HUMAN SETTLEMENTS: THE ENVIRONMENTAL CHALLENGE

A Compendium of United Nations Papers Prepared for the Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment 1972

It is within the human settlement—hamlet, village, town, city or megalopolis—that the quality of man's environment matters most. This book concerns one of the six main themes of the Stockholm Conference, namely The Planning and Managing of Human Settlements for Environment Quality. It analyses the nature of the problems arising in this field from conflicts between man-made and natural environments and from conflicts between man's activities within human settlements. It goes on to show that a comprehensive planning system is essential to the solution of these problems, to describe the machinery required for the making and implementation of comprehensive plans, and to indicate how developing countries can avoid, by timely preventive action, the mistakes of the past which now compel developed countries to adopt expensive remedies. It concludes by setting out the recommendations for policy and action approved by the United Nations General Assembly as a result of the Conference.

PUBLICATIONS FROM UNITED NATIONS

YEARBOOK OF THE UNITED NATIONS 1971

"At a time when the United Nations is approaching its goal of full universality of membership," says United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in his foreword to this volume, "and when its work affects virtually all human activities, the role of the Yearbook of the United Nations is more important than ever."

This is the 25th volume of the only single-volume series giving an annual, fully indexed, compact but comprehensive account — organized by subject — of the activities of the United Nations and the inter-governmental organizations related to it. The Yearbook is designed as a tool for use by diplomats and other public officials, by writers, scholars and educators, by librarians, journalists and others seeking a fuller understanding of the work of the United Nations family of organizations.

The Politics of International Organization

Edited by Leland M. Goodrich and David A. Kay

The journal International Organization has, during its twenty-six-year history, published some of the most insightful and lasting articles in the field of international affairs. Many of these articles are now generally unavailable to scholars, while others are difficult for the student to bring together.

It is thus a great service to both scholars and students that the editors have performed, in choosing the most important of these articles and presenting them in this sharply-focused framework. The articles, which constitute a broad overview of the politics of international organization since the institution of the United Nations, are divided into four broad sections: International Organizations and the International Political System; International Organization and the Structure of Influence; International Organization and Policy Outputs; and International Organization: New Perspectives.

Water Resources Law and Policy in the Soviet Union

Edited by Irving K. Fox

The management of water resources has justly become a subject of international concern. Until now, a text—in English—delineating Soviet water law and policy has not been available. This volume fills that gap in the literature, and sheds new light on problems relating to U.S. water assets. (University of Wisconsin Water Resources Studies, V. 1)

Soviet Prison Camp Speech

A Survivor's Glossary

Supplemented by terms from the works of A. I. Solzhenitsyn

Compiled by Meyer Galler and Harlan E. Marquess

This glossary, the only one of its kind, will be of significant interest and value to Russian-reading historians and political scientists, and to all who read recent Russian literature—especially the underground genre. The more than one thousand words and expressions in the glossary, listed alphabetically in Russian Cyrillic, are defined in both Cyrillic and in English. Also included is an explanation of the glossary's origin and an introduction which places Soviet prison camp speech in historical and linguistic perspective.

Africa and the West Intellectual Responses to European Culture

Edited by Philip D. Curtin

In this new volume, Curtin's latest effort, he presents seven essays which together help to reconstruct Africans' views of the West over the past hundred years. The work is one of intellectual history, approached not only by historians but by anthropologists and literary critics as well. Contributors include James W. Fernandez, Wyatt MacGaffey, Jean Herskovits, G. Wesley Johnson, Jr., Leo Spitzer, Harold Scheub, and Curtin.
