CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions are invited from all over the world, and especially from scholars working in African universities. Articles written in languages other than English will be considered on their merits, and where necessary translation will be arranged. The average length suggested is 3,000 to 6,000 words, with occasional exceptions of up to 10,000 words. Notes on centres of African studies, research projects, and reports of recent conferences are also welcome.

All correspondence and contributions should be addressed to THE EDITORS, THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES, at either UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, DAR ES SALAAM, TANZANIA or UNIVERSITY PRESS, CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

Each contributor will receive a copy of the number and 25 offprints of his article free of charge.

THE RISE AND FALL OF KWAME NKRUMAH

A Study of Personal Rule in Africa
HENRY L. BRETTON

As well as giving a fascinating portrait of Nkrumah, the author presents an almost classic case history of what may happen when a political leader is corrupted by power. The author, Professor of Political Science, Michigan University was a visiting professor at the University of Ghana in 1964-65. 35s

THE MYTH OF 'MAU MAU'

Nationalism in Kenya
CARL G. ROSBERG, Jr. and JOHN NOTTINGHAM

'Their documentation is impressively thorough and based partly on hitherto inaccessible National Archives . . . the best account to date of the origins and rise of nationalism in Kenya and is indispensable to any serious student.' Elspeth Huxley, New York Times.

GENEVA-AFRICA

THE JOURNAL OF THE GENEVA-AFRICA INSTITUTE

Africa in time past lent the European imagination that touch of exotic adventure which its own milieu did not always provide. That time is no more. Africa today seeks her own way through difficulties and incertitudes to which no one open to her desire to meet on terms of equality can remain indifferent.

It is the wish of Geneva-Africa to be an active partner in this unconditional dialogue, and to contribute to a deeper comprehension of the problems and opportunities facing an emergent Africa.

The University of ZAMBIA

Institute for Social Research
P.O Box 900, Lusaka, Zambia

This Institute, known for 27 years as the Rhodes-Livingstone Institute for Social Research, is now the first element of the Centre for African Studies of the new University of Zambia. The approach of the Institute is inter-disciplinary, with current emphasis in the fields of sociology, psychology, political science and economics (including agricultural economics). It is hoped that the earlier interests of the Institute in history, human geography and demography can also be extended.

Most of the results obtained by Institute staff and affiliated workers are published in its own publications. Apart from books, these are the journal—recently re-named African Social Research—the Zambia Papers, and the Communications. It is also planned to publish, at least once a year, an Institute Bulletin. Charges to subscribers and for single issues are as follows:

SUBSCRIBERS

- Category: A African Social Research (2); Zambian Papers (1) 30/-
B As A, plus Communications 40/-
C As B, plus Bulletin 50/-

SINGLE ISSUES

Communications; Bulletin, related to cost of production.

Journal of Administration Overseas

An authoritative quarterly which discusses various aspects of administration overseas and particularly in developing countries. It is a continuous record of the problems which confront the practical administrator, and their solution, and it provides a compact medium for the exchange of ideas and knowledge. Treatment is given in particular to the local administration problems which face administrative personnel; the development of local government institutions; staff training; electoral machinery, local courts; land administration generally; and the difficult situations which are created through urban development and other social changes.

PROBLEMS OF INDUSTRIAL PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT IN NIGERIA

C. C. Onyemelukwe

One of the first books on African planning and development to be written by an African, this book focuses on the process of industrialization in Nigeria. Among the major topics covered are the background to industrialization, the government's role since independence, and the problem of financing growth through capital accumulation. The author notes the need to enhance the prestige of technicians, pleads for a more responsible leadership in trade unions, and explains why the curriculum of the traditional western university does not fit the needs of a developing country. His observations and recommendations are pertinent not only to Nigeria but also to developing countries throughout the world.

The Transformation of East Africa

Studies in Political Anthropology

Edited by

Stanley Diamond and Fred G. Burke

Foreword by Stephen K. Bailey

Exploring the range of nation-building processes from the kingdom of Ethiopia to the colony of Mozambique, eighteen outstanding authorities on African join in this first major interdisciplinary effort to define the political history of East Africa in depth—largely by viewing cultural-anthropological materials within a political framework.

George Moutafakis, Marvin Harris, Robert I. Rotberg, William H. Friedland, Robert O. Collins, Francis A. J. Ianni, and Gordon M. Wilson are among the contributors who explore the colonial heritage, the evolution of political systems, resources and problems of economic development, the growth of urban society, native and missionary religions, education, racial minorities, and other subjects. Sixteen maps, $15.00.

Negro Social and Political Thought: 1850-1920

Edited by Howard Brotz

This unique work makes available many rare and generally inaccessible writings that reveal what thoughtful Negroes themselves between 1850 and 1920 have felt about their future in the United States. It shows the long-standing character of many questions that preoccupy people today: Do the Negroes have a separate culture? Can or should they assimilate to white American civilization? Is Negro "nationalism" a viable idea?

Guided by the tension between those who project civic assimilation as the goal of Negro aspiration and those nationalist and separatist voices that despair of ever having a dignified future in a bi-racial society, Professor Brotz presents the significant writings of Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, and W. E. B. Du Bois as well as the contributions of such Negro thinkers as Martin Delany, Marcus Garvey, and others. $12.50.
