*Vladimir
Nabokov and
Marc Szeftel*

Galya
Diment

In this wry, judiciously balanced, and thoroughly engaging book, Galya Diment explores the complicated and fascinating relationship between Vladimir Nabokov and his Cornell colleague Marc Szeftel who, in the estimate of many, served as the prototype for the gentle protagonist of the novel Pnin.

A History of Ukraine

Paul Robert Magocsi

"A magisterial history, not because of its bulk but because it deals clearly and well with a vast number of fundamental themes over a thousand-year period. Magocsi has wisely chosen to write this comprehensive history not of the Ukrainian ethno-cultural or linguistic people, but of the Ukrainian land and all the peoples who have fought over, thrived in, and suffered upon it."—Foreign Affairs

A Sephardic Life in Southeastern Europe

*The Autobiography and Journals of Gabriel Arié,
1863–1939*

Edited by Esther Bengassa and Aron Rodrigue

Autobiographical texts are rare in the Sephardic world. This book publishes in full the autobiography (covering the years 1863 to 1906) and yearly journals (1906–1939) of Gabriel Arié, whose writings express the double, divided, and dissonant existence of a Westernized Jew in the Levantine world.

Hungarian Rhapsodies

*Essays on Ethnicity,
Identity and Culture*

Richard Teleky

From an examination of photographer André Kertész to a visit to a Hungarian American church in Cleveland, Teleky writes with perception and humor about the American need to reconcile contemporary identity with a heritage from another country.

What Have We Learned About Science and Technology from the Russian Experience?

LOREN R. GRAHAM

At the time the Soviet Union broke apart, it possessed the largest scientific community in the world. The world's leading authority on Soviet science here examines how the Russian experience sheds light on the status and character of science and technology throughout the world.

Creating and Recovering Experience

Repetition in Tolstoy

NATASHA SANKOVITCH

The thesis of this book is that repetition is central to Tolstoy's art. The author argues that Tolstoy uses this device—or rather, a complex of devices—to represent and examine the processes by which people structure and give meaning to their experience.

Equality by Design

The Grand Experiment in Destratification in Socialist Hungary

SZONJA SZELÉNYI

"Equality by Design is exemplary in its use of statistical models to adjudicate different theories of socialist stratification, and there is an elegance, parsimony, and clarity about Szélenyi's analysis that is very appealing. She is among the pioneers in bringing history to the study of stratification, successfully exploiting Hungary's journey from capitalism to capitalism through socialism."

The Making of the State Reader

Social and Aesthetic Contexts of the Reception of Soviet Literature

EVGENY DOBRENKO

Translated by
Jesse M. Savage

This book is a history of the shaping of the reader of Soviet literature, for in Soviet culture the reader was never a "consumer of books" in the Western sense. According to the doctrine of Socialist Realism, the reader was a subject of education, to be reformed and molded.

THE BEST FROM CAMBRIDGE

Institutional Design in Post-communist Societies

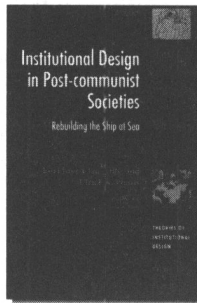

Rebuilding the Ship at Sea
Jon Elster, Claus Offe, and Ulrich K. Preuss

Studies of Bulgaria, the Czech Republic, Hungary and Slovakia provide detailed empirical data concerning constitution making, the shaping of democratic institutions, marketization of the economy, and social policy.

This new research is then linked to innovative theoretical material to offer a unique assessment of the difficulties of creating a new political order in the region.

Muscovy and the Mongols Cross-Cultural Influences on the Steppe Frontier, 1304-1589

Donald Ostrowski

In this innovative and challenging study, the author adds fresh and important insights to a pivotally important yet poorly understood subject—Mongol influence on Muscovy. Ostrowski considers here the outside origins and influences, as well as the indigenous origins and development, and shows that during the early period of Muscovy the dominant outside influences came through both Byzantium and the Qipchaq Khanate with its capital at Sarai.

