

From the Dreadnought to Scapa Flow

The Royal Navy in the Fisher Era, 1904-1919
Volume III: Jutland and After

By ARTHUR J. MARDER, University of California at Irvine. Professor Marder brings depth to his examination of the plans for the battle of Jutland and the maneuvers of the battle through his use of unpublished and restricted material. He assesses the effects of the events of the battle on public and official thinking, the way in which the battle was the test of years of planning by Fisher, Churchill, and others, and traces developments to December, 1916. One further volume will complete the work. 9 plates, 16 charts. $11.20

Newcastle-Upon-Tyne and the Puritan Revolution

A Study of the Civil War in North England

By ROGER HOWELL, JR., Bowdoin College. Based extensively on local records, this book presents a detailed picture of Newcastle-upon-Tyne and the surrounding areas during the course of the Puritan Revolution. The background of opposition in the town is studied thoroughly from the beginnings of the seventeenth century. The author argues that local circumstances had the greatest effect upon loyalties, and that the town was, despite its reputation as a royalist stronghold, uncommitted to any side. $10.10

The Complete Letters of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu

Volume II: 1721-1751

Edited by ROBERT HALSBAND, Columbia University. This second volume of Lady Mary's complete letters contains two important correspondences never before published. The first set of these, to Francesco Algarotti, reveals her infatuation with this young man, and explains why she spent virtually all of the rest of her life abroad. Also included are letters from Lord Hervey, Lady Mary's rival for Algarotti's affections. The other new correspondence is that with Madame Michiel, a Venetian lady who was one of Lady Mary's close friends. In reviewing the first volume, the Johnsonian News Letter said: "The work seems to us a model of the way these wonderful letters . . . should be presented." 8 plates. $13.45

Canterbury under the Angevin Kings

By WILLIAM URRY. The author investigates the history of the early English borough, Canterbury. He discusses various aspects of the borough during the period of the Angevin Kings, including accounts of the holders of land in Canterbury, borough government, the monks and their servants in relation to the citizens, trades and occupations, and a detailed description of the borough's topography. Map. $16.80

Chichester Towers

by L. P. Curtis

Intrigue, humor, and illuminating insights into the social structure of eighteenth-century England are entwined in this engaging work of historical craftsmanship. The story illustrates what used to be known as the alliance between church and state; and it suggests the degree to which ecclesiastical politics were subordinated to the secular needs of the state. $5.00

The Pilgrim's Progress* and Traditions in Puritan Meditation

by U. Milo Kaufman

This reexamination of Bunyan's masterpiece argues that the work is much more than religious allegory, that its use of the materials of authoritarian faith bears witness to the intellectual unsettledness of an age much like our own. $6.50

Spenser's Image of Nature

by Donald Cheney

Demonstrating that pastoral motifs are used throughout The Faerie Queene as a counterpoint to the epic program, Mr. Cheney sees Spenser's presentation of Nature as more than an image of man's physical environment before it is shaped by divine grace or human art, and shows how the poem derives its unity and intelligibility from the figure of the poet striving through his art to create meaning. $6.50

Coleridge and the Idea of the Modern State

by David P. Calleo

At once a nationalist, a conservative, and a radical reformer, Samuel Coleridge developed an extraordinarily comprehensive and suggestive theory of the modern constitutional state. Here his political ideas are examined in relation to his general philosophy, his Romantic world-view, and his psychological insights. $5.00

The Search for Environment

The Garden City: Before and After

by Walter L. Creese

The industrial revolution forced man to adapt his environment; the English adaptations, both admirable and appalling, form the subject of this pioneering study. Mr. Creese describes the evolution of the Garden City and suburb, concentrating on the relationship of its chief architects, Park and Unwin, to other planners and social philosophers connected with the movement. $15.00

Books of Lasting Interest to You

The British Imperial Experience

Robert A. Huttenback

A selective analysis of the events, persons, and concepts that have altered the character of the British Empire and influenced its governing philosophy. No attempt is made to give an all-encompassing chronological account. The changing face of both the Dependent Empire and the Empire of Settlement, the scramble for Africa, and the evolution of the imperial organization from Empire to Commonwealth are examined. The book concludes with an intellectual consideration of imperialism: Was there a viable philosophy dedicated to the betterment of man, or merely a manifestation of national ego? Was there, indeed, any substance to the "imperial idea"?

Society and Politics in England, 1780-1960

A Selection of Readings and Comments

John F. C. Harrison

A collection of 110 readings from English source material of the period 1780-1960, intended as an introduction to the originals, not as a substitute for them. Some of the extracts are well known, others are from rare, nearly inaccessible sources. Brief introductions to each reading and to each section.

Twentieth-Century Britain, Second Edition

Alfred F. Havighurst

A comprehensive, integrated survey of the social, economic, intellectual, political, and diplomatic history of England from 1900 to 1965. Material on the period from 1961 to 1965 has been fully amended. Perspective gained through inclusion of material relating to the late nineteenth century. Incorporates many quotations from contemporary material.

THE NEWMAN BROTHERS

An Essay in Comparative Intellectual Biography

By WILLIAM ROBBINS

The philosophical ferment of the mid-19th century is nowhere more vividly illustrated than in the divergent careers of Cardinal Newman and his brother Francis. Mr. Robbins' lucid study strikingly reveals the master currents of the times that carried these symbolical figures in such different directions. Illustrated. $6.00

UNIVERSITIES: BRITISH, INDIAN, AFRICAN

A Study in the Ecology of Higher Education

By SIR ERIC ASHBY

In this book, Sir Eric Ashby, a distinguished former educational advisor to several new African nations, discusses the ecology of universities in non-European societies, the evolution of British policy regarding these institutions, and the development of academic freedom under both British and African educational systems. $12.95

CHANGING VIEWS ON BRITISH HISTORY

Essays on Historical Writing since 1939

Edited by ELIZABETH CHAPIN FURBER

Sponsored by the Conference on British Studies, these essays by distinguished scholars point out significant trends in historical writing. Each of the articles surveys not only what has been written on a particular aspect of British history, but also indicates what has not been written, what needs to be done, and what questions should be answered.

