Defence Diplomacy in the Long War

Patrick Blannin

Defence diplomacy enhances the diplomatic and security capacity of a state, providing the only link between executive office and the ministries of foreign affairs and defence, three vital institutions in the Long War. Using a case study of US defence diplomacy in Afghanistan from 2001-2014, the paper argues simply that the practice of defence diplomacy far outweighs current theories on what it is, how it works and why it matters?

Say goodbye to international law as you know it.
To outdated ideas about environmental regulation, global financial transactions, and the traditional hierarchies of domestic and international courts.

Say hello to international law as we know it, from a global perspective.

One which recognizes that there are fewer degrees of separation between issues once treated in isolation. Like foreign investment and human rights. Or a health crisis in one country and a patent holder on the other side of the globe.

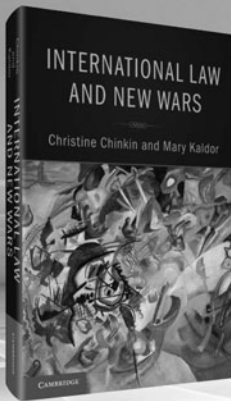

At the forefront of this practice is Columbia Law School, through unique collaborations with governments, the U.N., regulatory agencies, and NGOs. On campus, you'll experience unparalleled programs in the future of warfare, global financial regulation and corporate law, and legal studies across Asia. Elsewhere, you'll find partnerships with a worldwide network of leading academic institutions and Columbia Global Centers.

Everywhere we are, you'll see pioneering legal scholarship building global paths toward freedom, peace, prosperity, and better governance.

Geneva: study in the heart of Europe in a truly international environment

"The University of Geneva offers various international law courses at the postgraduate level in French and in English. In English it offers in addition several summer schools, a Certificate in Transnational Law (CTL) as well as four Masters in advanced studies (MAS) and one Executive Master. Students and professionals from around the world come to study in Geneva, the home of numerous international organizations, UN agencies, the ICRC and law firms active in international arbitration.

The CTL provides students with a chance to specialize, early in their career, in international legal affairs within one or two semesters. Students can tailor their studies according to their particular interests, be it public or private international law.

A new Geneva Master in European and International Governance (MEIG) offers a unique interdisciplinary learning experience combining European and international affairs, including possibilities for internship in the UN system.

The Geneva Academy of international Humanitarian Law and Human Rights, a joint venture of the Law School and the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, offers a new MAS on Transitional Justice, Human Rights and the Rule of Law. International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights are taught in a MAS and an Executive Master offered by the Academy, covering in depth all areas of international law relating to armed conflicts.

The Geneva Master in International Dispute Settlement, which is equally offered jointly with the Graduate Institute gives students the opportunity to study all aspects of dispute settlement in the international arena, across the divide of public and private."

The European Union and International Dispute Settlement

Edited by Marise Cremona (European University Institute), Anne Thies (University of Reading) and Ramses A Wessel (University of Twente)

This book explores the connections between the European Union and international dispute settlement. It highlights the legal challenges faced by the principal players in the field: namely the EU as a political actor and the Court of Justice of the EU as an international and domestic judiciary. In addition, it places the subject in its broader context of international dispute settlement, and the participation of the EU and its Member States in international disputes. It focuses on horizontal and cross-cutting themes, bringing together insights from the different sectors of trade, investment and human rights, and offering a variety of perspectives from academics, policymakers and practitioners.

Transitional Justice and the Prosecution of Political Leaders in the Arab Region

A Comparative Study of Egypt, Libya, Tunisia and Yemen

Noha Aboueldahab (Brookings Doha Center)

The dramatic uprisings that ousted the long-standing leaders of several countries in the Arab region set in motion an unprecedented period of social, political and legal transformation. The prosecution of political leaders took centre stage in the pursuit of transitional justice following the 'Arab Spring'. Through a comparative case study of Egypt, Libya, Tunisia and Yemen, this book argues that transitional justice in the Arab region presents the strongest challenge yet to the transitional justice paradigm.

The Rule of Law, Freedom of Expression and Islamic Law

Hossein Esmaeili (Flinders University), Irmgard Marboe (University of Vienna) and Javaid Rehman (Brunel University)

The importance of the rule of law is universally recognised and of fundamental value for most societies. Establishing and promoting the rule of law in the Muslim world, particularly in the Middle East, North Africa, and Central Asia, has become a pressing but complicated issue. One important aspect of the rule of law is freedom of expression. Given the sensitivity of Muslim societies in relation to their sacred beliefs, freedom of expression, as an international human rights issue, has raised some controversial cases. This book, drawing on both international and Islamic Law, explores the rule of law, and freedom of expression and its practical application in the Muslim world.

The China-Australia Free Trade Agreement

A 21st-Century Model

Edited by Colin Picker, Heng Wang and Weihuan Zhou (University of New South Wales)

This book provides readers with a unique opportunity to learn about one of the new regional trade agreements (RTAs), the China-Australia Free Trade Agreement (ChAFTA), that has been operational since December 2015 and is now at the forefront of the field. This new agreement reflects many of the modern and up-to-date approaches within the international economic legal order that must now exist within a very different environment than that of the late eighties and early nineties, when the World Trade Organization (WTO) was created. The book, therefore, explores many new features that were not present when the WTO or early RTAs were negotiated.

International Law at Iowa

For the past 40 years, Iowa Law has had an International and Comparative Law Program. We offer the LLM, two-year JD, SJD, as well as the traditional three-year JD. In any given year, over ten percent of our students are foreign and we host numerous international scholars for the semester or the year. Our library, one of the largest in an American law school, has over one million titles and continues to grow. Nearly one-third of our faculty are involved in the field of International and Comparative Law.
