JUSTICE IN THE BALKANS

Prosecuting War Crimes
in the Hague Tribunal

John Hagan

"This is the first book that really gets inside the workings of the Hague tribunal. Many of the key individuals come alive here, and the reader gets a good sense of the critical role of personal commitments, peculiarities, and ideologies in shaping the work of the court. Hagan makes a very important argument about how individuals and groups can affect the course of human rights enforcement."—Eric D. Weitz, author of A Century of Genocide

TOWARD A JUST WORLD

The Critical Years in the Search for International Justice

Dorothy V. Jones

"The first half of the twentieth century is widely seen as an era when nationalism and war made a mockery of efforts to strengthen international law and peacefully settle disputes. This new take, in contrast, argues that these decades were pivotal for quietly introducing new ideas about international law into state relations. Jones traces the events, personalities, and institutions that marked the era's efforts to bring reason and rule to the prevention of war."

PROJECTIONS OF POWER

Framing News, Public Opinion,
and U.S. Foreign Policy

Robert M. Entman

"There is perhaps no other concept more central to political communication research than 'framing.' Yet as Robert Entman points out, there is no general agreement as to its exact meaning. Projections of Power goes a long way toward rectifying this problem. It is a brilliant book and makes great headway in clarifying the nature of frames."—Steven Livingston, George Washington University

KAMIKAZE, CHERRY BLOSSOMS, AND NATIONALISMS

The Militarization of Aesthetics
in Japanese History

Emiko Ohnuki-Tierney

"In culling history and studying those records left by the young pilots themselves, [Ohnuki-Tierney] arrives at conclusions that offer compelling evidence to conclusions quite opposite those still espoused by the state. To be sure men sacrificed themselves, but for reasons quite different from those often given. . . . Though her book is a model of academic procedure, it also contains the honest emotion of 'rage against the forces that terminated these brilliant young minds'. . . . It is this contained, communicated emotion that turns this book from an excellent one into something like a great one."

Protest and the Politics of Blame

The Russian Response to Unpaid Wages

Debra Javeline

"When people are not paid wages owed, they generally take some kind of action. In Russia they have not. Why? Debra Javeline's book offers a compelling answer. By focusing on the workers' inability to assign blame, she offers an original explanation that is both grounded in theory and supported with empirical evidence."

Crime and Violence in Latin America

Citizen Security, Democracy, and the State

edited by Joseph S. Tulchin and H. Hugo Frühling assisted by Heather Golding

Violence and crime pose serious threats to the relatively fragile democracies of Latin America and the Caribbean. This volume offers timely discussion by attorneys, government officials, policy analysts, and academics from the United States and Latin America of the responses of the state, civil society, and the international community to these threats.

THE HARVARD ACADEMY FOR INTERNATIONAL AND AREA STUDIES

is now accepting applications for

The Academy Scholars Program

The Academy Scholars Program supports outstanding scholars who are at the start of their academic careers and whose work combines disciplinary excellence in the social sciences and history with an in-depth grounding in a non-Western country or region. Doctoral candidates (Ph.D. or comparable degree) and recent recipients of these degrees are eligible to apply. Academy Scholars receive two-year appointments, including an annual stipend and research resources from the Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies. While in residence, Academy Scholars conduct either dissertation or post-doctoral research in their chosen fields and areas.

Applications for the 2004-2005 Academic Year are due by OCTOBER 15, 2003
