H. B. Acton (London), A. Church (Princeton), H. Cherniss (Princeton),
G. Henry-Hermann (Bremen), K. R. Popper (London)
and J. W. N. Watkins (London)

by
Julius Kraft (Frankfurt a.M.)

This new journal takes a resolute stand against scepticism and irrationalism and pursues the perennial goal of rational philosophy.

RATIO deals with all branches of pure and applied philosophy, from logic and philosophy of nature to ethics and philosophy of religion.

RATIO continues in a new form philosophical aims pursued with uncommon seriousness and courage in the Abhandlungen der Fries'schen Schule. The Abhandlungen were established in 1847 by Ernst Friedrich Apelt and re-established in 1904 by Leonard Nelson. Their publication was interrupted in 1937 as a result of national socialism.

IN THE BEGINNING

Some Greek Views on the origin of life and the early state of man

Here is 'the essence of a lifetime's thought and research on ancient Greek culture' (Birmingham Post). Professor Guthrie makes what really amounts to a general survey of the Greeks' extraordinarily rapid advance from a mythical to a rational view of the world and of man's origins and place in the universe. 18s.

Benedict de Spinoza: The Political Works

THE TRACTATUS THEOLOGICO-POLITICUS in Part and the TRACTATUS POLITICUS in Full Edited and translated, with an Introduction and Notes, by

A. G. WERNHAM

No adequate edition of Spinoza's political writings has hitherto appeared in English and the present volume is therefore designed to meet a real need. The Latin text is based on a critical examination of the original editions, and the Introduction gives a sketch of Spinoza's metaphysical and moral doctrines, and a discussion of his political thought in relation to that of Hobbes. 63s. net

Dante and the Idea of Rome

CHARLES TILL DAVIS

Dante's belief in the divinely ordained destiny of Rome is the central theme in his view of history. It is the purpose of this book to examine the sources which contributed to each major aspect of his idea of Rome, and also to demonstrate the originality and unity of his general concept. 30s. net

Voltaire, Historian

J. H. BRUMFITT

'Mr Brumfitt shows how Voltaire sometimes clung to patterns of thought which had their origin in doctrines he sought to oppose, but he rightly prefers to emphasize the fact that Voltaire gave social, economic, and cultural developments a far more important place than that allotted by most of his predecessors . . . The details of this study are more important than its broad conclusions and those interested in the development of Voltaire's thought will find it particularly rewarding.' SCOTSMAN

A Study in Ethical Theory

D. M. MACKINNON

Regius Professor of Moral Philosophy,
University of Aberdeen

A brilliant study of the different styles of argument concerning the foundations of morality, bringing out some of the ways in which the problem of the possibility of metaphysics impinges on moral reflection. Professor Mackinnon presents in a fresh context and from an altered perspective, much that is familiar in the writings of the 19th century utilitarians and the philosophers of the past fifty years. 21s. net

Crucial Problems in Modern Philosophy

By D. J. B. HAWKINS

10/6 net

"Dr. Hawkins does not deal in large tomes. His books are short, clear in insight and language, definite in the views expressed, but showing a real understanding of the problems to which other philosophers give other solutions. . . . In his opinion the right direction (of philosophy) would be towards the renewal of the Aristotelian-Thomist tradition in the light of modern problems. . . . This book is offered, therefore, as a contribution towards bridging the gap between contemporary philosophical discussion and Thomism or, as the author puts it, neo-Thomism."

MYSTERY OF MAN

By Professor M. V. C. Jeffreys

No one who has read Professor Jeffreys's other works, Beyond Neutrality and Glaucon, will want to miss this latest book which is concerned with the essential dilemma between living and thinking. The author examines the validity of Existentialism and Social Psychology in relation to Christian doctrine and has written a searching and convincing defence of his belief.
