NEW FROM CAMBRIDGE

The Social Survey in Historical Perspective, 1880–1940

Martin Bulmer, Kevin Bales and Kathryn Kish Sklar, Editors

This book traces the history of the social survey in Britain and the United States (with two chapters on Germany and France), discussing the aims and interests of those who carried out the early surveys, and the links between the social survey and the growth of empirical social science.

Contributors: Martin Bulmer, Kevin Bales, Kathryn Kish Sklar, Eileen Janes Yeo, Jane Lewis, E. P. Hennock, Alain Desrosieres, Steven R. Cohen, Stephen P. Turner, Irmela Gorges, Jennifer Platt, Roger Davidson, Seth Koven

The Making of a Saint

The Life, Times and Sanctification of Neophytos the Recluse

Catia Galatariotou

Each case of sanctification poses the same general question: How does an individual become a Saint? This pioneering study focuses on one case of sanctification in late twelfth and early thirteenth-century Byzantium, tracing the evolution of Neophytos's idiosyncratic pursuit of self-sanctification, and placing the Saint within the context of his society at large, in Cyprus and in the Byzantine world.

39035-4 Hardcover $64.50

The French Revolution and British Popular Politics

Mark Philp, Editor

Leading scholars explore the nature and origins of the ideological conflicts between reformers and loyalists, the impact of the war with France on the organization of the British state and its relations with its people, and the extent of the threat of revolution on both British and colonial territory.

39123-7 Hardcover $49.95

The German Experience of Professionalization

Modern Learned Professions and their Organizations from the Early Nineteenth Century to the Hitler Era

Charles E. McClelland

Modern learned professions (medicine, law, teaching, engineering, and others) developed in central Europe just as vigorously as in England or America. Yet their close relationship with state power led to a different historical experience of professionalization. This work explores that experience in a comprehensive way.

The Worlds of Christopher Columbus

William D. Phillips, Jr. and Carla Rahn Phillips

"Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, both historians at the University of Minnesota, are characteristically meticulous.... they have the essential Columbus: his basic motivation, as they realize, was social ambition.... they bring out well the slow maturation of Columbus's intellect.... They write clearly, simply and conscientiously.... theirs is an excellent book for the Columbus beginner."

MORAL COMMUNITIES

The Culture of Class Relations in the Russian Printing Industry, 1867-1907

MARK D. STEINBERG
Steinberg offers a rare perspective on the social and political crisis in late Imperial Russia focusing on the printing industry as it evolved from a state-dependent handicraft to a capitalist industry.

"This is good cultural history in the broadest sense."
—Abraham Ascher,
author of The Revolution of 1905

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical, or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, 102 Rackham Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-1070.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.
