in the Cathedral, Aunt Julia and the Script Writer, and The War of the End of the World. Surely, Mario Vargas Llosa must be considered Latin America's leading contender for the Nobel Prize in Literature.

As a guide to Vargas Llosa's life, his often cryptic novels, essays, and theatrical writings, this volume will be an invaluable source for scholars, students, teachers and his many devoted readers.

RAYMOND LESLIE WILLIAMS is Associate Professor of Spanish at Washington University, St. Louis.

PRESENTING THREE NEW TITLES ON WRITING

New Methods in College Writing Programs: Theories in Practice

Edited by Paul Connolly and Teresa Vilardi

This volume offers helpful models of successful, innovative writing programs that have been restructured within the last five years. Contributors discuss the history and general designs of the programs, theoretical assumptions that inform their teaching methods, staff development, strengths and problems, and distinctive features. Information concerning peer tutoring, writing centers, intensive writing courses, evaluation of writing, and central administration is also provided. 1986. 165 pp. Clothbound, $30.00 (MLA members $24.00) Paperbound, $16.50 (MLA members $13.20)

Composition and the Academy: A Study of Writing Program Administration

By Carol P. Hartzog

This report reveals the political struggles, issues, and tactics involved in the administration of writing programs across the country. The work presents a composite view of the structures, practices, and leadership found in the forty-one programs studied, as well as detailed descriptions of writing programs at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; the University of Pennsylvania; and Harvard University. 1986. 184 pp. Clothbound, $30.00 (MLA members $24.00) Paperbound, $16.50 (MLA members $13.20)

Helping Students Write Well: A Guide for Teachers in All Disciplines

By Barbara E. Fassler Walvoord

This revised and updated edition suggests techniques for responding to student work, guiding peer groups, and dealing with specific writing problems. Geared to college faculties in many disciplines, the volume provides strategies for coaching students in generating ideas, organizing, drafting, revising, and editing. New to this edition are sections on gathering information, following a required format, and composing visual aids. 1986. 245 pp. Paperbound, $14.50 (MLA members $11.60)

INSTITUTE FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDY OF THE ARTS

Department of English, University of Florida

IPSA Program in Literature and Psychology

In conjunction with IPSA, the Department of English offers a graduate program in Literature and Psychology that provides training and dissertation direction in psychoanalytic, Lacanian, Third Force, psycholinguistic, cognitive, and reader response criticism. Course work is supplemented by mini-seminars, conferences, and lectures. Current or prospective graduate students who are interested in the Literature and Psychology program should apply for admission to graduate study in English as promptly as possible. Those who wish to apply for a Milbauer Fellowship should write in addition to Professor Norman Holland.

Milbauer Fellowships in Literature and Psychology

With the assistance of Professor Holland's Milbauer Chair, the Literature and Psychology program offers fellowships to qualified applicants. These include:

- a Research Assistantship with a stipend of $10,000, including the teaching of one summer course;
- several Teaching Assistantships with stipends from $8,500 to $10,000, including the teaching of one summer course.

There are also RA appointments for the position of Managing Editor of IPSA Abstracts and Bibliography in Literature and Psychology and to assist with the newly founded Newsletter of the Freudian Field.

IPSA Abstracts and Bibliography in Literature and Psychology

This compilation is published in March of every year and is distributed free upon request. It includes (1) abstracts of books and articles that have been accepted for publication but have not yet appeared in print, (2) a bibliography of psychological criticism and related items published during the preceding year, and (3) announcements of interest to the profession.

We invite you to add your name to our mailing list and to submit abstracts, announcements, and bibliographic items by February 15, 1987. Please address your requests and submissions to: Professor Bernard J. Paris, Director, IPSA, 4008 Turlington, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida, 32611. Abstracts can be up to 250 words. Please indicate the press or the journal that will publish your MS and the anticipated date of appearance. Bibliographic entries—for items published in 1986 only—should be submitted in MLA style.

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE STUDIES—The Penn State Press is pleased to announce its publication of this fine journal beginning in 1987. Stanley Weintraub joins A. O. Aldridge as editor of CLS, a quarterly journal of literary analysis, which brings you ■ the opinions of eminent literary critics and historians ■ analyses which emphasize East-West literary relations as well as those between European literatures and those of North and South America ■ explorations into criticism and theory, movements, themes, forms, and relationships between authors and ■ studies of literary history and the history of ideas.

We look forward to continuing the CLS tradition as a forum for central discussions among comparatists today.

THOMAS MANN PRO AND CONTRA WAGNER

THOMAS MANN

Translated by Allan Blunden

Introduction by Erich Heller

"This fascinating book . . . tells us much about Mann's own attitudes, his complex and shifting relationship to German culture and politics; but because he was also a great critic with an exceptional sensitivity to music, it also tells us much about Wagner's work and his place in the German tradition."

—James Joll, New York Review of Books

THE CELEBRATED MARY ASTELL

An Early English Feminist

RUTH PERRY

Foreword by

Catharine R. Stimpson

"Ruth Perry's new biography of Mary Astell (1666–1731) is an event in the history of women's studies. This is the first modern full-length study of a writer who has with justice been called 'the first feminist' . . . Perry writes with eloquent respect for an unusual and valuable literary heroine."

MEPHISTOPHELES The Devil in the Modern World

By JEFFREY BURTON RUSSELL. Here is the fourth and final volume in Russell's critically acclaimed history of the concept of the Devil and its impact on Western societies. Using examples from literature, art, popular culture, theology, and philosophy, Russell here covers the period from the Reformation to the present. 25 b&w illustrations.

$24.95

ROUSSEAU AND THE REPUBLIC OF VIRTUE The Language of Politics in the French Revolution

By CAROL BLUM. "A fascinating book. I know of no other that presents such a clear, brief overview of Rousseau from a psychological and cultural perspective." —Elizabeth Fox-Genovese, Emory University. Drawing on arguments from a wide range of disciplines, Blum reveals the importance of Rousseau's doctrine of virtue in the discourse of the French Revolution. 6 b&w illustrations.

$24.95

ELEGANT JEREMIAHS The Sage from Carlyle to Mailer

By GEORGE P. LANDOW. Covering literary notables from Thomas Carlyle to Norman Mailer, Landow traces the influence of Old Testament prophecy on some of the greatest works of nonfiction. "Well-written and elegantly organized, this book presents a number of significant writers in a new light and illuminates both Victorian and modern American writing." —Patrick Brantlinger, Indiana University.
