UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY LIBRARY, New York City

Unsurpassed among the theological collections in the U.S., this library is especially strong in the historical field. Large holdings of incunabula and 16th century Bibles, Greek Testaments and Gospels embody 500 years of Bible translation, revision and publication. Other strong areas of this collection include exegetical materials, homiletics, liturgics, sociology, religious education, psychiatry and religion, ecumenics, sacred music, religious drama, and missions. Arrangement of entries is according to a classification system developed to meet the specialized needs of the large theological library.

MISSIONARY RESEARCH LIBRARY, New York City

The Missionary Research Library holds one of the world's largest collections of materials bearing upon Christian missions and related subjects. Established in 1914, it contains works on the following subjects: the history and theory of missions; non-Christian religions and ideologies; the environment of the missions in the lands of the "younger churches"; international affairs and world trends as they affect the Christian mission and its strategy.

Of approximately 100,000 cataloged items, more than 800 periodicals are currently received. Reports of missions and other institutions, pamphlets, and archives are also included among the cataloged materials. The printed catalog contains author and title cards as well as entries under subject headings. In the case of prominent authors on missions there are listings of both their independent works and their significant contributions to periodical literature. Periodicals and reports are found in a separate listing in the latter part of the catalog.

273,000 cards reproduced in 17 volumes

Price: $1237.50

Price includes 10% additional charge on orders outside the U.S.

A History of Religion East and West

An introduction and interpretation

Trevor Ling

This book sets out to show the parallel developments or significant divergences between the religions of Asia and Europe. Previous studies have tended to treat them either in sharp contrast or in isolation from each other. The basis of Trevor Ling's study is historical correlation from about 1500 to the present day. Attention is also paid to the social and economic factors involved in the development of religious traditions.

Personalities of the Council of Florence

JOSEPH GILL, S.J.

Today the Council of Florence takes on a new interest, on account of its short-lived union of the Eastern and Western Churches. As these biographies show, the Church Fathers were men of strong convictions and of full, varied lives.