THEIR PROPER SPHERE

A Study of the Brontë Sisters as Early-Victorian Female Novelists

By INGA-STINA EWBANK

What was woman's "proper sphere" in writing, according to the early Victorians? How far it delimited the work of the Brontë sisters and, ultimately, what each sister saw as her own proper sphere, are the questions that this critical appreciation of the Brontës' art attempts to answer. $5.95

THE TRIUMPH OF TIME

A Study of the Victorian Concepts of Time, History, Progress, and Decadence

By JEROME H. BUCKLEY

Mr. Buckley's subject is the quite peculiar degree and the emotional intensity with which the Victorians responded to the awareness of time. A study of the four levels of temporality — past, present, future, and eternity — as they appear in nineteenth-century English literature, the author frequently glances back to the Romantics and ahead to the early Moderns. Belknap Press. $4.50

ENGLISH TRAITS

By RALPH WALDO EMERSON

Edited by HOWARD MUMFORD JONES

Still unsurpassed as a searching contemporary estimate of England at the very crest of her power in the mid-nineteenth century, this neglected book presents Emerson in the unfamiliar role of a hard-headed Yankee realist impressed by undeniable national greatness. The brilliant introduction by Mr. Jones places the book in its own time and makes clear its present significance. The John Harvard Library. $5.00

JOSEPH CONRAD AND THE FICTION OF AUTOBIOGRAPHY

By EDWARD W. SAID

Using Conrad's letters for the first time as a key to his mind and art, the author shows that there is an important parallel between the way Conrad saw his own life and the manner and form of his stories. "One of the most complete and satisfactory accounts of Conrad's view of things I have seen." — J. Hillis Miller. $4.95

SELECTED PROSE OF JOHN HAMILTON REYNOLDS

Edited by LEONIDAS M. JONES

Known primarily as a friend of John Keats, Reynolds' own achievement as poet, critic, satirist, and essayist has long been neglected. This volume, which includes a biographical sketch and a critical evaluation by the editor, makes a representative selection of Reynolds' essays and reviews available to modern readers for the first time. $12.50

THE ILL-FRAMED KNIGHT

A Skeptical Inquiry into the Identity of Sir Thomas Malory.

WILLIAM MATTHEWS. Since Kittredge's studies in the 1890's, the author of Le Morte Darthur has been identified as an obscure knight of Newbold Revel whose jail career constitutes a paradox with this great classic of chivalry. The Ill-framed Knight is the first attempt in 70 years to challenge the Kittredge attribution. Matthews examines the problem with new evidence and arrives at an attribution to a man never previously mentioned in the matter. "I am enchanted by the substance of the book: a wonderful piece of research."

—H. Trevor-Roper. $6.50

CHARLES II'S ESCAPE FROM WORCESTER

Edited by WILLIAM MATTHEWS. In September 1651, Charles Stuart's army was routed by Cromwell's superior forces upon the battlefield of Worcester. For six weeks Charles lay in hiding, a price upon his head until, aided by friends and Royalist sympathizers, he escaped to exile abroad. Nine years later, in May 1660, a company of courtiers and officials set out for the Netherlands to bring Charles back to England: among these was Samuel Pepys.

The present edition of documents relating to the most adventurous escape in the history of the English monarchy fulfills Pepy's intention to publish the narratives, which are presented here as they are in Pepy's Boscobel collection, including familiar accounts as well as some never before published. $7.00

THE WORKS OF JOHN DRYDEN, VOLUME IX

Plays: The Indian Emperour, Secret Love, Sir Martin Mar-all.

Edited by JOHN LOFTIS and VINTON A. DEARING. A definitive edition of three of Dryden's most famous plays. In his commentary to The Indian Emperour, Or, The Conquest of Mexico by the Spaniards, Mr. Loftis examines the background in travel literature and historical fiction for Dryden's account of the Conquest, and demonstrates for the first time Dryden's probable debt to Montaigne. Secret Love is a serious play, for which Dryden deliberately adopted French neoclassic style. Mr. Loftis' commentary on Sir Martin Mar-all emphasizes the play's affinities with Italian commedia dell'arte, and presents new evidence for the Duke of Newcastle's major participation in the writing of the play. $10.00

"Britain in the World Today"

Britain and the Old Dominions

by J. D. B. Miller

$6.50

Starting with the growth of the common background of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa in the nineteenth century, this study goes on to discuss the individual development of each, followed by a general examination of Britain and the four between 1918 and 1945. Post-war events are dealt with and changes in the structure of the Commonwealth relations in defense, foreign affairs, and in economic and social connections are discussed. Finally, there are summaries of Britain's relations with the four and projections for the future.

The Individual and Society in the Middle Ages

by Walter Ullmann

$5.00

The author shows on a practical plane the historical conflict between the medieval concept of the individual as a mere subject and the modern idea of the citizen. The last tremors of this conflict are still being felt. The central problem down to the nineteenth century is the assertion or denial of autonomous rights on the part of the individual as a citizen. The historical analysis of this crucial topic contributes to a better understanding of the divergent developments of different countries and nations in our world today.
