

BE A MORE PRODUCTIVE CITIZEN SUBSCRIBE TO PSJ/PSR

There is a NEED FOR GREATER SOCIETAL PRODUCTIVITY in the sense of increasing societal benefits minus societal costs. Doing so may depend partly on the substance and procedures of policy studies. The substance emphasizes the nature of public policy, its causes, and its effects in such socially crucial areas as energy, health, education, inflation/unemployment, labor, environment, crime, defense, welfare, technology, etc. The procedures emphasize methods for arriving at societal decisions that maximize benefits minus costs when seeking to find an optimum choice, risk, level, mix, or timing. Better technology and worker motivation may be important, but they may be difficult to achieve without appropriate public policies and decisionmaking systems.

Two periodicals that are especially DEVOTED TO the substance and procedures of policy studies are the Policy Studies Journal and the Policy Studies Review. Subscribing to them enables one to be well-informed concerning policy studies and their relations to improved productivity in the public and private sectors. A subscription to PSJ/PSR is also an example of productivity in action by virtue of the high benefits and low costs associated with a subscription.

The BENEFITS INCLUDE:

1. Two quarterly journals averaging about 160 tightly-packed printed pages for each of the eight issues per year, or 1300 pages per year.
2. Special issues or extra pages added on to the regular issues bringing the total quantity of pages to about 1500 per year.
3. Two free directories upon becoming a subscriber. The directories deal with policy studies activities among academic programs, government agencies, funding sources, research centers, individual researchers, and publishers/associations.
4. Additional free directories as they are published.
5. Discounts to PSO volumes published by Lexington Books and Sage Publications of which there are now over 50 volumes.
6. Special discounts to past issues of PSJ/PSR or for multiple-year subscriptions.
7. Frequent mailings designed to inform subscribers of new publications, conferences, and publication opportunities.
8. Access to the PSO information clearinghouse.
9. Being supportive of PSO activities for promoting the application of political and social science to important policy problems.

The COSTS ARE ONLY $14 for all the above benefits collectively, which includes membership in the Policy Studies Organization. That is probably the best benefit/cost ratio of any scholarly association. It means $7 per year for each of the thick periodicals. Both periodicals are contributed to by experts from the various fields of policy studies. The PSO periodicals have been widely praised, including praise by the American Library Association via its journal Choice. The symposia have been particularly well received as indicated by reviews in such places as in the American Political Science Review and Perspective.

Individuals wishing to take advantage of the above worthwhile investment should SEND A CHECK for only $14 to the Policy Studies Organization, 361 Lincoln Hall, 702 South Wright, University of Illinois, Urbana 61801, or $22.80 for a two-year subscription, or $33 for a three-year subscription. Enclose $6 per year to cover overseas postage.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS TO THE JOURNAL

Authors are requested to submit their original manuscript plus three copies to:

Dr. Brian Hogwood, Editor Journal of Public Policy

Centre for the Study of Public Policy
University of Strathclyde
McCance Building, 16 Richmond Street,
Glasgow G1 1XQ, Scotland

GENERAL APPROACH

Authors are asked to bear in mind the nature of the readership when writing their contribution. In particular, care should be taken to draw out the implications of the analysis for readers interested in other policy fields, other countries and other disciplines. Jargon specific to a particular discipline should be avoided, and definitions should be provided for words which might be unfamiliar to many readers.

It should be borne in mind that some readers may not be familiar with complex statistical methodology. Accordingly, verbal statements of major findings should always be included. Statistical points can be discussed in notes. Complex statistical or methodological points might merit an appendix. Where you feel that an understanding of the approach used is important in interpreting the substantive findings it might be advisable to explain this in terms comprehensible to the non-specialist in a 'box' which can be placed at the appropriate point in the text.

Similarly, while the editor recognizes the importance of work that proceeds deductively from high-level theoretical abstractions, articles for this Journal will be expected to show clearly what their substantive significance is in terms of issues arising in a governmental context.

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPT

The entire manuscript, including footnotes and references should be typed double-spaced on one side only of A4 sized paper with a left-hand margin of at least 1/4 inches (4J cm). Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

The title only should appear on the next page, which should contain an abstract of the article of not more than 150 words.

STYLE

Spelling, capitalization and punctuation should be consistent within each article. Detailed advice on all matters of style is contained in Judith Butcher's book, Copyediting, Cambridge University Press (1975).

Headings of not more than two grades should be used and they should be typed on separate lines.

Tables and Figures should be numbered consecutively in separate series. Each table or figure should be typed or drawn on a separate sheet.

Every table or figure should have a title or caption and at least one reference in the text to indicate its approximate location.

Notes should be avoided wherever possible. Notes should not be used for bibliographic references (see below). When they must occur, notes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article. They will be printed grouped together at the end of the article as endnotes. Notes should be typed in a single list at the end of the paper, starting on a new page.

Bibliographic citations in the text must include the author's surname and year of publication and may include page references. Complete bibliographic information for each citation should be included in the list of references at the end of the paper. Examples of correct styling for bibliographic citation where the author's name is mentioned in the text are Alford (1975), Biller (1976, 136-7), May and Wildavsky (1978), Ostrom, Parks and Whitaker (1978) and subsequently Ostrom et al. (1978). Otherwise, use, e.g. (Biller, 1976, 136-7).

References should be typed in alphabetical order in a single list at the end of the paper, starting on a new page, using the style of the following examples:

- Alford, R. (1975) Health Care Politics. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
Biller, R. (1976) On tolerating policy and organizational termination: some design considerations, Policy Sciences, 7, 133-43.
Campbell, D. (1971) Reforms as experiments. In F. Caro (ed.), Readings in Evaluation Research. New York: Russell Sage.
May, J. and A. Wildavsky (eds.) (1978) The Policy Cycle. Beverly Hills: Sage.

COPYEDITING AND PROOFREADING OF THE MANUSCRIPT

The editor and publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proofread all items accepted for publication. Authors will review their copyedited manuscripts only if substantial changes have been made. The editor may find it necessary to return for rewording or retyping manuscripts which do not conform to the requirements about style and typing.

Galley proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only. Authors must notify the editorial office of any corrections within one week of receipt or approval will be assumed.

Submission of an article or other item implies that it has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material (such as quotations or illustrations) for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors of material accepted for publication will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press.

Each author will receive 50 offprints of his article without charge. Additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.
