

TDR

A man with grey hair is wearing a dark, reflective helmet. On top of the helmet is a small, bright light. Several wires and sensors are attached to the helmet, including two blue circular sensors on the sides. He is looking slightly to the right and speaking into a professional microphone. The background is dark and out of focus, showing some equipment and a map of the world.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

BROWN UNIVERSITY

SHANGHAI THEATRE ACADEMY

STANFORD UNIVERSITY

YALE UNIVERSITY

The Builders Association
Moisés Kaufman & Tectonic Theater Project
Two Black Male Faculty Directing Fairview
Wu Tsang & Moved by the Motion

Daniel Maposa
Pura Luka Vega
Du Contrat Social
Akira Takayama
Nacera Belaza
Nona Faustine

TDR

---

TDR is scholarly, accessible, and dynamic. TDR is inclusive and interdisciplinary. Each article is tightly focused—but taken as a whole TDR is global. With its broad range of topics, TDR is at the cutting edge of performance studies. Its writers and editors support progressive political and social movements, art and ideas. Written by and for scholars and artists—and their students—TDR is where leaders and future leaders in the field of performance studies go for performance texts, performative writing, editorials, reviews, interviews, and research articles about the performing arts, performance in everyday life, popular entertainments, sports, business, and politics—the broad spectrum of performance.

Editorial Office: TDR, Center for Research & Study, Tisch School of the Arts, New York University, 721 Broadway, 12th Floor, New York, NY 10003, email: tdr@nyu.edu.

Instructions for Contributors: Information about manuscript submissions can be found at <https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/the-drama-review/information/instructions-contributors>.

Abstracting and Indexing Information: Please visit <https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/the-drama-review>.

Subscription Information: TDR (ISSN 1054-2043 E-ISSN 1531-4715) is published quarterly (Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter) by Cambridge University Press, 1 Liberty Plaza, New York, NY 10006, USA on behalf of the Tisch School of the Arts, New York University. Periodicals postage paid at New York, NY, and at additional mailing offices. POSTMASTER: Please send address changes to TDR, Cambridge University Press, 1 Liberty Plaza, New York, NY 10006, USA.

The institutional subscription price for Volume 69 (2025), including delivery by air where appropriate (but excluding VAT), is $337.00 (£279.00) for print and electronic or $294.00 (£242.00) for electronic only. Orders, which must be accompanied by payment, may be sent to a bookseller, subscription agent or direct to the publisher: Cambridge University Press, Journals Fulfillment Department, 1 Liberty Plaza, New York, NY, 10006, USA; or Cambridge University Press, UPH, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8RU, England. For single back issues, please contact subscriptions\_newyork@cambridge.org. More information about subscription rates, including individual and student subscription prices, can be found at: <https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/the-drama-review/subscribe>.

Advertising: For information on display ad sizes, rates, and deadlines for copy, please contact USAdSales@cambridge.org.
© New York University/Tisch School of the Arts 2025. All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, in any form or by any means, electronic, photocopying, or otherwise, without permission in writing from Cambridge University Press. Policies, request forms, and contacts are available at <https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/the-drama-review/information/request-permissions>.

Permission to copy (for users in the USA) is available from Copyright Clearance Center: www.copyright.com; email: info@copyright.com.

This publication is made possible, in part, with public funds from the New York State Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

TDR

the journal of performance studies

Editor

Richard Schechner

Associate Editor

Mariellen R. Sandford

Managing Editor

Sara Brady

Consortium Editors

Rebecca Schneider

Brown University

William Huizhu Sun

Shanghai Theatre Academy

Diana Looser

Stanford University

Tavia Nyong'o

Elise Morrison

Kimberly Jannarone

Yale University

Assistant Editor

Sarah Lucie

Editorial Assistant

Melissa Flower Gladney

Concerning Books Editor

Dominika Laster

Provocation Editor

Julie Tolentino

Contributing Editors

Fawzia Afzal-Khan

Sharon Aronson-Lehavi

Gelsey Bell

Catie Cuan

Tracy C. Davis

Guillermo Gómez-Peña

Branislav Jakovljević

Amelia Jones

Barbara Kirshenblatt-Gimblett

André Lepecki

Carol Martin

Fred Moten

Rabih Mroué

Ong Keng Sen

Anna Deavere Smith

Diana Taylor

Uchino Tadashi

Above: McDonald's Radio University (2017). Mousonturm Theatre, Frankfurt. See "Akira Takayama's McDonald's Radio University: Brechtian Listening in McDonald's and Postvisual Dramaturgy" by Kyoko Iwaki. (Photo by Hasunuma Masahiro)

