TOWARD COMPETITION IN LOCAL TELEPHONY

William J. Baumol and J. Gregory Sidak

Local telephone companies have long been extensively regulated as natural monopolies. Technological innovation and the prospect for lifting regulatory barriers to entry, however, now expose at least some portions of the local exchange to competition from cable television systems, wireless telephony, and rival wireline systems.

William Baumol and Gregory Sidak examine how telecommunications regulation can be designed to adapt automatically as the market becomes increasingly competitive. If certain parts of local telephony remain naturally monopolistic, how can regulators protect consumers against cross-subsidy, predatory pricing, and price discrimination? How should a local exchange carrier that is a natural monopoly in some activities be permitted to price necessary inputs it sells to its competitors in the market for the final telecommunications products?

*edited by Kenichi Imai and Ryutaro Komiya
translation edited and introduced by Ronald Dore and Hugh Whittaker*

Is capitalism everywhere driven by the same logic of market forces, contract, and individualistic motivation? Or is Japan different? These eighteen contributions by leading Japanese economists shed light on a number of issues in this increasingly important debate. The variety of perspectives and the range of firms covered — not only the large industrial corporation but cooperatives, public enterprises, and mutual life insurance companies as well — provide a broad overview that few other books on Japanese business can offer.

THE LIMITS OF SAFETY

Organizations, Accidents, and Nuclear Weapons
SCOTT D. SAGAN

Scholars and policymakers seem to believe that nuclear arsenals can serve as a secure deterrent in the post-Cold War era. Scott Sagan challenges such optimism. His painstaking research into formerly classified archives penetrates the veil of safety that has surrounded U.S. nuclear weapons operations. Sagan maintains that many hidden bugs remain in the system and concludes that unless we radically change the posture of our nuclear arsenal, a serious accident will eventually occur.

ECONOMIC DISCRIMINATION AND POLITICAL EXCHANGE

World Political Economy in the 1930s and 1980s
KENNETH A. OYE

Did bilateral and regional bargaining choke off international commerce and finance in the 1930s and prolong the Great Depression? Is the open world economic system now being placed at risk by explicitly discriminatory practices? Most political economists would warn that bilateral and regional preferences are at best inefficient and at worst catastrophic. By contrast, Kenneth Oye shows how economic discrimination can foster international economic openness by facilitating political exchange.

". . . an important piece of work that makes major interpretive and theoretical contributions. Oye succeeds in the rarely achieved task of putting old facts in a new light."—Robert O. Keohane