The Chekhov Theatre A Century of the Plays in Performance

Laurence Senelick

This is the first cross-cultural study of Chekhov's plays in production. Many now consider Chekhov a playwright equal to Shakespeare, and this book studies how this reputation evolved, and how the presentation of his plays varied and altered from their initial productions in Russia to the most recent postmodern deconstructions of them.

Russian Modernism

The Transfiguration of the Everyday
Stephen C. Hutchings

This book interprets the baffling complex of meanings attached by Russian culture to the concept of everyday life, or Ibyt, and assesses its impact on Russian modernist narrative. Drawing on modern literary theory and theology, Hutchings argues that Ibyt emerged from a dialogue between two aesthetic systems, one predominant in Western Catholic and Protestant cultures, the other reflected in Orthodox iconic traditions. He offers provocative, yet careful, readings of key narrative texts from the period.

"A handsomely produced, 13 author work incorporating state-of-the-art scholarship....

[The book's] great strength proves to be institutional and social history. Peasants and magnates, professionals and policemen, rebels and ministers, all receive their due, broadening the understanding of the political."

—Stephen Kotkin,
The New York Times Book Review

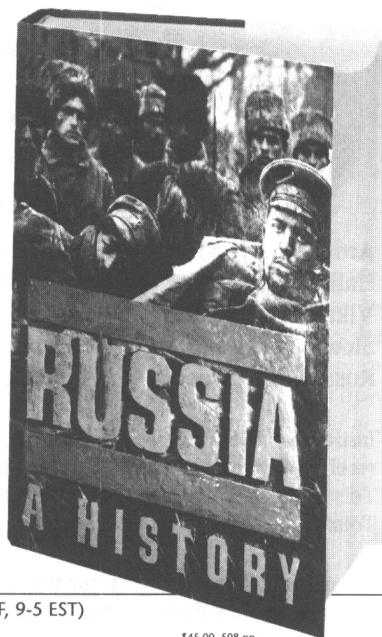

"A fine, cohesive, and vivid synthesis of the major issues and problems that constitute the essence of Russian historical development from Kiev to the present.... Bold in its conception and finely done—all in all, a most impressive achievement."

Emerging Democracy in Late Imperial Russia

Edited by Mary Schaeffer Conroy

Using newly available archival material and close readings of little-used sources, the contributors to this volume explore local councils (zemstvos) before and during World War I, electioneering, selected debates in the government and upper and lower legislative chambers to document how, despite the fact that a fettered national legislature existed in Russia only between 1906 and 1917, popular anticipation in policy grew stronger both at the local and central level, countering the authoritarian tsarist government and establishing democratic precedents prior to the undemocratic Soviet era.

TO THOSE WISHING TO SUBMIT MANUSCRIPTS

Manuscripts for consideration should be submitted by post or courier in four double-spaced typed copies. (If computer-generated, they should be letter quality or near letter quality. Continuous form sheets must be separated.) Notes and block quotations should be double-spaced; notes should be placed at the end of the manuscript and not at the bottoms of pages. Library of Congress transliteration and the Chicago Manual of Style are to be followed. In general, articles should not exceed 35 typed pages 8½" by 11" in dimension—including endnotes. Accepted manuscripts will be copyedited electronically, and authors will be asked to submit final versions on computer diskette. Submissions will not be returned.

Manuscripts are sent to outside readers in anonymous form and should be prepared accordingly.

WEDDED STRANGERS
THE CHALLENGES OF
RUSSIAN-AMERICAN MARRIAGES

BY LYNN VISSON

10 Years of Research and Interviews with 100 Couples
Profile the Most Intense Romances of our Time

"Here is the best look ever at the nature of romantic unions that involve all the mystery, joy, and yes, the misunderstandings that are an inevitable feature of the boy-meets-girl dramas that unfold when one partner is American and the other a cultural product of the most closed society of the twentieth century. This is a great 'read'—compellingly rendered and with insight to be found nowhere else."

—Phil Donahue

"Do not be deceived by the book's chatty and occasionally flippant tone. Wedded Strangers is a serious study of Russian-American intermarriages, and of the problems engendered by clashes of the two very different cultures. I heartily recommend Dr. Lynn Visson's book to all persons interested in differences between 'Soviet' (or ex-Soviet) and Western values as they are manifested in daily life."