Front Cover: Moe Angelos in an early rehearsal of ATLAS DRUGGED. Created by The Builders Association, directed by Marianne Weems, written by James Gibbs. See "Follow the Money: ATLAS DRUGGED (Tools for Tomorrow)" by The Builders Association, edited and compiled by Kate Purdum and Marianne Weems. (Photo by James Gibbs)

Back Cover: Here There Are Blueberries by Moisés Kaufman and Amanda Gronich, New York Theatre Workshop, 2024. See "You Never Know Who's Out There in the Dark Listening: An Interview with Moisés Kaufman and Amanda Gronich" by Richard Schechner and Carol Martin. (Photo by Matthew Murphy)

TDR

ARTICLES

Follow the Money: ATLAS DRUGGED (Tools for Tomorrow) . . . . . 6

The Builders Association

Edited and compiled by Kate Purdum and Marianne Weems

When The Builders Association began working on their Ayn Rand-inspired, technofeudalist-satirizing production of ATLAS DRUGGED (Tools for Tomorrow), the 2024 election was still years away. By the time the show premiered at NYU Skirball Center for the Performing Arts in October 2024, it was just around the corner. This dossier—comprising an interview with Richard Schechner, commentary, script excerpts, and a summary of the Builders’ mediaturgy—is a comprehensive examination of the factors that influenced the genesis of ATLAS DRUGGED, and the ludicrous “predictions” made by the sprawling, technologically advanced work that have since come true.

“You Never Know Who’s Out There in the Dark Listening”: An Interview with Moisés Kaufman and Amanda Gronich . . . . . 41

Richard Schechner and Carol Martin

Here There Are Blueberries (2018–ongoing), the Tectonic Theater Project’s most recent work, tells the story of a photo album from Auschwitz collected in 1944 by Obersturmführer Karl-Friedrich Höcker, adjutant to camp commander, SS-Sturmbannführer Richard Baer. The photos, now at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC, show Nazi soldiers, their families, and concentration-extinction camp staff relaxing and socializing. Tectonic not only presents the photos but also investigates curating, memory, and historical responsibility. The interview details the process that brought Here There Are Blueberries into existence.

Sudden Rise: A Posthuman Performance* . . . . . 65

Christina Schmutz

Through its arrangement of projections, figures, light, colors, sound, and spoken text, Sudden Rise (2019) by Wu Tsang and the collective Moved by the Motion creates a posthuman world, transgressing the boundaries of representation and presence to rethink our civilization in relation to the rest of nature.

From left: boychild, Wu Tsang, and Josh Johnson in Sudden Rise. Schauspielhaus Zürich, 2019. See “Sudden Rise: A Posthuman Performance” by Christina Schmutz and “A Paradigm of a Postsubjective ‘Theatrical Mind’: Wu Tsang and Moved by the Motion’s Sudden Rise” by Frithwin Wagner-Lippok. (Photo by Ketty Bertossi)

A Paradigm of a Postsubjective “Theatrical Mind”: Wu Tsang and Moved by the Motion’s Sudden Rise . . . . . 80

Frithwin Wagner-Lippok

The postsubjective theatre of Sudden Rise (2019) by Wu Tsang and the collective Moved by the Motion denies human agency, suggesting instead a posthuman world, and brings the theatrical paradox of action and subjectivity to light. Sudden Rise’s hyperaffective timelessness heralds a posthuman world, both in reality and in theatre. Characterized by collectivity, entanglement, and synesthesia, the working mode of Tsang’s team of artists frames and codetermines the theatrical experience.

