THE PASSION IN MARK
Studies on Mark 14–16

WERNER H. KELBER, editor. John D. Crossan, Kim E. Dewey, John R. Donahue S.J., Norman Perrin, Vernon K. Robbins, Theodore J. Weeden, Sr., and Werner H. Kelber share the conviction that the clue to an understanding of the oldest existent Christian passion narrative lies in the theology of Mark the Evangelist, and not in the political and legal history of the time of Jesus. $10.95 cloth

WHAT IS STRUCTURAL EXEGESIS?

DANIEL PATTE. This latest volume in the popular Guides to Biblical Scholarship Series examines one of the major recent developments in biblical studies. Here is an introduction to structuralism and structuralist methods which does not presuppose advance knowledge of present research in linguistics or anthropology. $2.95 paper

The THEOLOGISCHE REALENZYKLOPÄDIE (TRE) resumes and continues the work of the Realencyclopädie für protestantische Theologie und Kirche (RE, 3rd ed.) which was completed sixty years ago. In the time that has elapsed since, massive changes of scholarly thought, both in an increased awareness of the methods employed and in an evaluation of the objects of research, have necessitated a fresh and complete representation of theology research. Up till now, a work of this nature, sufficiently representative of all branches of theological scholarship in the last quarter of the 20th century, has been lacking. This gap will be closed with the publication of the TRE.

ADVICE

Lawyers, Priests and Psychiatrists unite to protect their Citizen from the perils of social conflict

ADVICE is a board game for 2 players with several novel features. It is a race game in which the speed with which a player reaches his goal is determined not by the throw of dice but by the player's skill and foresight. Scientifically designed, ADVICE gives a game which is easy to learn and fun to play yet provides for the expert player intellectual problems as fascinating and challenging as Chess. A simple rule of progression prevents draws and cyclic situations so that of necessity the game moves towards a definite conclusion. There is no stalemate but a fast game, often with an unexpected finish.

ADVICE is not a war game but models social conflicts. Instead of manipulating Kings, Knights, Castles and Pawns, each player – represented by a key piece, the Citizen – directs a supporting team of Lawyers, Priests and Psychiatrists which enables the Citizen to reach his goal-square safely and as quickly as possible.

Another important aspect of ADVICE is its realistic circular power structure. Acting as stepping-stones for the progress of his Citizen, a player's Lawyers, Priests and Psychiatrists are of equal value. Any one of them can capture the opposing Citizen and thus win the game. However, in hindering an opponent's advance, the pieces have different values. Priests, because they can help in the spiritual as well as the material world, are superior to and hence capture Lawyers. Lawyers, who are the only advisers to whom Mammon and the judges of this world will listen, are superior to and capture Psychiatrists. Psychiatrists, however, can dissipate one's faith in divine intervention or in anything except the material and hence in their turn are superior to and capture Priests.

ADVICE is available at specialist games shops in Cambridge, Oxford, London, Boston, Los Angeles, Palo Alto, Berkeley, San Francisco, New York, Davis and from branches of Oyez Law Stationers.
