From Beijing to Bloomsbury: Art Librarianship in an Olympic Year

ARLIS Annual Conference London 27th – 29th June 2012

As London heats up in preparation for the Olympics, join us for our 38th Annual Conference to be held in the beautiful garden squares of Bloomsbury.

The conference themes are wide ranging, from cultural aspects and visual representations of the Olympics through to collaboration and our digitised future. The British Library, the many historic libraries of the University of London, the Wellcome Trust and the new University of the Arts Central St Martin's campus, are all nearby. Visiting these, and other important institutions, will be part of the ARLIS UK experience.

Put the dates in your diary and keep an eye on the ARLIS UK & Ireland website for further details and regular updates <http://www.arlis.org.uk>