Looking with Nona Faustine: Portraiture, Performance, and Possession . . . . . 98

Ariel Nereson

Contemporary visual artist Nona Faustine’s White Shoes series stages and documents her reparative practice of taking self-portraits in sites around New York City where enslaved Africans lived, died, and are buried. Considering Faustine’s self-portrait series not only as photography but also as performance documentation invites theorizations of memorial practices (rather than monumental objects) and their affordances for liberatory aesthetic projects.

Two Black Male Faculty on Directing Jackie Sibblies Drury's Fairview: Our Fairview in Three Acts . . . . .	116
--	-----

Jeremy Gillett and Ray Black

When two black male directors produce university productions of Jackie Sibblies Drury's Fairview in different parts of the country at the same time, they bond over their shared understanding of the white gaze, and how black people are created and viewed in the white imagination, both in the play and in their own lives.

Reflections on Whiteness through Conversational Theatre . . . . .	139
--	-----

Sima Nurali Wolgast and Jörgen Dahlqvist

Conversational theatre is a medium for facilitating dialog on race, privilege, and discrimination in Swedish society. Du Contrat Social, a performance based on Jean-Jacques Rousseau's social contract, demonstrates how theatre can create an interactive space where audience members actively reflect on their social positioning and implicit biases. By guiding the audience through exercises that expose implicit stereotypes and encourage self-reflection, the performance fosters a unique setting for transformative learning.

Akira Takayama's McDonald's Radio University: Brechtian Listening in McDonald's and Postvisual Dramaturgy . . . . .	150
---	-----

Kyoko Iwaki

Akira Takayama's McDonald's Radio University (2017) transforms McDonald's fast-food restaurants into auditory and affective performance spaces for collective reflection and sociopolitical engagement. Migrant "professors," seated inside, deliver lectures via portable radios. Drawing from Brechtian radio theatre, Takayama foregrounds the ethics of listening, urging audiences to confront vulnerability and marginalization within noisy, unpredictable public spaces devoid of theatre's protective distance.

Impossible Tasks: Nacera Belaza's Being Sound and Attempts at Writing Dance . . . . .	161
--	-----

Nora Raine Thompson

Nacera Belaza asks a dancer to "be sound." This is not a metaphor, nor is it a request for the dancer to produce sound, talk, or sing. It is a task given with little explanation but meant to unlock a way of performing without pretending, stirring up questions about the historically racialized possibility of realness, transparency, and transmission, and drawing attention to profound sensory experiences that might never be clear. Here, performing one impossible task (being sound) becomes instructive in doing another (writing dance).

Political Theatre in Zimbabwe: A Conversation between Daniel Maposa and Dan Friedman . . . . .	172
---	-----

Dan Friedman

Dan Friedman, a cofounder and artistic director emeritus of the Castillo Theatre in New York City, interviews Daniel Maposa, the founder and executive director of Savanna Trust, a politically engaged theatre based in Harare, Zimbabwe. Their conversation covers the history of political theatre in Zimbabwe from colonial times to the present.

“That Performance Was Not for You to Begin With”: Performing Queer Worship as Resistance in the Philippines. . . . .	185
---	------------

Ian Rafael Ramirez

In July 2023, drag artist Pura Luka Vega’s Ama Namin (Our Father) performance in “Jesus drag” went viral across the Philippine archipelago. Many deemed Luka’s performance blasphemous, and they were declared persona non grata and imprisoned twice. This kanalization is a process where Christian fundamentalists, conservative publics, and state officials tag bakla (often conflated with being gay or transfeminine) as kanal (canal or sewer), deserving imprisonment and even death. By queering worship, bakla communities challenge anti-bakla regimes.

CONCERNING BOOKS

Between Archetype and Algorithm: Sophia and the Philosophical Challenges of Humanoid Robotics . . . . .	200
--	------------

Ester Fuoco

Thomas Riccio’s analysis of Sophia, the social robot developed by Hanson Robotics, presents her as a liminal figure at the intersection of myth, technology, and identity, embodying both ancient archetypes and emergent posthuman imaginaries. Sophia’s design, evolution, and media presence challenge conventional notions of agency, consciousness, and embodiment and raising questions on the broader ethical, ontological, and social dimensions of human-machine coevolution. As a speculative interface, Sophia redefines subjectivity within the horizon of a technologically mediated future.