OXFORD BOOKS

TRAVEL IN ENGLAND IN THE 17th CENTURY

By JOAN PARKES. 'If all persons, both ladies, much more Gentlemen, would spend some of their time in Journeys to visit their native Land, and be curious to Inform themselves and make observations, it would . . . add much to its esteem and glory in our minds and cure the evil Itch of overvaluing foreign parts: at least furnish them with an equivalent to entertain strangers when among us.' Thus wrote Mrs. Celia Fiennes, who herself travelled some three thousand miles (chiefly on horseback), more than two hundred years ago. With 46 illustrations. 2 is. net.

OXFORD BOOKS

THE WANDERING SCHOLAR

By D. G. HOGARTH. 'To be at once a scholar and a wanderer is to indulge the least congruous desires. In the same hour one gratifies the last refinement of intellectual curiosity and obeys a call from the first state of nature. For the "wandering fever" is in a sense a temptation of original sin, heard across the ages, and the scholar finds a subtle joy in returning to the wilderness in spite of being a scholar.' Two books are here combined in one, with some revision. 8s. 6d. net.

THE ANGLO-NORMAN CUSTUMAL OF EXETER

Edited for the first time by J. W. SCHOFF. With an Introduction by J. W. SCHOFF and R. C. EASTERLING. The Custumal written, in Anglo-Norman, by various hands, mainly of the 13th and 14th centuries, is of considerable interest for students of municipal institutions. It is now published for the first time in extenso. With 4 collotype facsimiles. 5s. net.

THE STATUTES GOVERNING THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF WINCHESTER, GIVEN BY CHARLES I

Edited by A. W. GOODMAN and W. H. HUTTON. An edition of the Latin text with translation en face. The book contains also six appendixes; five of these dealing with Winchester, the sixth deals with the Cathedral in general. With 2 collotype facsimiles. 12s. 6d. net.

THE DOME OF THE ROCK IN JERUSALEM

By E. T. RICHMOND. This book is a description of its structure and decoration. The object has been to describe the condition of the building, and to suggest the nature of the work needed and the means for carrying it out; something of the building's history has, at the same time, been recalled. Embellished with line drawings in the text, and numerous coloured plates, in all 192 illustrations. Limited edition of 500 copies, of which 450 are for sale. £6 6s. net.

THE JOURNAL OF EGYPTIAN ARCHAEOLOGY

Issued quarterly, 2s. net for the double part, Vol. X, Parts III-IV, October 1924, with 164 plates.
